Active duty, reserve, prior service, dependents, retired, and Department of the Navy civilians from 1951 to present. (Only samples of data from each category are on file, depending on research study.)

Categories of records in the system:
Performance, attitudinal, biographical, aptitude, vocational interest, demographic, physiological. Data in any file are limited, depending on purpose of the research study.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
5 USC 301 Departmental Regulations.

Purpose(s):
The data are used solely by Navy Personnel Research and Development Center researchers who analyze them statistically to arrive at recommendations to management on such topics as: Comparison of different training methods, selection tests, equipment designs, or policies relating to improving race relations and decreasing drug abuse. In no case are the data used for other than statistical purposes; that is, the data are not used in making decisions affecting specific individuals as individuals.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
The Blanket Routine Uses that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's compilation apply to this system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Magnetic tapes, magnetic disk, punched cards, and coding.

Retrievability:
Records are retrievable by name, social security number, or service/file numbers, but such identifying information is used only to permit collation of data for statistical analysis, and is not used for retrieval of individual records.

Safeguards:
Unauthorized access to records is controlled by: Security clearances for all Research Center and contractor personnel; physical security including a badge system for entry to the Center and a 24-hour guard maintained on a fenced compound; control of visitors; data bank users having special access codes; and, access limited to only designated personnel.

Retention and disposal:
Records are destroyed five years after termination of a research project. They are maintained within the confines of the Research Center. Destruction is accomplished by degaussing magnetic tapes and disks, and punched cards are recycled.

System manager(s) and address:
Director of Programs (Code 03PA)
U. S. Navy Personnel Research and Development Center
San Diego, California 92152

Notification procedure:
Research Center files are organized by research study. To determine if Center files contain information concerning himself, an individual would have to specify time and place of participation in the research, unit to which attached at the time, and descriptive information about the study so that the appropriate data may be located. For further information, contact the System Manager.

Office to visit: Contact System Manager.
Visitor Identification: System Manager will specify.

Record access procedures:
The agency's rules for access to records may be obtained from the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures:
The agency's rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record source categories:
The source depends on purpose and nature of study: From the subjects themselves, educational institutions, supervisors, peers, instructors, spouses, and job sample tests.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

System name:
Sys Cmd Acctg/Monitoring of Projects (SCAMP).

System location:
Naval Regional Data Automation Center (NARDAC), Washington Navy Yard, Building 196, Washington, DC 20374.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Current employee assigned military personnel, contractor personnel and those separated within the current five fiscal years.

Categories of records in the system:
Individual's social security number, date of birth, home address, home telephone number, education level, sex, race or ethnic group. Other types of records integrated with personnel records include: (a) Status of travel orders during the previous fiscal year; (b) vehicle identification for parking control purposes; (c) privacy log containing a history of accesses made to any of the privacy protected data; (d) record of personnel actions issued; (e) training data extracted from the Individual Development Plan (IDP); (f) history of all promotions associated with employment at NARDAC; (g) listing of security accesses; (h) manpower costs for all personnel distributed by project and task; and (i) data relating to projects or endeavors that individuals have worked on. This data deals with costs and milestone monitoring.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purpose(s):
To manage personnel, monitor projects and manage financial data.
Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
The Blanket Routine Uses that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's compilation apply to this system.
Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Records are maintained on magnetic disk and on magnetic tape.

Retrieveability:
SCAMP users obtain information by means of either a query or a request for a standard report. Personnel data may be indexed by any data item although the primary search key is the badge number.

Safeguards:
Access to building is protected by uniformed guards requiring positive identification for admission. The computer room where data is physically stored is protected by a cyberlock. The system is protected by user account number and password sign-on, data base authority, set and item authority for list, add, delete, and update.

Retention and disposal:
An individual's Personnel Master Data Set record is retained in the data base as long as they are actively employed with the Command. The online personnel data set is purged of all records of separated personnel at the end of each fiscal year. Historical data may be kept for five years on separate tape files.

System manager(s) and address:
Department Head, Management Information Analysis Department (Code 20B) NADAC, Building 157, Washington Navy Yard, Washington, DC 20374.

Notification procedure:
Inquiries regarding the existence of records should be addressed to the system manager. Written requests should contain the full name and signature of the individual concerned and his/her social security number indicated on the letter. For personal visits, the individual should be able to provide some acceptable form of identification, i.e., driver's license, etc.

Record access procedures:

N05300-7.

System name:
Bases and Stations Information System (BASIS).

System location:
Decentralized, maintained by individual Naval bases and stations. Some mailing addresses are in the Navy's address directory in the appendix to the Navy Department's systems notices appearing in the Federal Register. Included in this notice are those records duplicated for maintenance at a site closer to where the employee works (e.g., in an administrative office or a supervisor's work area).

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Records of present and former and prospective military, civilian and contractor personnel located at Naval bases and stations.

Categories of records in the system:
Correspondence/records concerning identification, location (assigned organization code and/or work center code); labor code; payments for training; travel advances and claims; hours assigned and worked; routine and emergency assignments; functional responsibilities; clearances; educational and experience characteristics and training histories; travel; retention group; hire/termination dates; types of appointment: leave; trade; vehicle parking; disaster control; community relations (blood donor, etc.); employee recreational programs; grades and series or rank/rate; retirement category; awards; property custody; personnel actions/dates; violations of rules; physical handicaps and health data; veterans preference; postal address; location of dependents, next of kin and their addresses and other data needed for personnel, financial, safety security management, as appropriate.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
5 U.S.C. 301 and Executive Order 9397.

Purpose(s):
The Naval bases and stations use this data to manage their landlord functions such as to locate individuals; determine security clearances for access levels; track safety incidents; provide career counseling; track traffic accidents and incidents, complaints, and arrest information; record handlers of hazardous materials; record rental of welfare and recreational equipment; track individuals' training; record family or individual counseling; determine personnel data such as pay status, date reported aboard, separation data, and dependents; emergency information, i.e., next of kin; track beneficial suggestions and other awards; monitor employee/labor relation actions; maintain non-appropriated fund employee information; and any other pertinent employee information necessary to operate the landlord functions of a base or station.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
The Blanket Routine Uses that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's listing or record system notices apply to this system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Data is stored on electronic medium which includes disks, tapes and diskettes.

Retrievability:
SSN, name, organization, work center or job order.

Safeguards:
Access is limited to officials/employees of the command who have a need to know. There are three levels of electronic controls: (1) Access to BASIS is controlled by password, (2) levels of access within the system are controlled by the operating system security procedures for individual permissions based upon passwords, (3) access to specific data element information is password controlled by the data dictionary of the data base management system.

Retention and disposal:
Records are retained for the period the individual is assigned to the base or station and deleted after six months of departure.

System manager(s) and address:
Decentralized, maintained by individual Naval bases and stations. Mailing addresses are provided in the Navy Department Directory published in the appendix of the record system notices published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Notification procedure:
Requests from individuals should be addressed to the systems manager. Requests received by mail must be accompanied by the individual's full name and social security number and a statement verifying the requester's identity. Requesters may also inquire in person at the naval base or station. In such case, proof of identity will consist of full name, social security number, and a positive piece of identification such as a driver's license or Department of Defense ID card.

Record access procedures:
The agency's rules for access to records may be obtained from the systems manager.

Contesting record procedures:
The agency's rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned are contained in SECNAVINST 5211.5C (32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G).

Record source categories:
Information obtained from individuals, official documents generated on the base or station, and from electronic interfaces with other standard Navy systems (e.g., NCPDS, PASS/SDS, etc.). The electronic interfaces to BASIS are dependent upon which standard Navy systems are installed at an individual activity. A list of these interfaces can be obtained from the systems manager.

Exemptions claimed for the system:

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Title V, Pub. L. 92-129; Section 413; Pub. L. 92-255

Purpose(s):
To identify alcohol and drug abusers and either restore such persons to effective duty or identify rehabilitation failures for separation from Government service. Information is used to treat, diagnose, counsel and rehabilitate individuals in the drug or alcohol abuse programs. For counselors and counselor candidates to use in screening and evaluation of candidates for counselor school and the continued evaluation of counselors during the course of their duties.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
Blanket Routine Uses identified in the yearly recompilation do not apply to this system of records.
Records of identity, diagnosis, prognosis, or treatment of any client/patient, irrespective of whether or when he/she ceases to be client/patient, maintained in connection with the performance of any alcohol or drug abuse prevention and treatment function conducted, regulated, or directly or indirectly assisted by any department or agency of the United States, shall, except as provided therein, be confidential and be disclosed only for the purposes and under the circumstances expressly authorized in Title 21 U.S.C. Section 1775, as amended by 88 Stat. 137, and Title 42 U.S.C., Section 4582, as amended by 88 Stat. 131. These statutes take precedence over the Privacy Act of 1974, in regard to accessibility of such records except to the individual to whom the record pertains.
Within the Armed Forces or within those components of the Veteran furnishing health care to veterans or between such components and the Armed Forces.
To medical personnel outside the Armed Forces to the extent necessary to meet a bona fide medical emergency.
To Government personnel for the purpose of obtaining benefits to which the patient is entitled.
To qualified personnel for the purpose of conducting scientific research, management or financial audits, or program evaluation, but such personnel may not identify, directly or indirectly, any individual patient unless a report of such research, audit or evaluation, or otherwise disclose identities in any manner.
To a court of competent jurisdiction upon authorization by an appropriate order after showing good cause therefore. In assessing good cause, the court shall weigh the public interest and the need for disclosure against the injury to the patient, to the physician-patient relationship, and to the treatment services. Upon the granting of such order, the court, in determining the extent to which any disclosure of all or any part of any record is necessary, shall impose appropriate safeguards against unauthorized disclosure.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Automated records may be stored on magnetic tapes, disc, drums or on punched cards.
Manual records may be stored in paper file folders, microfiche or microfilm.

Retrievability:
Manual records may be retrieved by name and social security number. Automated records may be retrieved by social security number. Computer programs associated with automated records maintained in this system allow for names and social security numbers to be removed while leaving other data elements intact. When the name and social security number is removed, data is aggregated for use in research, management information and planning.

Safeguards:
Computer and punched card processing facilities are located in restricted areas accessible only to authorized persons that are properly screened, cleared and trained.
Manual records and computer printouts are available only to authorized personnel having a need to know.

Retention and disposal:
Manual records are maintained for two years and automated records are maintained indefinitely.

47 U.S.C. 605

Executive Order 12036; United States Intelligence Activities; SECNAVINST 5520.3, Criminal and Security Investigations and Related Activities Within the Dept. of the Navy; DOD Dir 5210.8, Policy on Investigation and Clearance of DOD Personnel for Access to Defense Information; DOD Dir 5200.26, Defense Investigative Program; DOD Dir 5200.27, Acquisition of Information Concerning Persons and Organizations Not Affiliated with the Dept of Defense; and DOD Dir 5200.24, Telephone Interception and Eavesdropping, and SECNAVINST 3820.2D, Investigative and Counterintelligence Collection and Retention Guidelines Pertaining to the DON.

Purpose(s):
The information in this system is (was) collected to meet the investigative, counterintelligence and security responsibilities of the DON. This includes personnel security, internal security, criminal and other law enforcement matters all of which are essential to the effective operation of the department.

The records in this system are used to make determinations of; suitability for access or continued access to classified information, suitability for employment or assignment, suitability for access to military installations or industrial firms engaged in government projects/contracts, suitability for awards or similar benefits, use in current law enforcement investigation of any type including applicants; use in judicial or adjudicative proceedings including litigation or in accordance with a court order; insurance claims including workers compensation; the protection of services under the DOD Distinguished Visitor Protection Program and to assist the U.S. Secret Service in meeting its responsibilities; used for public affairs or publicity purposes such as wanted persons, etc.; referral of matters under their cognizance to federal, state or local law enforcement authorities including criminal prosecution, civil court action or regulatory order; advising higher authorities and naval commands of the important developments impacting on security, good order or discipline; reporting of statistical data to naval commands and higher authority; input into the Defense Central Index of Investigations.

Users of the records in this system include employees of the NIS who require access for operational, administrative or supervisory purposes; DOD criminal investigative, investigative and intelligence units; DOD components making suitability determinations.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

To law enforcement or investigatory authorities for law enforcement purposes.
To federal intelligence/countertelligence agencies of matters under their purview.

To foreign government organizations of criminal and counterintelligence information necessary for the prosecution of justice, or for mutual security and protection purposes.

To other investigative units (federal, state or local) for whom the investigation was conducted, or who are engaged in criminal investigative and intelligence activities; federal regulatory agencies with investigative units.

To defense counsel in the course of acquiring information.
To officials and employees of the National Archives for historical purposes.
To commercial insurance companies in those instances in which they have a legitimate interest in the results of the investigation, but only to that extent and provided an unwarranted invasion of privacy is not involved.
To victims of crimes to the extent necessary to pursue civil and criminal remedies.
The Blanket Routine Uses that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's compilation also apply to this system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Paper records in file folders, on cards and on microfilm. Automated records on magnetic tape.

Retrievability:
NIS permanent files are filed by terminal digit number. In order to locate the file it is necessary to query the Defense Central Index of Investigations (DCII) computer using the name of the subject and at least one other personnel identifier such as date of birth, place of birth, social security number or military service number. Files may also be retrieved by a case control number assigned at the time the investigation is initiated. Copies of the files in the NIS ROs and Resident Agencies are retrieved by name.

Safeguards:
NIS investigative files (permanent and temporary) are maintained and stored in open shelves and filing cabinets located in secured areas accessible only to authorized personnel. Dated files are retired to the Washington National Records Center where retrieval is restricted to NIS authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal:
Retention of completed NIS Investigative files on Personnel Security Investigations (PSI's) is authorized for 15 years unless adverse information is developed, in which case they may be retained for 5 years. PSI files on persons considered for affiliation with DOD will be destroyed within one year if the affiliation is not consummated. Special Agent applicant records are retained for one year if the applicant is rejected for employment, and five years if the applicant is rejected for employment. Criminal files are retained for 25 years. Major investigations of a counterintelligence/security nature, of espionage or sabotage, may be retained permanently. Certain of the above records, when found to have possible historical value, may be offered to the National Archives for continued retention.

Counterintelligence records on persons not affiliated with DOD must be destroyed within 90 days or one year under criteria set forth in DOD Directive 5200.27, unless retention is required by law or specifically approved by the Secretary of the Navy. Files retained in the NISRO's and resident agencies are temporary and are destroyed after 90 days or one year, as appropriate.

System managers and address:
The Director, Naval Investigative Service has ultimate responsibility for NIS file. NISROs and Resident Agencies execute the direct responsibility of the Head Department Administration. NISRO Commanding Officers are responsible for files retained in their NISRO subordinate Resident Agencies.

Notification procedure:
All requests relative to the retention and/or releasability of NIS investigative files should be addressed to the Director, Naval Investigative Service, PO Box 16230, Suitland, Md. 20764. Requests must contain the full name of the individual and at least one additional personal identifier such as date and place of birth, social security number or military service number. Personal visits by requesters should be confined to the Naval Investigative Service headquarters at the above address. It should be borne in mind that the vagaries of the automated indexing system might preclude a same day response. Persons submitting written requests must properly establish their identity to the satisfaction of the NIS. Where a question exists a signed, notarized statement or other certified form of identification will be required. Individuals appearing in person may present proof of identification in the form of military ID card, valid driver's license, or other suitable form of identification bearing a photograph and signature. Attorneys or other persons acting on behalf of a subject of a record must provide a notarized authorization from the subject of the record.

Record access procedures:
Individuals may make inquiries relative to NIS records maintained on them thru the NIS Information and Privacy Coordinator Naval Investigative Service Headquarters, at the address specified in the previous paragraph.

Contesting record procedures:
The Agency's rules for access to records and for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned may be obtained from the SYSMANAGER.

Record source categories:
See Exemption.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
Parts of this system may be exempted under 5 U.S.C. 552 a (j)(2) and (k)(1), (k)(3), (k)(4), (k)(5), (k)(6) as applicable. For additional information, contact the System Manager.

N0520-5

System name:
Navy Joint Adjudication and Clearance System (NJACS).

System location:
Primary: a. System Control-Department of the Navy Central Adjudication Facility, 8621 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, MD 20910.
b. System Computer Facility-Defense Investigative Service, Personnel Investigations Center, P.O. Box 1211, Baltimore, MD 21203.
Decentralized Segments: a. Department of the Navy, Headquarters, Naval Security Group Command, 3801 Nebraska Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20390. b. Department of the Navy, Headquarters, Naval Intelligence Command (NIC-04), Room 282, NIC Building, 4600 Silver Hill Road, Suitland, Md 20389.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
All Department of the Navy (DON) military personnel and civilian employees and certain 'affiliated employees' whose duties require access to security clearance or security eligibility determination. 'Affiliated employees' include, but are not limited to, the following categories of persons in positions of trust: Contractors, consultants, non-appropriated fund employees, Red-Cross volunteers and staff, USO personnel.

Categories of records in the system:
The system contains records that include an individual's name, social security number, other personal information and identification code (UIC) of the subject's unit. Other data elements track the individual's status in the security investigation and clearance adjudication process and record the final determination. Data files will also include duty-assignment designations such as cryptographic information access or participation in the Personnel Reliability Program. The system will also include correspondence regarding the subject and/or reflecting the adjudication decision.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
5 U.S.C. 7311; 10 U.S.C. 5021; Executive Order 10450 (as amended); and Executive Order 9397.

Purpose(s):
To provide a comprehensive system to manage information required to adjudicate the eligibility of Department of the Navy (DON) military, civilian and certain affiliated employees for security clearances and to provide a record of those adjudications.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
The Blanket Routine Uses that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's compilation apply to this system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Automated records are stored on magnetic tapes, disks and drums. Paper records, microfiche, printed reports and other related documents supporting the system are filed in cabinets and stored in 'controlled access areas' only.

Retrievability:
By SSN, employee name, date of birth, and place of birth.

Safeguards:
Controls have been established to restrict computer output only to authorized users at all system locations. Specific procedures are also in place for the disposal of computer output. Computer files are kept in secure, continuously manned areas and are accessible only to authorized computer operators, programmers, and adjudicators who are directed to respond to valid, official requests for information. This access is controlled and monitored by the security system.

Retention and disposal:
The system will maintain NJACS records on persons so long as they continue to be employed by or affiliated with the DON. Records will be purged one year after an individual terminates DON employment or affiliation. Other forms of information (e.g., nonautomated records) will be maintained in accordance with DON record retention requirements. All system information is disposed of via authorized methods for sensitive or personal information, as appropriate.

Purpose(s):

JAG Manual Investigative Records are used internally within the Department of the Navy as basis for evaluating procedures operations, material, and designs with a view to improving the efficiency and safety of the Department of the Navy; determinations concerning status of personnel regarding disability benefits, entitlements to pay during periods of disability, severance pay, retirement pay, increases of pay for longevity, survivors' benefits, and involuntary extensions of enlistments, dates of expiration of active obligated service and accrual of annual leave; determinations concerning relief of accountable personnel from liability for losses of public funds or property; determinations pertaining to disciplinary or punitive action and evaluation of credibility of those killed or injured in action; military tribunals or proceedings or defense of claims for or against the Government; and public information releases.

Routine use of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such use:

To officials and employees of the Veterans Administration for use in determinations concerning entitlements to veterans and survivors' benefits.

To Servicemen's Group Life Insurance administrators for determinations concerning payment of life insurance proceeds.

To the U.S. Government Accounting Office for purposes of determinations concerning relief of accountable personnel from liability for losses of public funds and related fiscal matters.

To agents and authorized representatives of persons involved in the incident, for use in legal or administrative matters.

To contractors for use in connection with investigations concerning matters under investigation.

To agencies of the Federal, State or local law enforcement authorities, court authorities, administrative authorities, and regulatory authorities, for use in connection with civil and military criminal, civil, administrative, and regulatory proceedings and actions.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Paper documents stapled together (with real evidence, if any, attached) in paper file folders and stored in metal file cabinets, on shelves, and in cardboard boxes.

Retrievability:

Records are filed in calendar year groupings by surname of individual, bureau number of aircraft, name of ship, hull number of unnamed watercraft, or vehicle number of Government vehicles. Incidents are topically cross-referenced.

Safeguards:

Files are maintained in file cabinets and other storage devices under the control of authorized personnel during working hours; the office spaces in which the file cabinets and storage devices are located are locked outside official working hours.

Retention and disposal:

The records are retained permanently. All naval activities which prepare JAG Manual Investigative Records, or which are intermediate addresses, typically retain duplicate copies, in local files for a two-year period.

System manager(s) and address:

Assistant Judge Advocate General (Civil Law) Office of the Judge Advocate General, Department of the Navy, 200 Stovall St., Alexandria, Va. 22332

To the Internal Revenue Service and state and local taxing authorities for computing or resolving tax liability.
To the Federal Reserve Banks for the distribution of payments made through the Direct Deposit System.
To financial organizations or their processing agents authorized by individuals to receive and deposit payments in their accounts.
To federal, state, or local government agencies when payments received through the JUMPS system impact payments or benefits issued by those agencies or when a specific matching program has been requested by the agency and approved by the Office of Management and Budget.
To officials and employees of Navy Relief and the American Red Cross in the performance of their duties related to the assistance of the members and their dependents and relatives, or related to assistance previously furnished such individuals, without regard to whether the individual assisted or his/her sponsor continues to be a member of the Navy.

The Blanket Routine Uses that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's compilation also apply to this system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Personal Financial Records containing Leave and Earnings Statements, which are paper records, are stored in wooden or metal boxes or cabinets. Copies of Leave and Earnings Statements and supporting documents are stored in file folders and cabinets or on microfilm or microfiche. Automated records are stored on magnetic tapes, discs and punched cards.

Retrievability:
Automated records are retrieved by Social Security Number and name. Documents are retrieved by SSN or by an assigned internal document control number.

Safeguards:
Outside of normal working hours Personal Financial Records with Leave and Earnings Statements are secured in safes, vaults or locked cabinets. Substantiating documents and microfilmed records are retained in unlocked cabinets. During non-working hours, offices where the above-mentioned records are stored are locked.

The safeguards in the on-line automated systems include the following controls: a. Physical access to CRT data entry terminals is under supervisory control. b. Access to central computer main frame, other peripheral equipment and tape and disc storage is strictly controlled. c. Individual user identification codes and passwords are used to control access to automated records. d. Reports are issued that are used to help monitor the system to determine individuals who are accessing data.

Access to microfiche and microfiche readers and the respective data are maintained by supervisory control.

Retention and disposal:
Personal financial records containing the twelve most recent leave and earnings statements are retained by the Personnel Support Detachment or disbursing office servicing the Command to which the member is assigned. Copies of originating documents are retained by the local command for one year after submission and then destroyed. A central automated file is maintained for all active duty Navy personnel at the Navy Finance Center, Cleveland. Following a member's separation or retirement from the Navy, the member's Personal Financial Record is forwarded to the central site-Navy Finance Center, Cleveland, where it is retained for approximately two months pending individual claims and is then forwarded to the Federal Records Center. The member's Master Pay Account is retained at the central site for six months following a member's separation or retirement at which time it is purged from the computer file, microfilmed, and forwarded to the Federal Records Center. Substantiating documents are microfilmed and retained at the central site for one year and then forwarded to the Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address:
Comptroller of the Navy; Commander, Naval Military Personnel Command; Commander, Navy Accounting and Finance Center, and Commanding Officer, Navy Finance Center.

Notification procedure:
Individuals can be informed of any records maintained within the system by identifying themselves to the Personnel Support Detachment servicing that Command. The member may identify himself/herself by presenting his military identification card. Former members may request information from the Navy Finance Center, Cleveland.

Record access procedures:
Individuals, properly identified, may request any information pertaining to their pay from their Personnel Support Detachment. If the requested information is not available locally, the disbursing officer will obtain the information from other sources, i.e. members previous duty stations or the Navy Finance Center, Cleveland.

Contesting record procedures:
The agency's rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned may be obtained from the system manager.

Record source categories:
Local Personnel Support Detachments and other disbursing and personnel offices, the Veterans Administration, the Navy Military Personnel Command, various taxing agencies, individual members and recipients of allotments and various Navy procedures and entitlements manuals.

Navy Debt Management and Collection System (MNCS).
System location:
Commanding Officer, Navy Finance Center, Anthony J. Celebrezze Federal Building, Cleveland, OH 44199-2055.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Individuals who have been paid more funds by the Department of the Navy than to which they were legally entitled.

Categories of records in the system:
Individual's name, Social Security Number, and debt amount. Documentation which established overpayment status, financial status affidavit, payment record, credit reference, and miscellaneous correspondence to and from the individual.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purposes:
To maintain an automated tracking and accounting system for individuals indebted to the Department of the Navy. Records in this system are subject to use in approved computer matching programs authorized under the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, for debt collection purposes.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
To the General Accounting Office and the Department of Justice for collection action for any delinquent account when circumstances warrant.

To a commercial credit reporting agency for the purpose of either adding to a credit history file or obtaining a credit history file for use in the administration of debt collection.

To a debt collection agency for the purpose of collection services to recover indebtedness owed to the Department of the Navy.

To any other Federal agency for the purpose of effecting administrative or salary offset procedures against a person employed by that agency when the Department of the Navy, as a creditor agency, has a claim against that person.

To any other Federal agency including, but not limited to, the Internal Revenue Service and Office of Personnel Management for the purpose of effecting an administrative offset of a debt.

To the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to obtain the mailing address of a taxpayer for the purpose of locating such taxpayer to collect or to compromise a Federal claim against the taxpayer.

Note: Redisclosure of a mailing address from the IRS may be made only for the purpose of debt collection, including to a debt collection agency in order to facilitate the collection or compromise of a Federal claim under the Debt Collection Act of 1982, except that a mailing address to a consumer reporting agency is for the limited purpose of obtaining a commercial credit report on the particular taxpayer. Any such address information obtained from the IRS will not be used or shared for any other DOD purpose or disclosed to another Federal, state, or local agency which seeks to locate the same individual for its own debt collection purpose.

To any other Federal, state, or local agency for the purpose of conducting an authorized computer matching program to identify and locate delinquent debtors for recoupment of debts owed the Department of the Navy.

The "Blanket Routine Uses" that appear at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's compilation of systems notices also apply to this system.

L. 100-71 and the Department of Health and Human Services Guidelines will be followed in collection of urine samples, conducting drug tests, and processing test results.
Retention and disposal:
Records are retained for two years and then destroyed by shredding, burning, or erasure in the case of magnetic media.

System managers(s) and address:

Notification procedure:
Individuals seeking to determine whether this system of records contains information about themselves should address written inquiries to the Commanding Officer/Commander of the DON activity or the servicing civilian personnel office at which they are or were employed, or at which they made application for employment, and for which they provided a urine specimen for drug testing.

Record access procedures:
Individuals seeking access to records about themselves contained in this system of custody should address written inquiries to the Commanding Officer/Commander of the DON activity or the servicing civilian personnel office at which they are or were employed, or at which they made application for employment, and for which they provided a urine specimen for drug testing.

Contesting record procedures:
The Department of the Navy rules for accessing records, for contesting contents, and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned are published in Secretary of the Navy Instruction 5211.5; 32 CFR part 701; or may be obtained from the system manager.

Record source categories:
Records are obtained from the individual to whom the record pertains; DON or contractor employees involved in the selection and notification of individuals to be tested; DON or contractor laboratories that test urine samples for the presence of illegal drugs; DON or contractor Medical Review Officers; supervisors and managers and other DON officials engaged in administering the Drug-Free Workplace Program; the Civilian Employee Assistance Program, and processing adverse actions based on drug test results.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

DEFENSE CONTRACT AUDIT AGENCY

REQUESTING RECORDS

Records are retrieved by name or by some other personal identifier. It is therefore especially important for expeditious service when requesting a record that particular attention be provided to the Notification and/or Access Procedures of the particular record system involved so as to furnish the required personal identifiers, or any other pertinent personal information as may be required to locate and retrieve the record.

BLANKET ROUTINE USES.

Certain blanket 'routine uses' of the records have been established that are applicable to every record system maintained within the Department of Defense unless specifically stated otherwise within a particular record system. These additional blanket routine uses of the records are published below only once in the interest of simplicity, economy and to avoid redundancy before the individual record system notices begin rather than repeating them in every individual record system.

ROUTINE USE-LAW ENFORCEMENT

In the event that a system of records maintained by this component to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE WHEN REQUESTING INFORMATION

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF REQUESTED INFORMATION

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

ROUTINE USE-CongRESSIONAL INQUIRIES

Disclosure from a system of records maintained by this component may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

ROUTINE USE-PRIVATE RELIEF LEGISLATION

Relevant information contained in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on or before August 22, 1975; may be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURES REQUIRED BY INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigatory, or administrative authorities in order to comply with requirements imposed by, or to claims advanced in, international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of Department of Defense military and civilian personnel.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO STATE AND LOCAL TAXING AUTHORITIES

Any information normally contained in IRS Form W-2 which is maintained in a record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to state and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements pursuant to Title 3, U.S. Code, Sections 5516, 5517, 5520, and only to those state and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin Nr. 76-07.

ROUTINE USE - DISCLOSURE TO THE OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT

A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by this component may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deductions, and any other information necessary for the Office of Personnel Management to carry out its legally authorized Government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FOR LITIGATION

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice for the purpose of representing the Department of Defense, or any officer or member of the Department in pending or potential litigation to which the record is pertinent.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO MILITARY BANKING FACILITIES OVERSEAS

Information as to current military addresses and assignments may be provided to military banking facilities who provide banking services overseas and who are reimbursed by the Government for certain checking and loan losses. For personnel separated, discharged, or retired from the Armed Forces, information as to last known residential or home of record address may be provided to the military banking facility upon certification by a banking facility officer that the facility has returned or dishonored check negotiated by the individual or the individual has defaulted on a loan and that if restitution is not made by the individual, the U.S. Government will be liable for the losses the facility may incur.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION (GSA)

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the General Services Administration (GSA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE NATIONAL Archives AND Records ADMINISTRATION (NARA)

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE MERIT SYSTEMS PROTECTION BOARD

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the Merit Systems Protection Board, including the Office of the Special Counsel for the purpose of litigation, including administrative proceedings, appeals, special studies of the civil service and other merit systems, review of OPM or component rules and regulations, investigation of alleged or possible prohibited personnel practices, including administrative proceedings involving any individual subject of a DoD investigation, and such other functions, promulgated in 5 U.S.C. 1205 and 1206, or as may be authorized by law.

ROUTINE USE-COUNTERINTELLIGENCE PURPOSES

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use outside the DoD or the U.S.
Government for the purpose of counterintelligence activities authorized by U.S. Law or Executive Order or for the purpose of enforcing laws which protect the national security of the United States.

DEFENSE LOGISTICS AGENCY
How Systems of Records Are Arranged

This numbering system is also used to categorize and identify Privacy Act systems of records. A typical system identifier looks like this: S322.01 DLA-K. The letter "S" denotes the Defense Logistics Agency; the first digit "3" represents the primary functional category (Personnel); the digits "22" represent a secondary function with the broad "Personnel" category; the decimal fraction "01" is a sequential number used to differentiate one 322-series system from another; the suffix letters "DLA-K" designate the DLA organization with general responsibility for the functional area.

How To Use the Index Guide

The systems of records maintained by DLA are contained within the functional series listed below. Refer to the list to identify areas of interest. Use the functional category number to locate the system of records in which you are interested. The notices are arranged in numeric order.

The Defense Logistics Agency records are arranged by major functional categories with each category having a 3-digit identification number. The functional categories are as follows:

REQUESTING RECORDS

Records are retrieved by name or by some other personal identifier. It is therefore especially important for expeditious service when requesting a record that particular attention be provided to the Notification and/or Access Procedures of the particular record system involved in order to furnish the required personal identifiers, or any other pertinent personal information as may be required to locate and retrieve the record.

BLANKET ROUTINE USES

Certain blanket 'routine uses' of the records have been established that are applicable to every record system maintained within the Department of Defense unless specifically stated otherwise within a particular record system. These additional blanket routine uses of the records are published below only once in the interest of simplicity, economy and to avoid redundancy before the individual record system notices begin rather than repeating them in every individual record system.

ROUTINE USE-LAW ENFORCEMENT

In the event that a system of records maintained by this component contains information indicating a violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE WHEN REQUESTING INFORMATION

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF REQUESTED INFORMATION

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to a request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

ROUTINE USE-CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRIES

Disclosure from a system of records maintained by this component may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

ROUTINE USE-PRIVATE RELIEF LEGISLATION

Relevant information contained in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on or before August 22, 1975, may be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURES REQUIRED BY INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigative, or administrative authorities in accordance with agreements imposed by, or to claim rights conferred in, international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of Department of Defense military and civilian personnel.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO STATE AND LOCAL TAXING AUTHORITIES

Any information normally contained in IRS Form W-2 which is maintained in a record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to state and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements pursuant to Title 5, U.S. Code, Sections 5516, 5517, 5520, and only to those state and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin Nr. 76-07.

ROUTINE USE - DISCLOSURE TO THE OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT

A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by this component may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deductions, and any other information necessary for the Office of Personnel Management to carry out its legally authorized Government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FOR LITIGATION

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice for the purpose of representing the Department of Defense, or any officer, employee or member of the Department in pending or potential litigation to which the record is pertinent.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO MILITARY BANKING FACILITIES OVERSEAS

Information as to current military addresses and assignments may be provided to military banking facilities who provide banking services overseas and who are reimbursed by the Government for certain checking and loan services. For personnel separated, discharged, or retired from the Armed Forces, information as to last known residential or home of record address may be provided to the military banking facility upon certification by a banking facility officer that the facility has a returned or dishonored check negotiated by the individual or the individual's personal guarantor on a loan and that if restitution is not made by the individual, the U.S. Government will be liable for the losses the facility may incur.
PRIVACY ACT SYSTEMS

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION (GSA)

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the General Services Administration (GSA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES AND RECORDS ADMINISTRATION (NARA)

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE MERIT SYSTEMS PROTECTION BOARD

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the Merit Systems Protection Board, including the Office of the Special Counsel for the purpose of litigation, including administrative proceedings, appeals; special studies of the civil service systems, review of OPM or component rules components rules and regulations, investigation of alleged or possible prohibited personnel practices; including administrative proceedings involving any individual subject of a DOD investigation, and such other functions, promulgated in 5 U.S.C. 1205 and 1206, or as may be authorized by law.

ROUTINE USE-COUNTERINTELLIGENCE PURPOSES

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use outside the DoD or the U.S. Government for the purpose of counterintelligence activities authorized by U.S. Law or Executive Order or for the purpose of enforcing laws which protect the national security of the United States.

System name:

Supervisors' Records and Reports of Employee Attendance and Leave.

System location:

This system is decentralized by organization and geography to the supervisory level at all Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) field activities and Headquarters DLA. All records described are not necessarily maintained by all supervisors.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

DLA employees and certain former DLA employees.

Categories of records in the system:

- Schedules of planned leave, records of sick and annual leave and other types of leave taken, records of tardiness, absences without leave, leaves without pay, administrative leave, and other absences of types of leave. In some cases the record may also contain notation of time actually present, time on temporary duty (TDY) and time on special assignments or temporary assignments. Records may be kept by the hour, day, week, pay period, quarter, or year. While records maintained in accordance with this notice are all 'hard copy' or manual in nature, some of the records may be produced by automated data processing as printouts from automated payroll and leave accounting systems described under other notices.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

5 U.S.C. 61 and 63; Leave.

Purpose(s):

Data is used by supervisors and by civilian personnel office staff to monitor sick leave use and detect patterns of attendance and sick leave usage which may be indications of problems in the use of leave or which should be discussed with the employee. To schedule annual leave in an organized, fair and planned way. To identify employees who may be congratulated for accumulation of sick leave or limited use of sick leave. To prepare statistical reports on leave use and attendance matters and for statistical evaluation and analysis of leave usage patterns. To post daily leave usage onto time and attendance reports or records and to answer employee questions on leave charges.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

See blanket routine uses as set forth above.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

- Paper records in file folders or binders or file index cards.
- Other

Retrievability:

- By employee name.
- Other

Safeguards:

- Any part of the records containing any personal or potentially sensitive data are maintained in locked filing cabinets or supervisors' locked desks.
- Other

Retention and disposal:

- Records are kept for one year and then destroyed.
- Other

System manager(s) and address:

Civilian Personnel Officer at each DLA Primary Level Field Activity.

Notification procedure:

Employees who wish to determine what leave records are being maintained at supervisory or personnel office level should address their inquiries to their immediate supervisor or to the primary level field activity office of civilian personnel.

Record access procedures:

Personal requests for record content should be made to the immediate supervisor or to System Manager. Written request for assistance in obtaining access should be directed to the System Manager, and should contain the full name and organizational location of the employee. Official mailing addresses of the System Manager are in the DLA Directory. For personal visits to System Manager, the individual should provide some acceptable identification, such as activity identification card or driver's license.

Contesting record procedures:

The agency rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record source categories:

Payroll office and payroll records, including automated payroll systems, employee's supervisors, timekeepers, time and attendance clerks, leave slips (Standard Form 71 or equivalent).

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

System name:
Personnel Security Files.

System location:
Primary System - Investigator records containing unfavorable information requiring clearance action by the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) Central Clearance Group (CCG) and records pertaining to persons involved in highly sensitive projects: Command Security Officer, HQ DLA.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
All civilian employees and military personnel who have been the subject of a National Agency Check (NAC); a Background Investigation (BI) or Special Background Investigation (SBI) pertaining to their qualifications for access to classified information.

Categories of records in the system:
Reports of investigations conducted by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM), the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), the Defense Investigative Service (DIS), the investigative units of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, and other Federal investigative organizations. Also, evidence of security clearance and access to classified information granted to individuals and certifications of security briefings and debriefings signed by individuals.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Executive Order 10450, as amended.

Purpose(s):
The investigator reports are used by appropriate Security Officers and Commanders or other designated officials as a basis for determining a person's eligibility for access to information classified in the interests of national defense.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See blanket routine uses set forth above.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
- Storage:
  - Paper records in file folders.
- Retrievalability:
  - Reports are filed alphabetically by name, date and place of birth. No indices are used to retrieve individual records from the system.
- Safeguards:
  - As a minimum, records are stored in locked containers wherever authorized DLA personnel are not present to control access to them. Any of these files containing classified documents are maintained in security containers approved by HQ DLA for storage of classified information.
- Retention and disposal:
  - Reports are retained as long as the person is employed or assigned to DLA. After the person leaves DLA, the reports are placed in an inactive file, retained for two years, and then destroyed or returned to the agency which conducted the investigation.
- System manager(s) and address:
  - Command Security Officer, HQ DLA; Security Officers of Primary Level Field Activities.
- Notification procedure:
  - Written or personal requests for information may be directed to the System Managers.
- Record access procedures:
  - Official mailing addresses of the System Manager are in the DLA Directory. Written requests for information should contain the full name, date and place of birth, current address and telephone number of the requester. For personal visits, the requester must be able to provide some acceptable identification (e.g., driver's license, parent's name, identification card, date and place of birth, dates and place(s) of employment with DLA, if applicable). Written requests must be accompanied by a notarized statement attesting to the requester's identity and containing the following: 'I understand that knowingly or willfully seeking to record about another individual under false pretenses is punishable by a fine of up to 5,000 dollars under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974.'

Contesting record procedures:
The DLA rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record source categories:
Reports of investigations conducted by the OPM, FBI, DIS, investigative units of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, as well as other Federal investigative organizations.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
- Parts of this system may be exempt under Title 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) as applicable. Agency rules pertaining to this exemption are set forth in appendix C of 32 CFR part 1286 and DLA Regulation 5400.21. For additional information, contact the System Manager.

System name:
Personnel Security Information Subsystem of COSACS.

System location:
Primary System-Central computer programs and files maintained at the Defense Logistics Agency Administrative Support Center (DASC) which is located at Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA provides a central index for information regarding personnel security clearance and security eligibility of civilian employees and military personnel within the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA). Ready reference on-line access is furnished to Defense Logistics Agency Primary Level Field Activities (PLFAs), to Principal Staff Elements (PSEs) at Headquarters, DLA and Department of Defense Management Support Activities (DoDMSAs) supported by DASC, concerning personnel under their jurisdiction.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
All DLA civilian and military personnel who have been found eligible for employment in a sensitive position or eligible for or granted a security clearance or access to information classified in the interests of national security.

Categories of records in the system:
Computer record on each individual in the Personnel Security Information Subsystem of COSACS (Command Security Automated Control System) Master File. Computer listings are generated from this master, in the form of a Master File Archival Record and Record Activity Clearance Eligibility Listing (RACEL), and identify those DLA personnel who are assigned to or who are eligible to occupy sensitive positions and those DLA personnel who have been either authorized access to classified information or found eligible for such access.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Executive Orders (E.O.) 9397, 10450, 10865, 12333, 12356.

Purpose(s):
- Provide a computerized, centralized source of security eligibility and clearance information for all DLA security officers and appropriate supervisors. The purpose for soliciting and using the SSAN is for positive identification and retrieval of records.
- These records are used by DLA Security Officers at all levels as well as by other appropriate DLA supervisory personnel to determine whether or not DLA civilian employees are eligible for or occupy sensitive positions; whether they or assigned military personnel have been cleared for or granted access to classified information; and the level of such clearance of access, if granted.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
- Clearance status and other clearance related information of individual DLA employees may be provided to the appropriate officials of other Federal Government agencies and Federal Government contractors when necessary in the course of official business. See also the Blanket Routine Uses set forth at the beginning of the DLA record system notices.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
- Storage:
  - Records are maintained in a combination of paper and automated files.

Retrievability:
- Records are contained in the data base and are retrievable by name, social security account number (SSAN), job series, security eligibility, security clearance, organization, and type of investigation.

Safeguards:
- Records, as well as on-line input and computer terminals, are maintained in areas that conform to applicable DLA security policy.
Access to and retrieval from computerized files are limited to authorized users and are password protected/restricted.

Retention and disposal:
New listings are published quarterly and prior microfiche and listings are destroyed as soon as the new lists are verified but in no case beyond 90 days. Magnetic records are purged one year after the individual departs DLA.

System manager(s) and address:
Staff Director, Office of Command Security, ATTN: DLA-1, Headquarters DLA, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100, and the Officers of all DLA PLFAs. Refer to the appendix at the end of the DLA notice for the applicable addresses.

Notification procedure:
Written or personal requests for information may be directed to the appropriate System Manager.

Record access procedures:
Official mailing addresses of the DLA System Managers are in the DLA address directory of the appendix to the DLA system of records notices. Written requests for information should contain the full name, SSAN, current address and telephone number of the individual. For personal visits, the individual should be able to provide some acceptable identification, such as driver's license or employment identification card, and give some verbal information that can be verified from his or her file.

DLA users may utilize an Audio Response Unit (ARU) accessed by SSAN to retrieve the individual's security clearance only.

Contesting record procedures:
The System's rules provide access to records, contesting contents, and appealing initial determinations about an individual concerned may be obtained from the System Manager and are set forth in DLA Regulation 5400.21 (32 CFR part 1286).

Record source categories:
Certificates of clearance or personnel security investigation previously completed by the Office of Personnel Management, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Defense Investigative Service, investigative units of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and other Federal agencies. Personnel security files maintained on individual.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

System name:
Criminal Incidents/Investigations File.

System location:
Primary System—Command Security Office and Office of General Counsel, Headquarters, Defense Logistics Agency (HQ DLA), Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100 for case files on all incidents of known or suspected criminal activity or other serious incidents.

Decentralized Segments—DLA Primary Level Field Activities (PLFA) for above described files and files of a minor nature. Official mailing addresses are published as an appendix to the agency's compilation of record system notices.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Civilian and military personnel of DLA, contractor employees, and other persons who committed or are suspected of having committed a felony or misdemeanor on DLA controlled activities or facilities; or outside of those areas in cases where DLA is or may be a party of interest.

Categories of records in the system:
Reports of investigation, messages, statements of witnesses, subjects and victims, photographs, laboratory reports, data collection reports, and other related papers.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purpose(s):
Information is maintained for the purpose of monitoring the progress of investigations, identifying crime conducive conditions, preventing crime and loss, and preparing statistical data and reports required by higher authority. Information in this system is used by DLA Security and General Counsel personnel to monitor progress of cases and to develop non-personal statistical data on crime and crime investigative support for the future.

DLA General Counsel also uses the data to review cases, determine proper legal action, and coordinate on all available remedies. DLA managers use the information in this system to determine actions required to correct the causes of losses and to take appropriate action against DLA personnel in cases of their involvement.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
The Defense Logistics Agency "Blanket Routine Uses" published at the beginning of DLA's compilation of record system notices apply to this record system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Combination of paper and automated files.

Retrievability:
Hard copy records are filed chronologically by DLA case number and cross-indexed to individual or firm name. Automated records are retrieved by name of the individual or firm, DLA case number, PLFA number or activity code.

Safeguards:
Records, as well as computer terminals, are maintained in areas accessible only to DLA Security and Office of General Counsel personnel. In addition, access to computerized files is limited to authorized users and is password protected.

Retention and disposal:
Paper records from external law enforcement and investigative organizations are destroyed 1 year after the receipt of a final report in each case, or when no longer needed, whichever is later.

Criminal investigative reports generated by DLA investigators/detectives are retained for 25 years, either in hard copy or microfiche, as recommended by the Defense Investigative Service, Defense Central Investigation Index (DCII). Automated records are retained for 10 years in the on-line mode and then transferred to magnetic tape with retention of 25 years.

System manager(s) and address:
Staff Director, Office of Command Security, HQ DLA, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100 and all other DLA Primary Level Field Activities. Official mailing addresses are published as an appendix to the agency's compilation of record system notices.

Notification procedure:
Individuals seeking to determine whether information about themselves is contained in this system of records should address written inquiries to the Staff Director, Command Security Office, Office of General Counsel, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100, or to the DLA PLFA where employed. Official mailing addresses are published as an appendix to the agency's compilation of record system notices.

Individual must provide full name, current address, and telephone numbers.

Record access procedures:
Individuals seeking access to records about themselves contained in this system of records should address written inquiries to the Staff Director, Command Security Office, HQ DLA, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100, or to the DLA Primary Level Field Activity where employed. Official mailing addresses are published as an appendix to the agency's compilation of record system notices.

Individual must provide full name, current address, and telephone numbers.

Contesting record procedures:
DLA rules for contesting contents and appealing initial agency determinations are contained in DLA Regulation 5400.21, "Personal Privacy and Rights of Individuals Regarding Their Personal Records"; 32 CFR part 1286, or may be obtained from the system manager.

Record source categories:
Reports of investigations by DLA investigators and Security Officers and Federal, state, and local law enforcement or investigative agencies.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
Portions of this system may be exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(2). An exemption rule for this record system has been promulgated in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(1), (2), (3), (c) and (e) and is published in DLA Regulation 5400.21 and the Code of Federal Regulations at 32 CFR part 1286.

These records provided by OPM for approved computer matching.
- Non-appropriated fund employment/personnel records consist of Social Security Number, name, and work address.

Authority for the maintenance of the system:

Purposes:
The purpose of the system of records is to provide a single central facility within the Department of Defense to assess manpower trends, support personnel functions to perform longitudinal statistical analyses, identify current and former DoD civilian and military personnel for purposes of detecting fraud and abuse of pay and personnel programs, and to collect debts owed to the United States Government and state and local governments.
- All records in this record system are subject to use in authorized computer matching programs within the Department of Defense and with other Federal agencies or non-Federal agencies as regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
- The Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA), Statistical Policy and Research Office, Office of Information Management and Statistics, DVA Management Sciences Division to provide military personnel employment and pay data for the purpose of selection samples for surveys asking veterans about the use of veteran benefits and satisfaction with DVA services, and to validate eligibility for DVA benefits; and to analyze the cost to the individual of military service under the Veteran's Group Life Insurance program.
- The Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA) to provide identifying military personnel data to the OPM and its contractor, the Prudential Insurance Company, for the purpose of notifying members... of the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR) of their right to apply for Veteran's Group Life Insurance coverage.

To the Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA) to conduct computer matching programs regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a), for the purpose of:

1. Providing full identification of active duty military personnel, including full-time National Guard/Reserve support personnel, for use in the administration of DVA's Compensation and Pension benefits program (38 U.S.C. 3104(c), 3006-3008). The information is used to determine continued eligibility for DVA disability compensation or to recipients who have returned to active duty so that benefits can be adjusted or terminated as required and steps taken by DVA to collect and recoup improper payments.

2. Providing military personnel and financial data to the Veterans Benefits Administration, DVA for the purpose of determining initial eligibility and any changes in eligibility status to insure proper payments of benefits for GI Bill education and training benefits by the DVA under the Montgomery GI Bill (Title 10 U.S.C. Chapter 106-Selected Reserve and Title 38 U.S.C., Chapter 30-Active Duty). The administrative responsibilities designated to both agencies by the law require that data be exchanged in administering the programs.

3. Providing identification of reserve duty, including full-time support National Guard/Reserve military personnel, to the DVA, for the purpose of deducting reserve time serve from any DVA disability compensation paid or waiver of VA benefit. The law (10 U.S.C. 684) prohibits receipt of reserve pay and DVA compensation for the same time period, however, it does permit waiver of DVA compensation to do reserve pay.

4. Providing identification of former active duty military personnel who received separation payments to the DVA for the purpose of deducting such repayment from any DVA disability compensation paid or waiver of VA benefit. The law (10 U.S.C. 3104(c), 3006-3008). The information is to be used to process all DVA award actions more efficiently, reduce subsequent overpayment collection efforts, and minimize erroneous payments.

6. To the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) to conduct computer matching programs regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a) for the purpose of:

1. Exchanging personnel and financial information on certain military retirees, who are also civilian employees of the Federal government, for the purpose of identifying those individuals subject to a limitation on the amount of military retired pay they can receive under the Dual Compensation Act (5 U.S.C. 5532), and to permit adjustments to military retired pay by the Defense Finance and Accounting Service to take steps to recoup excess of that permitted under the dual compensation and pay cap restrictions.

2. Exchanging personnel and financial data on civil service annuitants (including disability annuitants under age 60) who are reemployed by DoD to insure that annuities of DoD reemployed annuitants are terminated where applicable, and salaries are correctly offset where as required by law (5 U.S.C. 8331, 8344, 8401 and 8468).

3. Exchanging personnel and financial data to identify individuals who are improperly receiving military retired pay and credit for military service in their civil service annuity, or annuities based on the "guaranteed minimum" disability disability and/or prevent erroneous payments under the Civil Service Retirement Act (CSRRA) 5 U.S.C. 8331 and the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act (FERSA) 5 U.S.C. 8411. DoD's legal authority is 5 U.S.C. 8401.

4. Exchanging civil service and Reserve military personnel data to identify those individuals of the Reserve forces who are employed by the Federal government in a civilian position. The purpose of the matching is to identify those personnel in specified positions as civilians and cannot be released for extended active duty in the event of mobilization. Employing Federal agencies are informed of the reserve status of those affected personnel so that a choice can be made in determining the position or the reserve assignment can be made by the individual concerned. The authority for conducting the computer match is contained in E.O 11190, Providing for the Screening of the Ready Reserve of the Armed Services.

To the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for the purpose of obtaining home addresses to contact Reserve component members for mobilization purposes and for tax administration. For the purpose of conducting aggregate statistical analyses on the impact of DoD personnel of actual changes in the tax laws and to conduct aggregate statistical analyses for the purpose of determining the impact of the tax laws and to conduct aggregate statistical analysis of the impact of the tax laws and regulations, to identify non-compliance and delinquent filers.

To the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS):

1. To the Office of the Inspector General, DHHS, for the purpose of identification and investigation of DoD employees and military personnel who may be receiving funds under the Family of Dependents Children Program.

2. To the Office of Child Support Enforcement, DHHS, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 653 and Pub. L. 94-305, to assist state child support offices in locating absent parents in order to establish and/or enforce child support obligations.

3. To the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), DHHS for the purpose of monitoring HCFA reimbursement to civilian hospitals for Medicare patient treatment. The data will ensure no Department of Defense physicians, interns or residents are counted for HCFA reimbursement to hospitals.

4. To the Social Security Administration (SSA), Office of Research and Statistics, DHHS for the purpose of conducting statistical analyses of impact of military service and use of GI Bill benefits on long term earnings.

5. To the Bureau of Supplemental Security Income, SSA, DHHS to conduct computer matching programs regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a), for the purpose of verifying information provided to the SSA by applicants and recipients who are retired military members or their survivors for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits. By law (42 U.S.C. 1383) the SSA is required to verify eligibility factors and other relevant information provided by the SSA applicant from independent or collateral sources and obtain additional information as necessary before making SSI determinations of eligibility, payment amounts or adjustments there to.

To the Selective Service System (SSS) for the purpose of facilitating compliance of members and former members of the Armed Forces, both active and reserve, with the provisions of the Selective Service registration regulations (50 U.S.C. App. 451 and E.O. 11623).

To DoD Civilian Contractors for the purpose of performing research on manpower problems for statistical analyses.

To the Department of Labor (DOL) to reconcile the accuracy of unemployment compensation payments made to former DoD civilian employees and military members by the states. To the Department of Labor to survey military separations to determine the effectiveness of programs assisting veterans to obtain employment.

To the U.S. Coast Guard for the purpose of the Department of Transportation (DOT) to conduct computer matching programs regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a), for the purpose of exchanging personnel and financial information on certain retired U.S. Armed Forces military members who are also members of the Federal government, for the purpose of identifying those individuals subject to a limitation on the amount of military pay they can receive under the Dual Compensation Act (5 U.S.C. 5532), and to permit adjustments to military retired pay by the U.S. Coast Guard to take steps to recoup excess of that permitted under the dual compensation and pay cap restrictions.

To Federal and Quasi-Federal agencies, territorial, state, and local governments to support personnel functions requiring data from prior military service credit for their employees or for job applications. To determine continuing eligibility and help eliminate fraud and abuse in Federal Civil Service programs and to collect debts and other overpayments owed to these programs. To assist in the return of unclaimed property or assets escheated to states of civilian employees and military members and to provide members and former members with information and assistance regarding various benefit entitlements, such as state bonuses for veterans, etc. Information released includes name, Social Security Number, and military or civilian address of individuals. To detect fraud, waste and abuse pursuant to the authority contained in the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended (Pub. L. 95-452) for the purpose of determining the extent of improper payments in any Federal programs that are subject to Federal benefits program requirements.

To private consumer reporting agencies to comply with the requirements to update security clearance investigations of DoD personnel.

To consumer reporting agencies to obtain current addresses of separated military personnel to notify them of potential benefits eligibility.
To Defense contractors to monitor the employment of former DoD employees and members subject to the provisions of 10 U.S.C. 2397.

To financial depository institutions to assist in locating individuals with dormant accounts in danger or reverting to state ownership by escheatment for accounts of DoD civilian employees and military members.

To any Federal, state or local agency to conduct authorized computer matching programs regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, (5 U.S.C. 552a) for the purposes of identifying and locating delinquent debtors on delinquency claims owed the Department of Defense or the United States Government under the Debt Collection Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-365).

To state and local law enforcement investigative agencies to obtain criminal history information for the purpose of evaluating military service performance and security clearance procedures (10 U.S.C. 2358).

To the United States Postal Service to conduct computer matching programs regulated by the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, (5 U.S.C. 552a), for the purposes of:

1. Exchanging civil service and Reserve military personnel data to identify those individuals of the Reserve forces who are employed by the Federal government in a civilian position. The purpose of the match is to identify those particular individuals occupying critical positions as civilians and who cannot be released for extended active duty in the event of mobilization. The Postal Service is informed of the results of the those affected personnel so that a choice of terminating the position or the reserve assignment can be made by the individual concerned. The authority for conducting the computer match is contained in E.O. 11190, Providing for the Screening of the Ready Reserve of the Armed Forces.

2. Exchanging personnel and financial information on certain military retirees who are also civilian employees of the Federal government, for the purpose of identifying those individuals subject to a limitation on the amount of retired military pay they can receive under the Dual Compensation Act (5 U.S.C. 5532), and permit adjustments to military retired pay to be made by the Defense Finance and Accounting Service and to take steps to recoup excess of that permitted under the dual compensation and pay cap restrictions.

S322.35 DMDC

System name:

Survey and Census Data Base.

System location:

Primary location—W.R. Church Computer Center, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, CA 93940-5000.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All individuals targeted for a census who returned census forms or individuals who were selected at random for survey administration and who completed survey forms. Survey data is collected on a periodic basis. Individuals include both civilians and military members and all persons eligible for DoD benefits. Among civilian respondents are young men and women of military age and applicants to the military services.

Categories of records in the system:

Survey responses and census information.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

10 U.S.C. 136 and 2358; Executive Order 9397; DoD Directive 5124.2, "Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel)."

Purpose(s):

The purposes of the system are to count DoD personnel and beneficiaries for evacuation planning, apportionment when directed by oversight authority and for other policy planning purposes, and to obtain characteristic information on DoD personnel and households to support manpower and benefits research; to sample attributes and/or discern perceptions of social problems observed by DoD personnel and to support other manpower research activities; to sample attitudes toward enlistment in and determine reasons for enlistment decisions. This information is used to support manpower research sponsored by the Department of Defense and the military services.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

The information may be used to support manpower research sponsored by other Federal agencies or for any of the Defense Logistics Agency's "Blanket Routine Uses" that appear at the beginning of DLA's compilation of record system notices.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:

Magnetic computer tape.

Retrievability:

Records can be retrieved by Social Security Number, by institutional affiliation such as service membership; and by individual characteristics such as educational level.

Safeguards:

Tapes stored at the primary location are kept in a locked storage cage in a controlled access area; tapes stored at the back-up locations are kept in locked storage areas in buildings which are locked after hours.

Retention and disposal:

Computer records are permanent; survey questionnaires and census forms are destroyed after computer records have been created.

System manager(s) and address:

Chief, Defense Manpower Data Center, 1600 Wilson Blvd, 4th Floor, Arlington, VA 22209-2593.

Notification procedure:

Individuals seeking to determine whether this system of records contains information about themselves should address written inquiries to the Chief, Defense Manpower Data Center, 1600 Wilson Boulevard, 4th Floor, Arlington, VA 22209-2593.

Written requests should contain the full name, Social Security Number, and current address and telephone numbers of the individual. In addition, the appropriate data and location where the survey was completed should be provided.

For personal visits, the individual should be able to provide some acceptable identification such as driver's license or military or other identification card.

Record access procedures:

Individuals seeking access to records about themselves contained in this system of records should send inquiries to the Chief, Defense Manpower Data Center, 1600 Wilson Boulevard, 4th Floor, Arlington, VA 22209-2593.

S322.45 DLAM/DMLPO

System name:

Active Duty Military Personnel Data Bank System.

System location:

Staff Director, Military Personnel, HQ Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) (DLA-K), and Heads of Primary Level Field Activities (PLFAs).

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

All military personnel currently assigned to the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) and history records of those individuals previously assigned.

Categories of records in the system:

The computer records and print-outs containing information as to organization, position, identification grade, service specialty, position title, specialty requirements, education requirements, geographic location, name, service, temporary date of rank, social security number, duty specialty, permanent grade, permanent date of rank, date assigned, date of rotation, remarks, primary specialty, job related experience, civilian education, military school, date of birth, retirement date, separation or expiration of enlistment, and aero rating.

Purpose(s):

The purpose of the file is to insure effective personnel/career management for DLA and DLA military personnel. The printouts are used by the Staff Director and Deputy Staff Director, personnel in the Chief, Personnel Division and his staff specialists. An extract printout of the specific PLFA is used by the Commander and his personal staff. The data bank is used to prepare the alphabetical roster, rotation roster, colonel roster, listings of specialist codes, service listings, functional listing, and advanced degree listing. These documents are used to accurately report data on the individual and position to which he is assigned, requisition replacements, select assigned personnel for higher level positions, provide assigned strength figures for OSD, and assist individual military personnel in their career management.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

See also blank routine uses set forth above.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Magnetic tape and disc and computer paper printouts.

Retrievability:
Alphabetically by last name.

Safeguards:
Maintained in areas accessible only to authorized personnel.

Retention and disposal:
Printouts are held for one year and then destroyed. The computer tapes are held for five years and then degaussed.

System manager(s) and address:
Staff Director, Military Personnel, HQ DLA.

Notification procedure:
The name of the requester should be sent to the System Manager. The requester may visit the Office of the System Manager, and present the appropriate military identification card.

Record access procedures:
Contact the System Manager. Official mailings addresses are in the DLA Directory.

Contesting record procedures:
The DLA rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determination may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record source categories:
Military personnel records and Position Distribution Reports.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

S322.50DLA-LZ

System name:
Defense Enrollment/Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS).

System location:
Primary location: W.R. Church Computer Center, Navy Postgraduate School Monterey, CA 93940.

Decentralized segments—A support center and an eligibility center are maintained and operated by a contractor in Monterey, CA and Alexandria, VA; two data processing centers in Sacramento, CA and Camp Hill, PA and the Processing Center for Automation of DoD Forms 1171 in Monterey, CA.

Back-up files maintained at the Defense Manpower Data Center, 550 Camino El Estero, Monterey, CA 93940-3231.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Active duty Armed Forces personnel and their dependents, retired Armed Forces personnel and their dependents; surviving dependents of deceased active duty retired non personnel; active duty and retired Coast Guard personnel; active duty and retired Public Health Service (PHS) personnel (Commissioned Corps) and their dependents; and active duty and retired National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) employees (Commissioned Corps) and their dependents; and State Department employees employed in a foreign country and their dependents and any other individuals entitled to care under the health care program; providers and potential providers of health care; and any individual who submits a health care claim.

Categories of records in the system:
Computer files containing beneficiary’s name, Service or Social Security Number of sponsor, enrollment number, relationship of beneficiary to sponsor, residence address of beneficiary or sponsor, date of birth of beneficiary, sex of beneficiary, branch of service of sponsor, dates of beginning and ending eligibility, number of dependents of sponsor, primary duty location of sponsor, race and ethnic origin of beneficiary, occupation of beneficiary, employment of beneficiary, rank/pay grade of sponsor, and claim records of CHAMPUS claims containing enrolled, patient and provider data such as cause of treatment, amount of payment, name and Social Security or tax ID number of providers of care. Information on individual records may extend to blood test results, dental care premium codes of dental x-rays.

Purpose(s):
The purpose of the system is to provide a data base for determining eligibility to receive health care benefits under the Uniformed Health Services Delivery System and CHAMPUS, to support DoD health care management programs, to provide identification of deceased members, to monitor the accuracy of payments and to identify and collect overpaid amounts and to detect fraud and abuse of the benefit program by claimants and providers.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Department of Health and Human Services; Veterans Administration, Federal Preparedness Agency; Commerce Department and Transportation Department for the conduct of health care studies, for the planning and allocation of medical resources, for support of the DEERS enrollment process, and to identify individuals not entitled to the benefits. The data provided includes data on ages, sex, residence and other demographic parameters. To other federal agencies to identify fraud and abuse of the federal agency's programs and to identify debtors and collect debts and overpayments in the DoD health care programs. State, local and territorial governments to help eliminate fraud and abuse in their benefits programs. To provide dental care providers to assure treatment eligibility.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Records are maintained on magnetic tapes and disks are housed in a controlled computer media library.

Retrievability:
Records about individuals are retrieved by an algorithm determined by contractor which uses name, enrollment number, Social Security number, date of birth, rank and duty location as possible inputs. Retrievals are made on a summary basis by geographic characteristics and location and demographic characteristics. Information about individuals will not be distinguishable in such summary retrievals. Retrievals for the purposes of generating address lists for direct mail distribution of health care information may be made using selection criteria based on geographic and demographic keys.

Safeguards:
Computerized records are maintained in a controlled area accessible only to authorized personnel. Entry to these areas is restricted to those personnel with a valid requirement and authorization to enter. Physical entry is restricted by the use of locks, guards, administrative procedures (e.g., fire protection regulations). Exits used solely for emergency situations are secured to prevent unauthorized intrusion. Personal data stored at a separate location for backup purposes is protected at least comparably to the protection provided at the primary location.

Requirements for protection of information are binding on contractors of their representative and are subject to the following minimum standards:

Access to personal information is restricted to those who require the records in the performance of their official duties, and to the individuals who are the subjects of the record or their authorized representatives. Access to personal information is further restricted by the use of passwords which are changed periodically.

All those officials whose duties require access to, or processing and maintenance of personal information are trained in the proper safeguarding and use of the information.

Retention and disposal:

Health data shall be maintained as long as the individual is eligible to receive health care services from the Uniformed Health Sciences Delivery System. The records are maintained for two (2) years after termination of eligibility. The records may be disposed of or destroyed in accordance with DoD Component record management regulations which conform to the controlling disposition of such material as set forth in 44 U.S.C.
See the blanket routine uses set forth at the beginning of the DLA listings of systems of records which are also applicable to this record system.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Magnetic computer tape and disk.

Retrievability:
Retrieveable by Social Security Account Number.

Safeguards:
At NAVDAF, tapes are stored in a locked vault in the machine room. The vault contains a controlled access area which can be accessed only by the AP Security Officers, OIC, or tape librarian. Tapes are mounted for processing by use of the Tape Management System whereby each tape contains a unique I.D. and account number. Only authorized users can issue job control instructions at program run time to instruct the operator in mounting appropriate tapes. Back-up tapes are stored in a separate locked vault located at the opposite end of the facility.

Disk storage is protected with passwords at both account and file levels. The password protection also controls type of access to the file.

The original tapes are maintained in a locked room, with restricted access, at Defense Training and Performance Data Center, 3280 Progress Drive, Orlando, FL. 32826-3229

Retention and disposal:
These files constitute a historical data base and are permanent.

System manager(s) and address:

S322.51 DLA-LZ

System name:
Training Cohort Data Base.

System location:
Naval Automation Data Facility (NAVDAF), Naval Training Center, Building 2040, Orlando, FL 32813-5013.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
All military officers and enlisted personnel who entered active duty after July 1, 1971, or who became a member of a reserve component after October 1, 1979, DoD civilian employees of the military services since December 31, 1976.

Categories of records in the system:
Computerized records, some of which are organized into year-of-entry cohorts. These records are copied from existing data files and reports (see Sources below). Longitudinal information consists of Social Security Account Number; demographic and accession-related information such as age, sex, race, ethnicity, mental aptitude scores, physical characteristics, date of entry; military personnel information such as rank, term of service, promotion dates; training and occupational information such as inservice schooling, on-the-job training, and military occupation with corresponding dates; training outcome and job performance measurements; and separation-related information such as eligibility to reenlist.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purposes:
The purpose of the system of records is to provide a central facility that will support the DoD training community in the following activities: Reviewing training requirements and assessing occupational trends; examining training attrition patterns, training management options, methods, and efficiency; tracking occupational skill and experience inventories, and changes in occupation pipelines; and developing training, performance, readiness linkages to support research and planning activities.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
Purpose(s):
The purpose of the system of records is to provide the Department of Defense (DoD) with a central record of all debts and debtors either under current or past financial obligation to the United States Government to control and report on the debt collection process.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
Other Federal Agencies - Records of debtors obligated to DoD, but currently employed by another Federal agency are referred to the employing agency under the provisions of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 for collection of the debt. Records of debtors employed by DoD, but obligated to another Federal agency will be released to the other agency upon collection of the debt.

Internal Revenue Service - Record may be referred to obtain home address.
Office of Personnel Management - Records may be referred to obtain current employment location.
Credit Bureaus and Debt Collection Agencies - Records may be referred to private contract organizations to comply with the provisions of the Debt Collection Act of 1982 for non-payment of a outstanding debt.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Records are stored on magnetic tape.
Retrievability:
Records are retrieved by social security number and name from a computerized index.

Safeguards:
Primary location - W. R. Church Computer Center - tapes are stored in a controlled access area; tapes can be physically accessed only by computer center personnel and can be mounted for processing only if the appropriate security code is provided.
Back-up location - Monterey, California - tapes are stored in rooms protected with cyber lock systems, building is locked after hours, and properly cleared and authorized personnel have access.

Retention and disposal:
Records are retained indefinitely as a financial record.

System manager(s) and address:
Deputy Director, Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC), 550 Camino El Estero, Monterey, California 93940.

Notification procedure:
Information may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record access procedures:
Requests from individuals should be addressed to the System Manager. Written requests for information should contain the full name, Social Security Number, and current address and telephone number of the individual.

Contesting record procedures:
Contact System Manager for the DLA rules on contesting initial determinations. The record accuracy may also be contested through the administrative processes contained in Pub. L. 97-365, 'Debt Collection Act of 1982'.

Record source categories:
The military services and any other Federal agency.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

Purpose(s):
The purpose of the system is to provide information readily available in the day-to-day operation of the Reserve Mobilization Program. It is used by the Staff Director, his Deputy and the Reserve personnel specialist. Data is used in preparation of personnel actions such as reassignments, classification actions, promotions, scheduling and verifying active duty and inactive duty training.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

System name:
- Training and Employee Development Record System.

System location:
- Headquarters, (HQ) Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) and Primary Level Field Activities.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
- Civilian employees, U.S. Citizens and foreign national direct hires receiving training supported by the Federal Government, paid from appropriated funds. Department of Defense military personnel may be included in the automated training information system, and non-appropriated fund personnel may be included in some of the installation manual records.

Categories of records in the system:
- Automated and non-automated records are maintained reflecting information pertaining to the employee's identification, Social Security Number, (SSN) occupational status (series, grade level and supervisory status) course identification, course length, category and purpose of training received, date on which training was completed, associated costs, pre-post test results, and similar data. Input documents for the system include, but are not limited to complete automated forms, training reports, authorization and records, key punched cards. The manual files are maintained in paper folders covering employees' registration and records of training documents.

- Apprentice, on-the-job training program, and similar trainee intake program manual and automated records are maintained, reflecting information pertaining to subject employee's identification, date of birth, entrance date of program, dates and nature of personnel actions which occurred during fiscal year, student progress, and statistical data which affects the numbers of apprentices in training as of a given date. At HQ DLA, nomination forms and documents (non-automated) for centrally-administered education and training programs are maintained. The manual files contain the candidate's nomination documents, training requests, enrollment and registration and other documents related to training. Manual files are maintained at installations regarding courses conducted on their premises, or for which they sponsor, listing such things as completion dates and course participants. Additionally, manual files are typically found at the field activities containing information regarding an employee's supervision. When the OPD indicates that an employee has participated in supervisory training. Files are often maintained regarding an employee's certification/recertification or demonstrated proficiency in one or more skills areas; an activity-wide annual training plan also should be maintained, as well as individual training plans. Files are also maintained regarding professional licenses held by installation personnel.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
5 U.S.C. 4103, 4118, and 4115.

Purposes:
Information is used by officials and employees of DLA and other DoD Components in the performance of their official duties related to the management of the civilian employee training programs, the design, development, maintenance and operation of the manual and automated system of record keeping and reporting; and the screening and selection of candidates for centrally administered programs; and administration of grievance, appeals, complaints and litigation involving the disclosure of records of the training programs.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
Information is also used by representatives of the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) on matters relating to the inspection, audit or evaluation of DoD civilian training programs, or such other matters under the jurisdiction of the OPM. The Comptroller General or any of his authorized representatives in the courses of the performance of duties of the General Accounting Office relating to the Defense components civilian training programs. The Attorney General of the United States or his authorized representatives in connection with litigation, law enforcement or other matters under the direct jurisdiction of the Department of Justice or carried out as the legal representative of the Executive Branch agencies. Officials and employees of the Executive Branch of government upon request in the performance of their official duties related to the screening and selection of candidates for programs sponsored by their organization. Representatives of the U.S. Department of Labor on matters relating to the inspection, survey, audit or evaluation of apprentice training programs and other such matters under the jurisdiction of the Labor Department. Representatives of the Veterans Administration on matters relating to the inspection, survey, audit or evaluation of apprentice and on-the-job training programs. The computer-systems group contractor (or other such contractor) and its employees for the purpose of card punch recording of data from employee training documents. A duly appointed hearing examiner or arbitrator for the purpose of conducting a hearing in connection with an employee's grievance involving the disclosure of the records of the training program. Any person who is given a contract pursuant to a negotiated labor agreement to hear an employee's grievance involving the disclosure of the records in order to evaluate training and employee development record systems.

The Senate or the House of Representatives of the United States or any committee or subcommittee thereof, any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee, or Joint Committee on matters within their jurisdiction requiring disclosure of the files or records of civilian training programs.

Representatives of educational institutions which have been awarded contracts to conduct training in order to create and maintain individual training records of those who attend.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Automated records are stored on magnetic tapes, drums, computer printouts, and on punched cards. Manual records are stored in paper file folders.

Retrievability:
Automated records are retrieved by SSN and name, or by one, or a combination of data elements contained in the program master file. Manual records are retrieved by employee last name, by course control information, or by training program title.

Safeguards:
The computer facilities are located in restricted areas accessible only to authorized persons that are properly screened, cleared and trained. Manual records and computer printouts are available only to authorized personnel having as need-to-know.

Retention and disposal:
Manual records are maintained on a fiscal year basis and are retained for varying periods from one to five fiscal years. For centrally administered programs, files on selected candidates are maintained for five years (from date selection process is completed). Records of non-selected candidates are retained only for that period of time sufficient to permit appropriate review (usually less than 60 days). Some initial contact records are maintained for varying periods.

System manager(s) and address:
Requests by correspondence should be addressed to the Civilian Personnel Officer or comparable official of the Civilian Personnel Office servicing the activity/installation.

Notification procedure:
Requests by correspondence should be addressed to the Civilian Personnel Officer servicing the headquarters or field activities employing civilians. The letter should contain the full name of the requester and his signature. If the information will be a DoD building pass or identification badge, the requester's license, or any other type of identification bearing an employee picture and signature.

Record access procedures:
Above procedures for notification apply.

Contesting record procedures:
The DLA rules for contesting the contents and appealing initial determinations may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record source categories:
Civilian Personnel Offices: Current and previous supervisors of employees (when appraisals of performance/potential are used).

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

S336.60 DLA-KM

System name:
Position Classification Appeals.

System location:
Headquarters (HQ), Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) for those cases requiring headquarters decision, and at DLA Primary Level Field Activities (PLFAs) for others.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
All DOD employees serviced by a DLA Personnel office who have filed classification or job grading appeals.

Categories of records in the system:
Case files relating to individual or group classification appeals consisting of the written appeal, complete identification of the position, position organization chart, functional statement, comprehensive evaluation statement which has been reviewed by the individual or groups submitting the appeal (the appellant), effects to resolve locally, recommended action and any supplemental information pertinent to the case.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purposes:
Personnel specialists at HQ DLA use this file to adjudicate the classification appeal when a DLA employee appeals the classification of his position to Headquarters; PLFA and HQ DLA may also use this file as a reference for classification precedent in classifying other DLA PLFA positions.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
This information is used by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) during the review of classification appeals by DLA employees. Personnel specialists at the PLFA will furnish file to appropriate OPM Regional Office when a DLA employee appeals directly to the OPM.

OPM officials use this file to adjudicate the classification appeal when DLA employees appeal the classification of their position directly to OPM.

See blanket routine uses set forth above.

System name:
HQ DLA Automated Civilian Personnel Data Bank System.

System location:

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
U.S. citizen civilian employees of the DLA who are paid from appropriated funds, and former such employees.

Categories of records in the system:
Computer records and print-outs containing data on current position occupied by employee, employee's current employment status with DLA, training data, and selected personnel information such as: Social Security Number, name, sex, race and national origin identification, date of birth, physical handicap, government insurance, veteran's preference, military reserve status, retired military status, education, and whether individual passed the Federal Service Entrance Examination or Professional and Administrative Career Examination.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purpose(s): The purpose of this system is to provide information to officials of DLA for effective personnel administration.

Information is used: To provide management data to officials of DoD by transfer of current data to the Defense Manpower Data Center (DMDC) on a quarterly basis. To provide management data for use of HQ DLA and Field officials.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

This system is used to prepare reports required by the Executive legislative and Judicial Branches of government to transfer current data to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) on a monthly basis for inclusion in their Central Personnel file.

To members or committees of Congress with a stated valid need for the information in the performance of their official duties.

To furnish or publish information on the DLA civilian workforce to Federal agencies, the Congress, or courts of law and other Freedom of Information Act releases.

To provide information in litigation and other administrative review processes.

See also blanket routine uses set forth above.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Magnetic tape and disc, computer paper printouts, microfiche.

Retriviality:
Records identified to a specific civilian employee are accessed and retrieved by social security number account number.

Safeguards:
Paper printouts or microfiche records which contain only statistical information are released to responsible persons whose stated needs are not in violation of Federal Statute.

Paper printouts or microfiche records which contain individually identifiable information are releasable only under conditions authorized by Federal Statute.

Records are secured in appropriate storage and/or file cabinets when not under the control of personnel office officials during duty hours.

During non-duty hours, records are secured in either locked storage and/or file cabinets. The area in which the records are secured is protected by a building security guard system.

Individually identifiable personnel documents will either be hand-carried or will be transmitted in envelopes addressed to a specific office or individual and marked to be opened by addresssee only.

Magnetic tape and disc are kept in the computer room which is itself a security container with locked door and access limited to persons appropriately cleared and identified. Tapes and disc packs are stored in a tape library when not in processing and are logged in and out only to cleared personnel with an official need. Tapes are transmitted to the Office of Personnel Management by mail or courier. Reports with individual data are closely controlled. Personnel who process these reports are appropriately cleared and maintain continuous observation of reports during all processing phases. Reports are kept under appropriate physical safeguards when not being processed or used.

An individual requesting information in records must identify self and his or her relationship to the individual upon whom the record information requested.

When an individual other than the individual of record requests a record, the System Manager or his delegated assistant determines if request is reasonable and consistent with provisions of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552).

Physical access, that is the ability to obtain the record, is limited to: Personnel office officials, Office of Personnel Management officials, data processing officials, supervisors for those records which they are authorized to maintain.

Retention and disposal:
Printouts or microfiche reports are considered as working papers to support particular projects, inquiries, studies or administrative need. They will be retained until the purpose for which generated has been met. They will then be destroyed by shredding or burning. Data maintained on magnetic tape or disc are to be retained for five years. They will then be degausse.

REQUESTING RECORDS
Records are retrieved by name or by some other personal identifier. It is therefore especially important for expeditious service when requesting a record that particular attention be provided to the Notification and/or Access Procedures of the particular record system involved so as to furnish the required personal identifiers, or any other pertinent personal information as may be required to locate and retrieve the record.

BLANKET ROUTINE USES
Certain blanket ‘routine uses’ of the records have been established that are applicable to every record system maintained within the Department of Defense unless specifically stated otherwise within a particular record system. These additional blanket routine uses of the records are published below only once in the interest of simplicity, economy and to avoid redundancy before the individual record system notices begin rather than repeating them in every individual record system.

ROUTINE USE-LAW ENFORCEMENT
In the event that a system of records maintained by this component to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising in the context of law enforcement, regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE WHEN REQUESTING INFORMATION
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to a Federal agency, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF REQUESTED INFORMATION
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency’s decision on the matter.

ROUTINE USE-CONGRESSIONAL INQUIRIES
Disclosure from a system of records maintained by this component may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

ROUTINE USE-PRIVATE RELIEF LEGISLATION
Relevant information contained in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on or before August 22, 1975, may be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURES REQUIRED BY INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigatory, or administrative authorities in order to comply with requirements imposed by, or to claim rights conferred in, international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of Department of Defense military and civilian personnel.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO STATE AND LOCAL TAXING AUTHORITIES
Any information normally contained in IRS Form W-2 which is maintained in a record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements pursuant to Title 5, U.S. Code, Sections 5517, 5517, 5520, and only to those state and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin Nr. 76-07.

ROUTINE USE - DISCLOSURE TO THE OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT
A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by this component may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deductions, and any other information necessary for the Office of Personnel Management to carry out its legally authorized Government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FOR LITIGATION
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice for the purpose of representing the Department of Defense, or any officer, employee or member of the Department in pending or potential litigation to which the record is pertinent.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO MILITARY BANKING FACILITIES OVERSEAS
Information as to current military addresses and assignments may be provided to military banking facilities who provide banking services overseas and who are reimbursed by the Government for certain checking and loan losses. For personnel separated, discharged, or retired from the Armed Forces, information as to last known residential or home of record address may be provided to the military banking facility upon certification by a banking facility officer that the facility has a returned or dishonored check negotiated by the individual or the individual has defaulted on a loan and that if restitution is not made by the individual, the U.S. Government will be liable for the losses the facility may incur.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION (GSA)
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the General Services Administration (GSA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES AND RECORDS ADMINISTRATION (NARA)
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE MERIT SYSTEMS PROTECTION BOARD
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the Merit Systems Protection Board, including the Office of the Special Counsel for the purpose of litigation, including administrative proceedings, appeals, special studies of the civil service and other merit systems, review of OPM or component rules and regulations, investigation of alleged or possible prohibited personnel practices; including administrative proceedings involving any individual subject of a DoD investigation, and such other functions, promulgated in 5 U.S.C 1205 and 1206, or as may be authorized by law.

ROUTINE USE-COUNTERINTELLIGENCE PURPOSES
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use outside the DoD or the U.S.
Government for the purpose of counterintelligence activities authorized by U.S. Law or Executive Order or for the purpose of enforcing laws which protect the national security of the United States.

Section V a 2, DoD Instruction 5210.25, Security Acceptability of American National Red Cross Employees at Department of Defense Installations and Activities.

Section IV, C, DoD Directive 5220.6, Industrial Personnel Security Clearance Program.
Section V B, DoD Instruction 5220.28, Application of Special Eligibility and Clearance Requirements in the SIOP-ESI Program for Contractor Employees.

Section I (a) and 2, Executive Order 10865, Safeguarding Classified Information Within Industry.

Section III, DoD Instruction 5030.34, Agreement Between the Department of Defense Concerning Protection of the President and Other Officials.

Purpose(s):
To insure that the acceptance or retention of persons in sensitive DoD positions or granting individuals including those employed in defense industry access to classified information is clearly consistent with national security;

For maintenance and use by the requesting activity when collected during reciprocal investigations conducted for other DoD and federal investigative elements;

For dissemination to appropriate federal agencies or other DoD components when information regarding personnel security matters is reported by ISR;

To furnish orally or by letter criminal information which is received by DIS personnel in the course of their duties which is of direct interest to local law enforcement agencies;

To determine the loyalty, suitability, eligibility, and general trustworthiness of individuals for access to defense information and facilities;

To determine the eligibility and suitability of individuals for entry into and retention in the Armed Forces; and

To provide information pertinent to the protection of persons under the provisions of 18 U.S.C. 3056; and

For use in criminal law enforcement investigations including statutory violations and counterintelligence as well as counterespionage and other security matters.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
- Paper records in file folders, microfilm, magnetic tape or supplementary index cards.

Retrievability:
- Investigations are centrally retrievable through the DIS Defense Integrated Management System (DIMIS) or the Defense Central Index of Investigations (DCII) System described separately.

Safeguards:
- Completed investigative records are contained and stored in power files, open shelves, and filing cabinets which are housed in secure areas accessible only to authorized personnel who are properly screened and have a need to know. Information contained on magnetic tape is secured in the same manner as the DCII described separately. Recipients of investigative information are responsible for safeguarding information within the guidelines provided by DIS.

Retention and disposal:
- Retention of closed DIS investigative files is authorized for 15 years maximum, except as follows: (1) Files which have resulted in a final adverse action against an individual will be retained 25 years; (2) Files developed on persons who are being considered for affiliation with the Department of Defense will be destroyed within one year if the affiliation is not continued. In cases involving a pre-appointment investigation, if the appointment is not made due to information developed by investigation, the file will be retained 25 years upon notification from the requester for which the investigation was conducted. If the appointment is not made for other reasons not related to the investigation, the file will be destroyed within one year upon notification from the requesting agency/service. (3) Files concerning unauthorized disclosure of classified information and other specialized investigation files will be retained for 25 years. (4) Information within the purview of the Department of Defense Directive 5200.27, "Acquisition of Information Concerning Persons and Organizations not Affiliated with the Department of Defense," is destroyed within 90 days after acquisition by DIS unless its retention is required by law or unless its retention has been specifically authorized by the Secretary of Defense or his designee.
- Reciprocal investigations are retained for only 60 days.
- Partial duplicate records of personnel security investigations are retained for 60 days by DIS field elements.

Categories of users:
Components listed under the system location caption are the principal users and (with the exception of DISCO) the file custodians. Listed terminal holders (with the exception of DISCO) may release general DCII information to users of their investigative records or listed in their investigative records systems descriptions in this register.

It should be noted that information contained in the system is regarded as the property of the submitting activities. DIS can neither monitor nor assume responsibility for the propriety or accuracy of the file in the system other than that portion belonging to DIS.

Transfer of information from this records system to other DoD components is a routine intra-agency use under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(3)(b)(1). The use of the DCI by terminal holders to advise requesters of the possible location of information where there is no disclosure of personal information from the DCII does not require an accounting.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Any person described as a subject or who is victim or who is cross-reference in an investigation completed by or for a DoD investigatory organization when that investigation is retained by the organization and the name is submitted for central indexing.

Categories of records in the system:
DCII MASTER INDEX:
Composed of locator references to investigations, Air Force clearances, and Army clearances conducted by or for DoD investigatory organizations and retained by them. Index records contain the name and other personal information on individuals who are indexed.

FILE TRACING:
Refers to an investigation maintained by one of the investigatory records repositories. It identifies the individual by name and personal identifiers, the custodian of the file, the year indexed, and the number used by the repository to locate the file.

OPEN CASE TRACING:
A record input by either Army investigatory activities or DIS reflecting the existence of an investigation in progress. It identifies the subject individual by name and personal identifiers, the location of the open investigation, the year indexed, and the number used to locate the investigative file.

NAC PENDING TRACING:
Record of a National Agency Check (NAC) investigation in progress. It identifies the subject individual by name, personal identifiers, the case number, the category of the requester of the NAC, and the type of NAC being run.

NAC HISTORY TRACING:
A record of completed favorable, or incomplete, national agency checks. It identifies the individual by name and personal identifiers, the date the NAC was completed, and the agencies that were checked.

DCII NAME ONLY INDEX (NOI):
Composed of names of persons who are referenced but not fully identified in investigative files. A Name Only Index record identifies the individual by name and lists the custodial agency of the file, year indexed, and the number used by the repository to locate the file. Positive identification is impossible from the index and may well be impossible from the file itself. DIS has placed no records in this index.

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purpose(s):
To determine the existence and location of DoD investigative records for granting clearances, for access to defense installations, and for entry into military service or employment in sensitive civilian positions; and to reflect security clearance information pertaining to Army personnel.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See this agency's blanket routine uses at the head of this component's published system notice.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Master Index data is maintained in direct access storage devices, disks, and data cells. It is also contained on magnetic tape for continuity of operations to permit processing at alternate locations in the event of computer failure.

Name Only Index data is maintained on magnetic tape and microfiche. Each contributor is provided his portion on a quarterly basis.

Retrievability:
Master Index records are accessed through name and at least one personal identifier (PID). Personal identifiers are: Date of birth, place of birth, social security number, and the last four (4) digits of military service number. Inquiries may enter the system by being keyed in at remote terminals. A nonstandard retrieval capability also exists which permits retrieval without PID or on parts of a name and produces references to all individuals by that name. It should be noted that in many cases the subject's SSN is necessary to make a positive identification.

Name Only Index records are accessed through the name or some portion thereof. Records are retrieved based on an exact match with the name submitted. Inquiries may enter the system through remote terminals.

Safeguards:
Generalized validation is provided in batch retrieval through program edits to prevent unauthorized access.

User terminals with access to the Master Index are located in controlled access areas. Access to the system is limited to specified times of the day. Terminals are also contained via dedicated data circuits which prevent access from standard dial-up telephones. Activities must be a part of DoD and accredited on the basis of authorized requirements before a new terminal is established or being such requests will be honored and processed. Terminal holders and organizations authorized access by other means are responsible for insuring that individuals and organizations to whom they disclose index information have appropriate authority and need to know.

The computer room is located within a building controlled by security personnel at all times. Identification badges are required for entrance. Access to the computer room is controlled by a combination lock on the entrance. Critical backup files are stored in locked fireproof data safes.

Retention and disposal:
The computer tape files are retained for as long as the hard copy files are retained at the Federal Records Center. The Federal Records Center is responsible for disposing of hard copy files at which time all index tracings pertaining to the files are deleted in accordance with established procedures. Processing a deletion flags the computer record which precludes the record from being given out thereafter. Flagged records are eliminated from the system during periodic file restructuring procedures.

Open case tracings. Retained for as long as the investigation is open. When the investigation is completed, the contributor replaces the open case tracing with a file tracing as described above.

NAC history tracings. Retained for a period of four (4) years from the date of completion and then automatically deleted unless specific action is taken soon to delete the record. Should a subsequent favorable NAC be completed, the entering of a new history record will delete the first history record.

NAC pending tracings. Retained until completion of the NAC at which time they are replaced by an NAC history of file tracing, unless deleted sooner by the originator.

System name:
Defense Integrated Management System (DIMS).

System location:
Defense Investigative Service, Director, Personnel Investigations Center, PO Box 1211, Baltimore, MD 21203-1211.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Any person who is the subject of an ongoing or recently completed Defense Investigative Service (DIS) investigation.

Categories of records in the system:
The DIMS Master file is composed of records of investigations which are being or have been conducted for DoD activities and personal identifying information on individuals who have been investigated. The DIMS master file also consists of records of leads assigned to DIS field elements for those investigations in progress. Records contain the name, social security number, case control number, the investigative leads assigned, and their status.
The DIMS history file consists of records of investigations that have been closed. Records contain the name and other personal identifying information, the type of investigation, requestor category, case number, the closing status, and/or the date closed.

System name:
Defense Investigative Service, Deputy Director, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Notification procedure:
Information may be obtained from Defense Investigative Service, Information and Public Affairs, 1900 Half St. SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Information required:
Full name and all maiden or alias names under which files may be maintained.

Personal identifiers which include date and place of birth, social security number, and last four digits of military service number.

Record source categories:
DIS Case Control Center.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
In accordance with subsection 3(j)(2) of the act, certain references contained in this system of case control records may be exempted from the provisions of subsections (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), and (e)(8). This exemption will allow the DIS, a law enforcement component, to conduct effective investigations into alleged unlawful activity and use the DIMS without jeopardizing such investigations. Knowledge of the investigations into alleged unlawful activity could enable subjects to take actions to prevent detection of criminal activities, conceal evidence, or to escape prosecution. It could also lead to intimidation of or harm to sources, informants, witnesses, and their families and to disclosure of national security information. Information from this system will be withheld only to the extent that its release would interfere with such investigations. such records is Army Locator/ Organizational Rosters (A0102.03a DAAG).

Authority for maintenance of the system:

Purposes(s):
Records are maintained by DIS investigative elements for use in locating supervisors, coworkers, and character references of subjects of DIS investigations and to identify or verify the locations and assignments of subjects when this information cannot be obtained through other local sources. Information from this system may be provided to law enforcement agencies for the same purposes.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See blanket routine uses listed at the beginning of this component's system notice.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Paper listings in files or binders, computer products, microfiche, index cards.

Retrievability:
By name and other identifying data.

Safeguards:
Maintained in locked cabinets or locked rooms and only DIS personnel have access.

Retention and disposal:
Records are retained for a maximum of five years.

System manager(s) and address:
Defense Investigative Service, Assistant Director (Personnel and Security), 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Notification procedure:
Requests should be addressed to Defense Investigative Service, Information and Public Affairs Office, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700. The full name, date and place of birth, social security number, and military service numbers are required and the name and location of the post, base, or station and periods of assignment or employment so that a thorough search can be conducted. A notarized statement verifying the identity of requester is required. Defense Investigative Service, Information and Public Affairs Office, Washington, DC 20324-1700 may be visited by personnel making inquiries regarding this system. A check of personal identification will be required of all visitors making such inquiries.

Record access procedures:
Access to records may be obtained through Defense Investigative Service, Office of Information and Public Affairs, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Contesting record procedures:
DIS rules for access to records and for contesting and appealing initial determinations are contained in 32 CFR part 298a and DIS Regulation 28-4.

V6-01

System name:
Personnel Security Files, (PSF's).

System location:

Decentralized system: Partial records are maintained at working locations as a part of the Optional Personnel Management Record System described separately in this notice.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Every DIS employee, civilian and military, without exception.

Categories of records in the system:
Individual's Certificate of Security Clearance, Access Authorization Certificate, Security Briefing Statement, Certificates of Clearance for other Services, Defense Central Investigations Index (DCII) check results, Summary Adjudication Sheet, debriefing statements, requests for investigations, and similar related documents varying in certain cases. Personal identifying data to confirm identities is also contained in this system.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and 5 U.S.C. 301 (Departmental Regulations) and DoD Directive 5200.2-R, DoD Personnel Security Program.

Purposes(s):
Files are used to provide a basis for granting security clearance and evidence of clearance and access to classified defense information during an individual's employment with the agency. Files are also used to provide information on security clearances for individuals attending official activities of other offices on classified matters and are provided to other government offices when change of employment is being considered.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See blanket routine uses listed at the beginning of this component's published systems notice.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Individual Personnel Security Files are established when an individual has been tentatively selected for a position with DIS and a request for investigation is initiated. As each investigation is completed and adjudicated, a clearance certificate is filed in the PSF. If the applicant declines employment or is a nonselectee, the PSF is placed in the inactive file section and retained for two years.

Storage:
Paper records in file folders.

Retrievability:
Filed alphabetically by last name.

Safeguards:
For the primary system, building employs security guards (Federal Protective Service). Records are maintained in locked containers in areas accessible only to authorized personnel who have a need to know.

Retention and disposal:
Records are maintained for the period of one year in which a file is assigned to the DIS for two years afterwards. Disposal is at classified waste.

System manager(s) and address:

Notification procedure:
Information regarding the primary system may be obtained from Defense Investigative Service, Chief, Security Division, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Record access procedures:
Access to the decentralized records may be obtained at any time. Requests from individuals for access to the primary system should be addressed to Defense Investigative Service, Information and Public Affairs Office, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Written requests for information should contain the full name of the individual, current address, and telephone number. Visits are limited to the Defense Investigative Service, Information and Public Affairs Office.

For personal visits, a check of personal documents will be conducted.

Contesting record procedures:
The agency's rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations may be obtained from the Chief, Information and Public Affairs Office at the address listed above.

Record source categories:
Application and related forms from the individual, summaries of information from background investigations of the individual.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

V6-02

System name:
Sensitive Compartmented Information (SCI) Access File.

System location:
Defense Investigation Service (DIS), Security Division, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
DIS personnel who have been granted Special Access to SCI information.
Categories of records in the system:
A rosters are maintained on DIS personnel holding SCI access. Requests for SCI access, access authorizations, and similar related documents.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
DIA, DIAM 50-H(3) and DCI Directive No. 1/14.

Purpose(s):
The SCI Access File is used to determine who has SCI access. Data is used also to monitor the program within DIS.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See blanket routine uses listed at the beginning of this component's published systems notice.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
All data is maintained in one secure container. The roster is provided by DIA. Copies of access authorization are maintained for each individual having special access. When a person is taken off this access and has been debriefed, this is noted in the file.

Storage:
Paper records in file folder.

Retrievability:
Roster is in billet order; access authorization is in chronological order.

Safeguards:
Files are maintained in an authorized security container within a locked room. The Federal Protective Service controls entrance to the building.

Retention and disposal:
Records are maintained for the period that the individual is granted the special access and then for 2 years.

V8-01

System name:
Industrial Personnel Security Clearance File.

System location:
Central Facility, Defense Investigative Service, Defense Industrial Security Clearance Office, PO Box 2499, Columbus, OH 43216-2499.
Remote terminal location - NSA DIRNSA OPS Bldg. 3 Room CIB 51, Fort Meade, MD 20755

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Employees and major stockholders of government contractors and other DoD affiliated personnel who have been issued, now possess, are in, or have been in process for personnel security clearance eligibility determinations, security assurances or NATO clearance documents.

Categories of records in the system:
The automated portion may include individual's name and personal identifying information; date and level of security clearance-granted; date and type of investigation and investigator-agency or case number and location; sequential record of action; and information necessary to facilitate the security clearance process.

The manual portion may include the clearance application, copy of the investigation, record of clearance, foreign clearance and travel information; clearance processing information, adverse information and other internal and external correspondence and administrative memoranda relative to the clearance.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Executive Order 10865, February 20, 1960.
Executive Order 10909, January 17, 1961.

Purpose(s):
Records serve as a central repository on the eligibility determination of industrial personnel for access to classified information. The file serves as an administrative record, current record, and repository for clearance related reports and information.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See blanket routine uses at the beginning of this component's published systems notice.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Automated records are maintained in computer disk packs, magnetic tapes, and associated data processing files. Manual records are on microfiche, index cards, and hard copy paper records maintained in file folders.

Retrievability:
Records are accessed by Social Security Number; manual records may also be accessed by name.

Safeguards:
Specific codes are required to access the automated records. Manual records are housed in a secured area accessible only to properly screened individuals who have the need to know.

Retention and disposal:
Retention is based on the circumstances of the particular record. Automated records are retained 62 months following employment termination except DICR directed cases or cases involving a cleared person's death. These records are retained until the individual would have been 80 years old. Favorably manual records are destroyed upon issuance of the clearance. Records released in accordance with the privacy or FOIA Act require at least a 2 year records maintenance. All cases which require adjudication are retained for 5 years from date of last clearance action. Destruction is accomplished by burning, shredding or other means which preclude reconstruction.

System manager(s) and address:
Defense Investigative Service, Deputy Director (Industrial Security), 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20324-1700.

Notification procedure:
Information may be obtained from SYSMANGER.

Record access procedures:
Access to records may be obtained through the Defense Investigative Service, Office of Information and Public Affairs, 1900 Half St. SW, Washington, DC 20324-700, either in person or by mail. For written requests, full name, date and place of birth, and social security number are necessary for retrieval of information. More information may be required. Personal visits should be made to the Office of Information and Public Affairs at the address listed above. A check of personal identification will be required of all visitors making such inquiries.

Contesting record procedures:
The agency's rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations may be obtained from the Chief, Office of Information and Public Affairs at the address listed above.

Record source categories:
Categories of sources of records, subjects of investigations, records of other DoD activities and components, federal, state, county, and municipal records, employment records of private business and industrial firms, educational and disciplinary records of schools, colleges, universities, technical, and trade schools, hospital, clinical, and other medical records, records of commercial enterprises such as real estate agencies, credit bureaus, loan companies, credit unions, banks, and other financial institutions which maintain credit information on individuals, transportation companies, (air lines, railroads, etc.).

The interview of individuals who are thought to have knowledge of the subject's background and activities.

The interview of witnesses, victims, and confidential sources.

The interview of any individuals deemed necessary to complete the DIS investigation.

Miscellaneous directories, rosters, and correspondence.

Any other type of record deemed necessary to complete the DIS investigation.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
Under the provisions of 5 USC 552a(k)(5) of the Privacy Act of 1974, information contained in the records which would reveal the identity of the source who furnished information to the government under an implied or expressed promise of confidentiality is exempt from disclosure. This exemption will allow the collection of information from sources who would otherwise be unwilling to provide necessary information.

REQUESTING RECORDS
Records are retrieved by name or by some other personal identifier. It is therefore especially important for expeditious service when requesting a record that particular attention be provided to the Notification and/or Authorization Procedures of the particular record system involved so as to furnish the required personal identifiers, or any other pertinent personal information as may be required to locate and retrieve the record.

BLANKET ROUTINE USES
Certain blanket 'routine uses' of the records have been established that are applicable to every record system maintained within the Department of Defense unless specifically stated otherwise within a particular record system. These additional blanket routine uses of the records are published below only once in the interest of simplicity, economy and to avoid redundancy before the individual record system notices begin rather than repeating them in every individual record system.

ROUTINE USE-LAW ENFORCEMENT
In the event that a system of records maintained by this component to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE WHEN REQUESTING INFORMATION
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF REQUESTED INFORMATION
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the retention of a record by an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

ROUTINE USE-Congressional Inquiries
Disclosure from a system of records maintained by this component may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual.

ROUTINE USE-PRIVATE RELIEF LEGISLATION
Relevant information contained in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on or before August 22, 1975, may be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURES REQUIRED BY INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigatory, or administrative authorities in order to comply with requirements imposed by, or to claim rights conferred in, international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of Department of Defense military and civilian personnel.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO STATE AND LOCAL TAXING AUTHORITIES
Any information normally contained in IRS Form W-2 which is maintained in a record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to state and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements pursuant to Title 5, U.S. Code, Sections 5516, 5517, 5520, and only to those state and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin Nr. 76-07.

ROUTINE USE - DISCLOSURE TO THE OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT
A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by this component may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deductions, and any other information necessary for the Office of Personnel Management to carry out its legally authorized Government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE FOR LITIGATION
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice for the purpose of representing the Department of Defense or any officer, employee or agent of the Department in pending or potential litigation to which the record is pertinent.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE TO MILITARY BANKING FACILITIES OVERSEAS
Information as to current military addresses and assignments may be provided to military banking facilities who provide banking services overseas and who are reimbursed by the Government for certain checking and loan losses. For personnel separated, discharged, or retired from the Armed Forces, information as to last known residential or home of record address may be provided to the military banking facility upon certification by a banking facility officer that the facility has a returned or dishonored check negotiated by the individual or the individual has defaulted on a loan and that if restitution is not made by the individual, the U.S. Government will be liable for the losses the facility may incur.

ROUTINE USE-DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION TO THE GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION (GSA)
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the General Services Administration (GSA) for the purpose of records management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2904 and 2906.

ROUTINE USE-COUNTERINTELLIGENCE PURPOSES
A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use outside the DoD or the U.S.
Government for the purpose of counterintelligence activities authorized by U.S. Law or Executive Order or for the purpose of enforcing laws which protect the national security of the United States.

WUSU01

System name:
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) Personnel Files.

System location:
Personnel record files will be maintained at the USUHS Civilian Personnel Directorate, and Directorate, Military Personnel, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799. Copies of SF 171’s and curriculum vitae’s of applicants and employees will be maintained in the Civilian Personnel Directorate by the Dean of the School of Medicine, and by the Department Chairperson, having a need for the information. Limited hardcopy information files are maintained at the USUHS Military Personnel office. A supplemental file consisting of summary data on each civilian employee will be stored in the computer at Bolling Air Force Base (AFB), Washington, DC 20332; for military personnel assigned to USUHS; at Walter Reed Army Medical Center (WRAMC) (MC) Military Personnel office, National Naval Medical Center (NNMC) (MC) Personnel office, Andrews Air Force Base (AFB) consolidated base personnel office and National Defense Medical Center (NDMC) (MC) personnel office, Administration Support Section, Parklawn Building, Rockville, MD 20850. Home phone numbers of key personnel will be provided to other key personnel, and those of students to other students on a need-to-know basis, and only with the express permission of the individual concerned, for an emergency call system. Biographical information on students to be maintained in the Military Personnel office.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Records will be maintained on all personnel assigned to USUHS full-time and part-time.

Categories of records in the system:
The type of information which will be maintained on employees is as follows: Identity and demographic information (e.g., Social Security Number (SSN), name, sex, address, birth date, minority status, etc.). Academic and experience background data consisting of: (1) Schools attended; (2) Degrees earned; (3) Work experience, awards, etc.; (4) Letters of reference, performance evaluations, etc.; (5) Time and attendance cards; and (6) Biographical data file.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Title 10, United States Code, Section 136.

Purposes:
The system will consolidate into one standard system, personnel management on all assigned personnel from all military departments. The information kept will be used for documenting the work experience of applicants and USUHS personnel and for notification of key personnel in case of emergency during nonworking hours. It will also be used for management training and accountability of military personnel assigned to USUHS. Biographical data file will be used for providing background information on USUHS students to lecturers.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
- See Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) Blanket Routine Uses at the head of this Component’s published system notice.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
- Storage: Material stored in file folders at USUHS, supported by automated copies of pertinent data of each employee’s folder which are maintained on magnetic tape and disk at USUHS Civilian Personnel, Manpower Directorate, Bethesda, MD 20014.
- Retrieval: The system will be indexed by name and Social Security (SSN). Also, any combination of data in the file can be used to select individual data. Only Civilian Personnel/Directorate and Commandant and Director, Military Personnel will be provided with the password that allows access to the data, and those individuals are authorized access to all data in the file. Records will be available to: The individual concerned; employees of USUHS on a need-to-know basis; other agencies of the Government to satisfy requests for routine reports.
- Safeguards: The automated system is operated by USUHS Civilian Personnel, Directorate Personnel, Military Personnel Directorate (for military files only), Commandant and Assistant Commandant, and only those personnel will be given the password and user identification information needed to access the computer system. Those persons are authorized access to need-to-know files only as determined by the Director of Military Personnel and Commandant. While the file is primarily indexed on Social Security Number (SSN), and name, any combination of fields and data within fields can be used to select the individual records. Only the Director, Military Personnel will have the ability to add, change, delete or reproduce a hard copy of any data in the military files.
- Retention and disposal: Indefinite files that are retained while the individual is employed and then retired.
- System manager(s) and address:
The Director, Civilian Personnel, will be the custodian for Civilian Personnel files (business address 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799; telephone: (202) 295-3412). The Director, Military Personnel will be the custodian for Military Personnel files (business address: 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799; telephone: (202) 295-3086).
- Notification procedures:
Inquiries regarding the personnel files should be directed to the System Manager.
- Record access procedures:
Information on the procedures for gaining access to and contesting records will be furnished each employee by the Personnel Office upon entry into duty with USUHS.
- Contesting record procedures:
The Agency’s rules for access to records and for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned are contained in 32 CFR part 266b and OSD Administrative Instruction No. 51.
- Record source categories:
Information contained in the file is furnished by the employees, supervisors and references supplied by the employees.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

WUSU03
System name:
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) Student Record System.

System location:
The file will be maintained in the Registrar's Office, USUHS, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20014. Supplemental files consisting of student evaluation forms, grades, and course examinations pertaining to their Department will be maintained in each department by department chairperson, as well as in the Registrar's office.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Records will be maintained on all students who matriculate to the University.

Categories of records in the system:
Grade reports and instructor evaluations of performance/achievement; transcripts summarizing by course title, grade, and credit hours; records of awards, honors, or distinctions earned by students; and data carried forward from the Applicant File System, which includes records containing personal data e.g., name, rank, Social Security Number (SSN), undergraduate school, academic degree(s), current addresses, course grades, and grade point average from undergraduate work and other information as furnished by non-Government agencies such as the American Medical College Admission Service which certifies all information prior to being submitted to the University.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Pub. L. 92-426, Ch 104, Section 2114.

Purpose(s):
Data is used for recording internships, residencies, types of assignment and other career performance data on USUHS graduates; providing academic data to each student upon request, e.g., transcripts, individual course grades, grade point average, etc.; providing academic data within the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences for official use only purposes; and providing data to the respective Surgeon General when a specific and authorized need requires it.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
Academic data may be provided to other educational institutions upon the written request of a student. For other external uses, see Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) Blanket Routine Uses at the head of this Component's published system notices.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Paper records in file folders are stored at USUHS, supported by automated copies of subsets of each student's folder, which are maintained on magnetic tape and disk at the Office of the Registrar, USUHS.

Retrieval:
The system will be indexed by name and Social Security (SSN). Also, any combination of data can be used to select individual records. Only personnel in the Office of the Registrar will be with the password that allows access to the data, and those individuals are authorized access to all data in the file.

Safeguards:
The computer facility at the USUHS is operated by the Office of the Registrar. The tapes and hard copies of material are secured in government-approved security containers constructed of four-hour heat-resistant steel material. The physical location of the computer hardware, disks, and printer is located to the extreme rear of the room with access being blocked by a large counter staffed by two office personnel. All access to the computers in the Office of the Registrar is via user identification and sign-on password. Computer software ensures that only properly identified users can access the Privacy Act files on this system. Passwords are changed semiannually, or upon departure of any person knowing the password.

Retention and disposal:
Records will be maintained permanently.

System manager(s) and address:
The Registrar, USUHS, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20014.

Notification procedure:
Information may be obtained from: USUHS Registrar's Office, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20014. Telephone: 202-295-3379.

Record access procedures:
Requests to review individual student records may be made by telephone or visit the Registrar's Office, USUHS, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20014. Written requests should include name, Social Security Number (SSN) and dates attended.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Pub. L. 92-426, Ch 104, Section 2114.

Purpose(s):
To be used by officials and personnel of the USUHS for selecting students and conducting studies of the selection process.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) Blanket Routine Uses at the head of this Component's published system notices.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Paper records in file folders and magnetic tape.

Retrievability:
The central file will be indexed by name. The computer file will be sequenced by SSAN, with data retrievable by any single or combination of variables stored, e.g., sex, minority status, ranking by academic performance, ranking by test achievement, state of residence, college attended, etc.

Safeguards:
All material will be maintained in metal rotary files in a secure office; the satellite file on disks, secure stored at the Pentagon Computer Center.

Retention and disposal:
Records of applicants who matriculate to the school will be converted to students records and maintained permanently. Records of applicants who do not matriculate will be retained for five years and then destroyed by burning. Portions of the record may be retained on magnetic tape for longer periods.

System manager(s) and address:
The USUHS Office who will be responsible for the Applicant Record System is the Assistant Dean for Academic Support (business address: 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 202014).

Notification procedure:
Inquiries regarding the system should be directed to the Assistant Dean for Academic Support, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 202014. Telephone: 202-295-3101.

Record access procedures:
Requests for access for an individual's file should be made by either writing or calling the Assistant Dean for Academic Support. For written requests the information should contain the full name of the individual, current address and telephone number.

Contesting record procedures:
The Agency's rules for access to records and for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned are contained in 32 CFR part 286b and OSD Administrative Instruction No. 81.

Record source categories:
The bulk of the information in the system will be furnished by the applicants. It will be either prepared by them personally, or submitted by other individuals/agencies in their behalf at their (the applicants') specific request. The remaining elements of the system, the data not furnished by the applicants, will consist of evaluative records prepared and developed by admissions personnel based on interviews, school administered tests, and analyses of applicant records.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None. WUSU05

System name:
USUHS Graduate and Continuing Medical Student Records.

System location:
The Office of the Assistant Dean for Graduate and Continuing Education, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS), 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814, Supplementary files, consisting of student evaluation forms, grades, and course examinations pertaining to their department, are maintained in each USUHS department by departmental chairpersons.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Title 5, United States Code Sections 2302 and 7121.

Purpose(s):
This information is used by the USUHS in the creation and maintenance of records of summary descriptive statistics and analytical studies in support of the function for which the records are collected and maintained and for related work force studies. While published statistics and studies do not contain individual identifiers, in some instances the selection of elements is such that individuals could be identified by reference.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
These records and information in these records are used:

a. To disclose pertinent information to the appropriate Federal, state, or local agency responsible for investigating, prosecuting, enforcing, or implementing a statute, rule, regulation, or order, when there are indications of a violation or potential violation of civil law, criminal law or regulation.

b. To disclose information to any source from which additional information is requested in the course of processing a grievance, to the extent necessary to identify the individual, inform the source of the purpose(s) of the request, and identify the type of information requested.

c. To disclose information to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee; a security clearance; the conducting of a security or suitability investigation of an individual; the classifying of jobs; the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to requesting the Agency’s decision on the matter.

d. To provide information to a Congressional committee from the record of an individual, in response to a Congressional inquiry made at the request of that individual.

e. To disclose information to another Federal Agency or to a court when the Government is party to a judicial proceeding.

f. By the National Archives and Records Administration in records management inspections conducted under authority of Title 44 United States Code Section 2906.

g. To disclose information to officials of the Merit System Protection Board, including the Office of the Special Counsel, the Federal Labor Relations Authority; and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, when requested in conjunction with their official activities.

h. To disclose in response to a discovery motion or for appearance of a witness, information that is relevant to the subject matter involved in a pending judicial or administrative proceeding.

i. To provide information to officials of labor organizations reorganized under the Civil Service Reform Act when relevant and necessary to their duties, exclusive representation concerning personnel policies, practices, and matters affecting work conditions.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Paper records are maintained in file folders.

Retrieveability:
These records are retrieved by the names of the individuals about whom the records are maintained.

Safeguards:
Records are maintained in locked file cabinets, with access restricted to authorized USUHS employees who have a demonstrated need-to-know.

Retention and disposal:

Records are disposed of three years after closing of the case. Disposal is by shredding or burning.

System manager(s) and address:
Director, Civilian Personnel/Manpower, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814. Telephone: 202/295-3195.

Notification procedure:
Information may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record access procedures:
Information to access procedures may be obtained from the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures:
The Agency’s rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determination by the individual concerned are contained in 32 CFR part 2806 (See also OSD Administrative Instruction No. 81).

Record source categories:
Information in this system of records is obtained from:
- a. The individual on whom the record is maintained.
- b. Testimony of witnesses.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Records are stored in the University’s main computer.

Retrieveability:
Records are accessed by name, department, or data fields.

Safeguards:
Records in the data base may be accessed only by EHS staff members who have been granted access to the University computer.

Retention and disposal:
Records are kept permanently on file.

System manager(s) and address:
Dosimetry Manager, Department of Environmental Health and Occupational Safety, Uniformed Services University of Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799.

Notification procedure:
Inquiries regarding the records should be directed to the System Manager.

Record access procedures:
Information on the obtaining access to and contesting records will be furnished upon request by the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures:
Individuals may contest any information maintained in the record system by submitting their request in writing to the System Manager. The Agency’s rules for access to records and for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned are contained in OSD Administrative Instruction No. 81 (32 CFR part 2806).

Record source categories:
Individual, previous employers, training attendance records.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None. WUSU09

System name:
USUHS Grants Managements Information System (Protocols/Grants).

System location:
The primary system will be located at Computer Operations, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS), 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799. Decentralized segments will be maintained by the department chairs of Anatomy, Anesthesiology, Biochemistry, Dermatology, Military Medicine, Family Practice, Medical Psychology, Medicine, Microbiology, Surgery, Neurology, Obstetrics/Gynecology, Pathology, Pediatrics, Pharmacology, Physiology, Preventive Medicine and Biometrics, Psychiatry, and Radiology, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Research proposals of grant requestors; in addition research records will be maintained on military active duty, retired, their dependents, civilians, and volunteers who have signed an appropriate consent form for a particular research project(s).

Categories of records in the system:
Grant proposals and protocols; statistical data, results of laboratory experiments, research subjects’ medical history including pathological results and standard behavioral tests.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Pub. L. 92-426, CH. 104, Section 2113; 10 U.S.C. 2113

Purpose(s):
Research faculty and staff use the research records as a data base for the analysis of experimental data. Research records contain the results of laboratory experiments, research subjects’ medical histories, and statistical data including pathological and standard behavioral tests, and are used as submission to research proposals. Summary statistics on the research records are maintained by faculty/staff and updated when appropriate. Study and summary statistics are published without individual identifiers, but in some instances the selection of elements is such that individuals could be identified by reference. This data is given to collaborators and is sometimes used for clinical evaluation of the patient.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
See Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) ‘Blanket Routine Uses’ set forth at the beginning of agency’s listing of published record system notices.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Research records are stored in folders, on mainframe computer disks, and on microcomputer floppy disks.

Retrieveability:
Research records may be retrieved by subject name, date experimental procedure occurred, date analysis of experiments was performed, experimental case number, collaborator name and a study name.

Safeguards:
Computer hardware, disks and folders are stored in a controlled area, and are accessible only by password, which is changed at random intervals.

Retention and disposal:
Records are retained until studies are completed or until no further information can be utilized from this material. However, all studies involving human volunteers will be maintained for five years. If the study involves a minor(s), the record will be kept until the individual is age 18 plus five years.

System manager(s) and address:
Director, Grants Management, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799.

Notification procedure:
Inquiries regarding the records should be directed to the system manager.

Record access procedures:
Information as to exact procedure for gaining access may be obtained from the System Manager. Address requests to Record Administrator, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS/Adm), 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
System name:
Travel Records.

System location:
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, Financial Management Directorate, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Maryland 20814-4799; telephone number (202) 295-3351.

Categories of individuals covered by the system:
Active duty and retired military personnel, USUHS civilian present and former employees, dependents of military personnel, other individuals in receipt of competent travel orders.

Categories of records in the system:
The records maintained by the system include, but are not limited to, travel vouchers and subvouchers, travel allowance payment list, travel voucher and subvoucher continuation sheets, certificate of nonavailability of government quarters and mess, multi-travel payment list, travel payment record, request for fiscal information concerning transportation requests, bills of lading, public voucher for fees and mileage and claims for reimbursement for expenditures on official business and related correspondence.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
37 USC 404-412, Travel and Transportation Allowances; 5 USC 2105, Employees 5561; Definitions; 5564, Travel and Transportation; 5701-5708, Travel and Subsistence Expenses; 5721-5730, Travel and Transportation Expenses.

Purpose(s):
Records are established and used for accountability, auditing and settlement of travel claims.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:
To the Internal Revenue Service, for the purpose of recording information concerning payment of travel allowances which are subject to Federal Income Tax. See also the published blanket routine uses set forth at the beginning of the USUHS' listing of record system notices.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:
Storage:
Records are maintained in file folders, notebooks, binders, visual file binders and cabinets, card files and on computer magnetic tape, disk and printouts.

Retrieval:
Access is by name and Social Security Number (SSAN).

Safeguards:
Records are accessed by custodian of the record system and by persons responsible for servicing the record system in performance of their official duties who are properly screened and cleared for need-to-know. Records are stored in security file containers, cabinets, safe, vaults or locked cabinets and rooms. Records are controlled by personnel screening and by computer security software in machine-readable records.

Retention and disposal:
The original voucher and related supporting documents are stored at the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center, Denver, Colorado, for eighteen months and then moved to the Denver Federal Archives and Record Center for four years and nine months after which they are shredded. A copy of the original voucher and related supporting documents are maintained by the Financial Management Directorate for six years and then destroyed by burning, shredding, tearing, mulching, macerating. Permanent history tapes cohistory tapes contain individual data for six years from the transfer date.

System manager(s) and address:
Director, Financial Management Directorate, USUHS/USUHS/FMG, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, MD 20814-4799; telephone number (202) 295-3351.

Notification procedure:
Information as to whether or not the record system contains information on an individual may be obtained from USUHS/USUHS/FMG, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, MD 20814-4799; telephone number (202) 295-3351.

Record access procedures:
The request from an individual should be addressed to USUHS/USUHS/FMG, 4301 Jones bridge Road, Bethesda, MD 20814-4799; telephone number (202) 295-3351. Information pertaining to geographically disbursed elements of the record system may be obtained from the documentation manager at the applicable USUHS component. Requesters should be able to provide sufficient proof of identity such as name, Social Security Number, office location, place of employment and specify the accounting disbursing number, voucher number, date of voucher and other information verifiable in the record itself.

Contesting record procedures:
The USUHS rules for access to records and contesting and appealing initial determinations by the individual concerned may be obtained from the system manager.

Record source categories:
Sources include, but are not limited to, information obtained from automatic system interfaces, corporations and from source documents such as reports, contractors, vendors, claimants, trustees, assignees, USUHS and other Department of Defense components, carriers, General Accounting Office, Comptroller General and Veterans Administration.

Exemptions claimed for the system:
None.

Subpart A—General Provisions

§ 310.1 Reissuance and purpose.

(a) This part is reissued to consolidate into a single document (32 CFR part 310) Department of Defense (DoD) policies and procedures for implementing the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a), by authorizing the development, publication and maintenance of the DoD Privacy Program set forth by DoD Directive 5400.11, June 9, 1982, and 5400.11–R., August 31, 1983, both entitled: "Department of the Defense Privacy Program."

(b) Its purpose is to delegate authorities and assign responsibilities for the administration of the DoD Privacy Program and to prescribe uniform procedures for DoD Components consistent with DoD

§ 310.2 Applicability and scope.

(a) The provisions of this part apply to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the military Departments, the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Unified and Specified Commands, and the Defense Agencies (hereafter referred to collectively as "DoD Components"). This part is mandatory for use by all DoD Components. Heads of DoD Components may issue supplementary instructions only when necessary to provide for unique requirements within their Components. Such instructions will not conflict with the provisions of this part.

(b) The DoD Privacy Program is applicable, but not limited, to the following DoD Components:

(1) Office of the Secretary of Defense and its field activities;
(2) Department of the Army;
(3) Department of the Navy;
(4) Department of the Air Force;
(5) U.S. Marine Corps;
(6) Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff;
(7) Unified and Specified Commands;
(8) Office of the Inspector General, DoD;
(9) Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency;
(10) Defense Communications Agency;
(11) Defense Contract Audit Agency;
(12) Defense Intelligence Agency;
(13) Defense Investigative Service;
(14) Defense Logistics Agency;
(15) Defense Mapping Agency;
(16) Defense Nuclear Agency;
(17) Defense Security Assistance Agency;
(18) National Security Agency/ Central Security Service;
(19) Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences.

(c) The provisions of this part shall be made applicable by contract or other legally binding action to U.S. Government contractors whenever a DoD contract is let for the operation of a system of records. For purposes of liability under the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) the employees of the contractor are considered employees of the contracting DoD Component. See also § 310.12.

(d) This part does not apply to:

agency, other than the subject of the record, the subject's designated agent or the subject's legal guardian.

Individual. A living citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence. The legal guardian of an individual has the same rights as the individual and may act on his or her behalf. All members of U.S. Armed Forces are considered individuals for Privacy Act purposes. No rights are vested in the representative of a dead person under this part and the term "individual" does not embrace an individual acting in an interpersonal capacity, for example, sole proprietorship or partnership.

Individual access. Access to information pertaining to the individual by the individual or his designated agent or legal guardian.

Law Enforcement Activity. Any activity engaged in the enforcement of criminal laws, including efforts to prevent, control, or reduce crime or to apprehend criminals, and the activities of prosecutors, courts, correctional, probation, pardon, or parole authorities.

Maintain. Includes maintain, collect, use or disseminate.

Official use. Within the context of this part, this term is used when officials and employees of a DoD Component have a demonstrated need for the use of any record or the information contained therein in the performance of their official duties, subject to the "DoD Information Security Program Regulation": (32 CFR part 159).

Personal information. Information about an individual that is intimate or private to the individual, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual's official functions or public life.

Privacy Act request. A request from an individual for notification as to the existence of, access to, or amendment of records pertaining to that individual. These records must be maintained in a system of records.

Member of the public. Any individual or party acting in a private capacity to include federal employees or military personnel.

Record. Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by an agency, including, but not limited to, the individual's education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains the individual's name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

Risk assessment. An analysis considering information sensitivity, vulnerabilities, and the cost to a computer facility or word processing activity in safeguarding personal information processed or stored in the facility or activity.

Routine use. The disclosure of a record outside the Department of Defense for a use that is compatible with the purpose for which the information was collected and maintained by the Department of Defense. The routine use must be included in the published system notice for the system of records involved.

Statistical record. A record maintained only for statistical research or reporting purposes and not used in whole or in part in making determinations about specific individuals.

System of records. A group of records under the control of a DoD Component from which information is retrieved by the individual's name or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. System notices for all Privacy Act systems of records must be published in the Federal Register.

Word processing system. A combination of equipment employing automated technology, systematic procedures, and trained personnel for the primary purpose of manipulating human thoughts and verbal or written or graphic presentations intended to communicate verbally or visually with another individual.

Word processing equipment. Any combination of electronic hardware and computer software integrated in a variety of forms (firmware, programmable software, handwiring, or similar equipment) that permits the processing of textual data. Generally, the equipment contains a device to receive information, a computer-like processor with various capabilities to manipulate the information, a storage medium, and an output device.

§ 310.4 Policy.

(a) General Policy. It is the policy of the Department of Defense to safeguard personal information contained in any system of records maintained by DoD Components and to make that information available to the individual to whom it pertains to the maximum extent practicable.

(b) Permit individual access and amendment. Individuals are permitted:
(1) To determine what records pertaining to them are being collected, maintained, used, or disseminated.
(2) To gain access to the information pertaining to them maintained in any system of records, and to correct or amend that information.
(3) To obtain an accounting of all disclosures of the information pertaining to them except when disclosures are made to:
   (i) DoD personnel in the course of their official duties;
   (ii) Under the “DoD Freedom of Information Act Program” (32 CFR part 286);
   (iii) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under control of the United States for civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the DoD activity which maintains the record specifying the particular portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought.
(4) To appeal any refusal to grant access to or amend any record pertaining to them, and to file a statement of disagreement with the record in the event amendment is refused.
(c) Limit collection, maintenance, use, and dissemination of personal information. DoD Components are required:
   (1) To collect, maintain, use, and disseminate personal information only when it is relevant and necessary to achieve a purpose required by statute or Executive Order.
   (2) To collect personal information directly from the individual to whom it pertains to the greatest extent practical.
   (3) To inform individuals who are asked to supply personal information for inclusion in any system of records:
      (i) The authority for the solicitation;
      (ii) Whether furnishing the information is mandatory or voluntary;
      (iii) The intended uses of the information;
      (iv) The routine disclosures of the information that may be made outside the Department of Defense; and
      (v) The effect on the individual of not providing all or any part of the requested information.
(4) To ensure that all records used in making determinations about individuals are accurate, relevant, timely, and complete.
(5) To make reasonable efforts to ensure that records containing personal information are accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for the purposes for which the record is being maintained before making them available to any recipients outside the Department of Defense, other than a federal agency, unless the disclosure is made under 32 CFR part 286.
(6) To keep no record that describes how individuals exercise their rights guaranteed by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, unless expressly authorized by statute or by the individual to whom the records pertain, or the record is pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.
(7) To make reasonable efforts, when appropriate, to notify individuals whenever records pertaining to them are made available under compulsory legal process, if such process is a matter of public record.
(8) To establish safeguards to ensure the security of personal information and to protect this information from threats or hazards that might result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to the individual.
(9) To establish rules of conduct for DoD personnel involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records and to train them in these rules of conduct.
(d) Required public notice and publication. DoD Components are required to publish in the Federal Register:
   (1) A notice of the existence and character of every system of records maintained.
   (2) A notice of the establishment of any new or revised system of records.
   (3) At least 30 days before adoption, advance notice for public comment of any new or changed changes to the routine uses of the information in existing system of records including the categories of users and the purposes of such use.
   (e) Permit exempting eligible systems of records. DoD Components may exempt from certain specific provisions of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) eligible systems of records, but only when there is an important public purpose to be served and specific statutory for the exemption exists.
   (f) May require annual and other reports. DoD Components shall furnish the Privacy Office that information required to complete any reports required by the Office of Management and Budget or other authorities.
§ 310.5 Organization.
(a) Defense Privacy Board.
   Membership of the board shall consist of the Executive Secretary and representatives designated by the Secretaries of the Military Departments, the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), (whose designee shall serve as chairman); the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel); the General Counsel, Department of Defense; and the Director, Defense Logistics Agency.
(b) The Defense Privacy Office. The office shall consist of a director, who shall also function as the Executive Secretary of the Defense Privacy Board, and his staff.
(c) The Defense Privacy Board Legal Committee. The committee shall be composed of a legal counsel from each of the DoD Components represented on the DoD Privacy Board. The legal counsels shall be appointed by the Executive Secretary in coordination with the Secretaries of the Military Department or the head of the appropriate DoD Components. Other DoD legal counsels may be appointed by the Executive Secretary, after coordination with the appropriate representative of the DoD Component concerned, to serve on the committee.
§ 310.6 Responsibilities.
(a) The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) (ASD(C)), or his designee, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Administration) (DASA(IA)), shall:
   (1) Direct and administer the DoD Privacy Program.
   (2) Develop and maintain DoD Directive 5400.11 and DoD Regulation 5400.11–R (32 CFR part 310) consistent with DoD 5025.1-M and other guidance, to ensure timely and uniform implementation of the DoD Privacy Program.
   (3) Serve as chairman of the Defense Privacy Board.
(b) Chairman and members of the Defense Privacy Board shall:
   (1) Serve as the principal policymakers for the DoD Privacy Program and the focal point for implementation of this part.
   (2) Ensure that all DoD Components actively participate in establishing policies, procedures, and practices in carrying out the DoD Privacy Program.
(c) Director, Defense Privacy Office, shall:
   (1) Serve as Executive Secretary and a Member of the Defense Privacy Board.
   (2) Monitor implementation of the DoD Privacy Program for the Defense Privacy Board.
   (3) Serve as the focal point for the coordination of Privacy Act matters with the Defense Privacy Board; the Defense Privacy Board Legal Committee; the Office of Management and Budget;
the General Accounting Office; the Office of the Federal Register, in conjunction with the OSD Federal Register Liaison Officer, and other federal agencies, as required.

(4) Develop and maintain the DoD Privacy Program, DoD Directive 5400.11 and DoD 5400.11-R (32 CFR part 310) consistent with DoD 5025.1-M.

(5) Review DoD Component instructions and related issuances pertaining to the DoD Privacy Program and provide overall guidance to avoid conflict with DoD Privacy Program policies and procedures.

(7) In conjunction with the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Force Management and Personnel), the Office of the General Counsel, DoD; and other DoD Components:

(i) Ensure that training programs regarding DoD Privacy Program policies and procedures are established for all DoD personnel whose duties involve design, development, operation, and maintenance of any system of records.

(ii) Coordinate on all DoD personnel policies that may affect the DoD Privacy Program.

(8) In conjunction with the Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Management Systems), Office of the ASD(C), and other DoD Components, ensure that:

(i) All information requirements developed to collect or maintain personal data conform with DoD Privacy Program standards;

(ii) Procedures are developed to protect personal information while it is being processed or stored in automated data processing or word processing centers.

(9) In conjunction with the Office of the ASD (FM&P), the Defense Manpower Data Center (Defense Logistics Agency), and other DoD Components, ensure that procedures developed to collect or maintain personal data for research purposes conform both to the requirements of the research and DoD Privacy Program standards.

(d) Members of Defense Privacy Board Legal Committee shall:

(1) Consider legal questions referred to it by the Board regarding the application of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a); DoD Directive 5400.11; and DoD 5400.11-R (this part) and the implementation of the DoD Privacy Program.

(2) Render advisory opinions to the DoD Privacy Board, subject to approval by the General Counsel, Department of Defense.

(e) The General Counsel, Department of Defense, shall:

(1) Review the advisory opinions of the Defense Privacy Board Legal Committee to ensure uniformity in legal positions and interpretations rendered.

(2) Be the final approving authority on all advisory legal opinions rendered by the Defense Privacy Board or the Defense Privacy Board Legal Committee regarding the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) or its implementation.

(f) The Head of an DoD Component shall implement the DoD Privacy Program by carrying out the specific responsibilities set forth in §310.4(c) and shall:

(1) Establish an active program to implement the DoD Privacy Program.

(2) Provide adequate funds and personnel to support the Privacy Program.

(3) Designate a senior official to serve as the principal point of contact for DoD Privacy matters and to monitor compliance with the program.

(4) Ensure that DoD Privacy Program compliance is reviewed during the internal inspections conducted by inspectors General or equivalent inspectors.

(5) Ensure that the DoD Component head, a designer, or an appellant reviews all appeals from denials or refusals by Component officials to amend personal records.

(6) Establish rules of conduct to ensure that:

(i) Only personal information that is relevant and necessary to achieve a purpose required by statute or Executive Order is collected, maintained, used, or disseminated.

(ii) Personal information is collected to the greatest extent practicable directly from the individual to whom it pertains.

(iii) No records are maintained describing how individuals exercise their rights guaranteed by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution unless expressly authorized by statute or the individual to whom they pertain or unless the records pertain to and are within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(iv) Individuals are granted access to records which pertain to them in systems of records unless the system has been exempted from the access provisions of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a).

(v) No system of records subject to the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) is maintained, used, or disseminated without prior publication of a system notice in the Federal Register.

(vi) All personal information contained in any system of records is safeguarded against unwarranted and unauthorized disclosure.

(vii) Procedures are established that permit an individual to seek the correction or amendment of any record in a system of records pertaining to the individual unless system of records has been exempted from the amendment procedures of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a).

(viii) All personnel whose duties involve design, development, operation, and maintenance of any system of records are trained in the rules of conduct established.

(ix) Assist, upon request, the Defense Privacy Board on matters of special interest.

(g) The System Manager for any system of records shall:

(1) Ensure that all personnel who either have access to the system of record or who are engaged in developing or supervising procedures for handling records in the system of records are aware of their responsibilities for protecting personal information established by the DoD Privacy Program.

(2) Prepare promptly any required amended, or altered system notices for the system of records and submit them through channels for publication in the Federal Register.

(3) Notify all Automated Data Processing (ADP) or word processing managers who process information from the system of records that the information is subject to the DoD Privacy Program and the applicable routine uses for the information in the system.

(4) Coordinate with ADP and word processing managers providing services to ensure an adequate risk analysis is conducted.

(5) Coordinate with the servicing ADP and word processing managers to ensure that the system manager is notified when there are changes to processing equipment, hardware or software, and the data base that may require submission of an amended system notice.

(h) Automated Data Processing (ADP) or Word Processing Managers, who process information from any system of records, shall:

(1) Ensure that each system manager provides a current system notice or information as to the contents of the system notice for each system of records from which information is to be processed.
(2) Ensure that all personnel who have access to information from a system of records during processing or who are engaged in developing procedures for processing such information are aware of the provisions of the DoD Privacy Program policies and procedures.

(3) Notify promptly the system manager whenever there are changes to processing equipment, hardware or software, and the database that may require the submission of an amended system notice for any system of records.

(i) DoD Employees shall:

(1) Not disclose any personal information contained in any system of records except as authorized in this paragraph.

(2) Not maintain any official files which are retrievable by name or other personal identifier without first ensuring that a notice for the system has been published in the Federal Register.

(3) Report any disclosures of personal information from a system of records or the maintenance of any system of records that are not authorized by this part to the appropriate Privacy Act officials for his or her action.

Subpart B—Systems of Records

§ 310.10 General.

(a) System of records. To be subject to the provisions of this part a “system of records” must:

(1) Consist of “records” (as defined in paragraph (n) of §310.3) that are retrieved by the name of an individual or some other personal identifier, and

(2) Be under the control of a DoD Component.

(b) Retrieval practices. (1) Records in a group of records that may be retrieved by a name or personal identifier are not covered by this part even if the records contain personal data and are under control of a DoD Component. The records must be, in fact, retrieved by name or other personal identifier to become a system of records for the purpose of this part.

(2) If files that are not retrieved by name or personal identifier are rearranged in such manner that they are retrieved by name or personal identifier, a new systems notice must be submitted in accordance with paragraph (c) of §310.63 of subpart G of this part.

(3) If records in a system of records are rearranged so that retrieval is no longer by name or other personal identifier, the records are no longer subject to this part and the system notice for the records shall be deleted in accordance with paragraph (c) of §310.64 of subpart G of this part.

(c) Relevance and necessity. Retain in a system of records only that personal information which is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose required by a federal statute or an Executive Order.

(d) Authority to establish systems of records. Identify the specific statute or the Executive Order that authorize maintaining personal information in each system of records. The existence of a statute or Executive Order mandating the maintenance of a system of records does not abrogate the responsibility to ensure that the information in the system of records is relevant and necessary.

(e) Exercise of First Amendment rights. (1) Do not maintain any records describing how an individual exercises his or her rights guaranteed by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution except when:

(i) Expressly authorized by federal statute;

(ii) Expressly authorized by the individual; or

(iii) Maintenance of the information is pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(2) First Amendment rights include, but are not limited to, freedom of religion, freedom of political beliefs, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right to assemble, and the right to petition.

(f) System manager's evaluation. (1) Evaluate the information to be included in each new system before establishing the system and evaluate periodically the information contained in each existing system of records for relevancy and necessity. Such a review shall also occur when a system notice amendment or alteration is prepared (see §§310.63 and 310.64 of subpart G of this part).

(2) Consider the following:

(i) The relationship of each item of information retained and collected to the purpose for which the system is maintained;

(ii) The specific impact on the purpose or mission of not collecting each category of information contained in the system;

(iii) The possibility of meeting the information requirements through use of information not individually identifiable or through other techniques, such as sampling;

(iv) The length of time each item of personal information must be retained;

(v) The cost of maintaining the information; and

(vi) The necessity and relevancy of the information to the purpose for which it was collected.

(g) Discontinued information requirements. (1) Stop collecting immediately any category or item of personal information from which retention is no longer justified. Also excuse this information from existing records, when feasible.

(2) Do not destroy any records that must be retained in accordance with disposal authorizations established under 44 U.S.C., Section 309a, "Examination by the Administrator of General Services of Lists and Schedules of Records Lacking Preservation Value, Disposal of Records."

§ 310.11 Standards of accuracy.

(a) Accuracy of information maintained. Maintain all personal information that is used or may be used to make any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevancy, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to ensure fairness to the individual in making any such determination.

(b) Accuracy determination before dissemination. Before disseminating any personal information from a system of records to any person outside the Department of Defense, other than a federal agency, make reasonable efforts to ensure that the information to be disclosed is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for the purpose it is being maintained (see also paragraph (d) of §310.30, subpart D and paragraph (d) of §310.40, subpart E of this part).

§ 310.12 Government Contractors.

(a) Applicability to government contractors. (1) When a DoD Component contracts for the operation or maintenance of a system of records or a portion of a system of records by a contractor, the record system or the portion of the record system affected are considered to be maintained by the DoD Component and are subject to this part. The Component is responsible for applying the requirements of this part to the contractor. The contractor and its employees are to be considered employees of the DoD Component for purposes of the sanction provisions of the Privacy Act during the performance of the contract. Consistent with the Defense Acquisition Regulation (DAR), §1.327, "Protection of Individual Privacy" contracts requiring the maintenance of a system of records or the portion of a system of records shall identify specifically the record system and the work to be performed and shall include in the solicitation and resulting contract such terms as are prescribed by the DAR.

(2) If the contractor must use or have access to individually identifiable information subject to this part to perform any part of a contract, and the information would have been collected and maintained by the DoD Component but for the award of the contract, these contractor activities are subject to this Regulation.

(3) The restriction in paragraphs (a) (1) and (2) of § 310.12 of this part do not apply to records:

(i) Established and maintained to assist in making internal contractor management decisions, such as records maintained by the contractor for use in managing the contract;

(ii) Maintained as internal contractor employee records even when used in conjunction with providing goods and services to the Department of Defense; or

(iii) Maintained as training records by an educational organization contracted by a DoD Component to provide training when the records of the contract students are similar to and comingle with training records of other students (for example, admission forms, transcripts, academic counselling and similar records);

(iv) Maintained by a consumer reporting agency to which records have been disclosed under contract in accordance with the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, Title 31, United States Code, section 952(d).

(4) DoD Components must publish instruction that:

(i) Furnish DoD Privacy Program guidance to their personnel who solicit, award, or administer government contracts;

(ii) Inform prospective contractors of their responsibilities regarding the DoD Privacy Program; and

(iii) Establish an internal system of contractor performance review to ensure compliance with the DoD Privacy Program.

(b) Contracting procedures. The Defense Systems Acquisition Regulatory Council (DSARC) is responsible for developing the specific policies and procedures to be followed when soliciting bids, awarding contracts or administering contracts that are subject to this part.

(c) Contractor compliance. Through the various contract surveillance programs, ensure contractors comply with the procedures established in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section.

(d) Disclosure of records to contractors. Disclosure of personal records to a contractor for the use in the performance of any DoD contract by a DoD Component is considered a disclosure within the Department of Defense (see paragraph (b) of § 310.40, subpart E of this part). The contractor is considered the agent of the contracting DoD Component and to be maintaining and receiving the records for that Component.

§ 310.13 Safeguarding personal information.

(a) General responsibilities. Establish appropriate administrative, technical and physical safeguards to ensure that the records in every system of records are protected from unauthorized alteration or disclosure and that their confidentiality is protected. Protect the records against reasonably anticipated threats or hazards that could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to any individual about whom information is kept.

(b) Minimum standards.

(1) Tailor system safeguards to conform to the type of records in the system, the sensitivity of the personal information stored, the storage medium used and, to a degree, the number of records maintained.

(2) Treat all unclassified records that contain personal information that normally would be withheld from the public under Exemption Numbers 6 and 7, of § 286.31, subpart D of 32 CFR part 286 (DoD Freedom of Information Act Program) as if they were designated “For Official Use Only” and safeguard them in accordance with the standards established by subpart E of 32 CFR part 286 (DoD FOIA Program) even if they are not actually marked “For Official Use Only.”

(3) Afford personal information that does not meet the criteria discussed in paragraph (c)(3) of this § 310.13 that degree of security which provides protection commensurate with the nature and type of information involved.

(4) Special administrative, physical, and technical procedures are required to protect data that is stored or being processed temporarily in an automated data processing (ADP) system or in a word processing activity to protect it against threats unique to those environments (see Appendices A and B).

(5) Tailor safeguards specifically to the vulnerabilities of the system.

(c) Records disposal. (1) Dispose of records containing personal data so as to prevent inadvertent compromise. Disposal methods such as tearing, burning, melting, chemical decomposition, pulping, pulverizing, shredding, or mutilation are considered adequate if the personal data is rendered unrecognizable or beyond reconstruction.

(2) The transfer of large quantities of records containing personal data (for example, computer cards and printouts) in bulk to a disposal activity, such as the Defense Property Disposal Office, is not a release of personal information under this part. The sheer volume of such transfers makes it difficult or impossible to identify readily specific individual records.

(3) When disposing of or destroying large quantities of records containing personal information, care must be exercised to ensure that the bulk of the records is maintained so as to prevent specific records from being readily identified. If bulk is maintained, no special procedures are required. If bulk cannot be maintained or if the form of the records make individually identifiable information easily available, dispose of the record in accordance with paragraphs (c)(1) of this section.

Subpart C—Collecting Personal Information

§ 310.20 General considerations.

(a) Collect directly from the individual. Collect to the greatest extent practicable personal information directly from the individual to whom it pertains if the information may be used in making any determination about the rights, privileges, or benefits of the individual under any federal program (see also paragraph (c) of this section).

(b) Collecting Social Security Numbers (SSNs). (1) It is unlawful for any federal, state, or local governmental agency to deny an individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because the individual refuses to provide his or her SSN. However, if a federal statute requires that the SSN be furnished or if the SSN is required to verify the identity of the individual in a system of records that was established and in use before January 1, 1975, and the SSN was required as an identifier by a statute or regulation adopted before that date, this restriction does not apply.

(2) When an individual is requested to provide his or her SSN, he or she must be advised:

(i) The uses that will be made of the SSN;

(ii) The statute, regulation, or rule authorizing the solicitation of the SSN; and
(iii) Whether providing the SSN is voluntary or mandatory.

(3) Include in any system notice for any system of records that contains SSNs a statement indicating the authority for maintaining the SSN and the sources of the SSNs in the system. If the SSN is obtained directly from the individual indicate whether this is voluntary or mandatory.

(4) Executive Order 12007, "Numbering System For Federal Accounts Relating to Individual Persons," November 30, 1943, authorizes solicitation and use of SSNs as numerical identifier for individuals in most federal records systems. However, it does not provide mandatory authority for soliciting SSNs.

(5) Upon entrance into military service or civilian employment with the Department of Defense, individuals are asked to provide their SSNs. The SSN becomes the service or employment number for the individual and is used to establish personnel, financial, medical, and other official records. Provide the notification in paragraph (b)(2) of this section to the individual when originally soliciting his or her SSN. After an individual has provided his or her SSN for the purpose of establishing a record, the notification in paragraph (b)(2) of this section is not required if the individual is only requested to furnish or verify the SSNs for identification purposes in connection with the normal use of his or her records. However, if the SSN is to be written down and retained for any purpose by the requesting official, the individual must be provided the notification required by paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735) when soliciting SSNs for use in OPM records systems.

(c) Collecting personal information from third parties. It may not be practical to collect personal information directly from the individual in all cases.
Some examples of this are:

(1) Verification of information through third party sources for security or employment suitability determinations;

(2) Seeking third party opinions such as supervisory comments as to job knowledge, duty performance, or other opinion-type evaluations;

(3) When obtaining the needed information directly from the individual is exceptionally difficult or may result in unreasonable costs; or

(4) Contacting a third party at the request of the individual to furnish necessary information such as exact periods of employment, termination dates, copies of records, or similar information.

(d) Privacy Act Statements. (1) When an individual is requested to furnish personal information about himself or herself for inclusion in a system of records, a Privacy Act Statement is required regardless of the medium used to collect the information (forms, personal interviews, stylized formats, telephonic interviews, or other methods). The Privacy Act Statement consists of the elements set forth in paragraph (d)(2) of this section. The statement enables the individual to make an informed decision whether to provide the information requested. If the personal information solicited is not to be incorporated into a system of records, the statement need not be given.

However, personal information obtained without a Privacy Act Statement shall not be incorporated into any system of records. When soliciting SSNs for any purpose, see paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(2) The Privacy Act Statement shall include:

(i) The specific federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes collection of the requested information.

(see paragraph (d) of § 310.10 of this part);

(ii) The principal purpose or purposes for which the information is to be used:

(iii) The routine uses that will be made of the information (see paragraph (e) of § 310.41, subpart E of this part);

(iv) Whether providing the information is voluntary or mandatory
(see paragraph (e) of this section);

(v) The effects on the individual if he or she chooses not to provide the requested information.

(3) The Privacy Act Statement shall be concise, current, and easily understood.

(4) The Privacy Act statement may appear as a public notice (sign or poster), conspicuously displayed in the area where the information is collected, such as at check-cashing facilities or identification photograph facilities.

(5) The individual normally is not required to sign the Privacy Act Statement.

(6) Provide the individual a written copy of the Privacy Act Statement upon request. This must be done regardless of the method chosen to furnish the initial advisement.

(e) Mandatory as opposed to voluntary disclosures. Include in the Privacy Act Statement specifically whether furnishing the requested personal data is mandatory or voluntary. A requirement to furnish personal data is mandatory only when a federal statute, Executive Order, regulation, or other lawful order specifically imposes a duty on the individual to provide the information sought, and the individual is subject to a penalty if he or she fails to provide the requested information. If providing the information is only a condition of or prerequisite to granting a benefit or privilege and the individual has the option of requesting the benefit or privilege, providing the information is always voluntary. However, the loss or denial of the privilege, benefit, or entitlement sought may be listed as a consequence of not furnishing the requested information.

§ 310.21 Forms.

(a) DoD forms. (1) DoD Directive

5000.21, "Forms Management Program" provides guidance for preparing Privacy Act Statements for use with forms (see also paragraph (b)(1) of this section).

(b) Forms issued by non-DoD activities. (1) Forms subject to the Privacy Act issued by other federal agencies have a Privacy Act Statement attached or included. Always ensure that the statement prepared by the originating agency is adequate for the purpose for which the form will be used by the DoD activity. If the Privacy Act Statement provided is inadequate, the DoD Component concerned shall prepare a new statement or a supplement to the existing statement before using the form.

(2) Forms issued by agencies not subject to the Privacy Act (state, municipal, and other local agencies) do not contain Privacy Act Statements.

Before using a form prepared by such agencies to collect personal data subject to this part, an appropriate Privacy Act Statement must be added.

Subpart D—Access by Individuals

§ 310.30 Individual access to personnel information.

(a) Individual access. (1) The access provisions of this part are intended for use by individuals about whom records are maintained in systems of records. Release of personal information to individuals under this part is not considered public release of information.

(2) Make available to the individual to whom the record pertains all of the personal information that can be released consistent with DoD responsibilities.

(b) Individual requests for access. Individuals shall address requests for access to personal information in a system of records to the system manager or to the office designated in the DoD Component rules or the system notice.

(c) Verification of identity. (1) Before granting access to personal data, an individual may be required to provide reasonable verification of his or her identity.

(2) Identity verification procedures shall not:

(i) Be so complicated as to discourage unnecessarily individuals from seeking access to information about themselves; or

(ii) Be required of an individual seeking access to records which normally would be available under the "DoD Freedom of Information Act Program" (32 CFR part 226).

(3) Normally, when individuals seek personal access to records pertaining to themselves, identification is made from documents that normally are readily available, such as employee and military identification cards, driver's license, other licenses, permits or passes used for routine identification purposes.

(4) When access is requested by mail, identity verification may consist of the individual providing certain minimum identifying data, such as full name, date and place of birth, or such other personal information necessary to locate the record sought. If the information sought is of a sensitive nature, additional identifying data may be required. If notarization of requests is required, procedures shall be established for an alternate method of verification for individuals who do not have access to notary services, such as military members overseas.

(5) If an individual wishes to be accompanied by a third party when seeking access to his or her records or to have the records released directly to a third party, the individual may be required to furnish a signed access authorization granting the third party access.

(6) An individual shall not be refused access to his or her record solely because he or she refuses to divulge his or her SSN unless the SSN is the only method by which retrieval can be made. (See paragraph (b) of §310.20.

(7) The individual is not required to explain or justify his or her need for access to any record under this part.

(8) Only a denial authority may deny access and the denial must be in writing and contain the information required by paragraph (b) of §310.31.

(d) Granting individual access to records. (1) Grant the individual access to the original record or an exact copy of the original record without any changes or deletions, except when changes or deletions have been made in accordance with paragraph (e) of this section. For the purpose of granting access, the record that has been amended under paragraph (b) of §310.31 is considered to be the original. See paragraph (e) of this section for the policy regarding the use of summaries and extracts.

(2) Provide exact copies of the record when furnishing the individual copies of records under this part.

(3) Explain in terms understood by the requester any record or portion of a record that is not clear.

(e) Illegible, incomplete, or partially exempt records. (1) Do not deny an individual access to a record or a copy of a record solely because the physical condition or format of the record does not make it readily available (for example, deteriorated state or on magnetic tape). Either prepare an extract or recopy the document exactly.

(2) If a portion of the record contains information that is exempt from access, an extract or summary containing all of the information in the record that is releasable shall be prepared.

(3) When the physical condition of the record or its state makes it necessary to prepare an extract for release, ensure that the extract can be understood by the requester.

(4) Explain to the requester all deletions or changes to the records.

(f) Access to medical records. (1) Disclose medical records to the individual to whom they pertain, even if a minor, unless a judgment is made that access to such records could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of the individual. Normally, this determination shall be made in consultation with a medical doctor.

(2) If it is determined that the release of the medical information may be harmful to the mental or physical health of the individual, the record shall not be released.

(i) Send the record to a physician named by the individual; and

(ii) In the transmittal letter to the physician explain why access by the individual without proper professional supervision could be harmful (unless it is obvious from the record).

(3) Do not require the physician to request the records for the individual.

(4) If the individual refuses or fails to designate a physician, the record shall not be provided. Such refusal of access is not considered a denial for Privacy Act reporting purposes. (See paragraph (a) of §310.31).

(5) Access to a minor's medical records may be granted to his or her parents or legal guardians. However, observe the following procedures:

(i) In the United States, the laws of the particular state in which the records are located may afford special protection to certain types of medical records (for example, records dealing with treatment for drug or alcohol abuse and certain psychiatric records). Even if the records are maintained by a military medical facilities these statutes may apply.

(ii) For the purposes of parental access to the medical records and medical determinations regarding minors at overseas installation the age of majority is 18 years except when:

(A) A minor at the time he or she sought or consented to the treatment was between 15 and 17 years of age;

(B) The treatment was sought in a program which was authorized by regulation or statute to offer confidentiality of treatment records as a part of the program;

(C) The minor specifically requested or indicated that he or she wished the treatment record to be handled with confidence and not released to a parent or guardian; and

(D) The parent or guardian seeking access does not have the written authorization of the minor or a valid court order granting access.

(iii) If all four of the above conditions are met, the parent or guardian shall be denied access to the medical records of the minor. Do not use these procedures to deny the minor access to his or her own records under this part or any other statutes.

(6) All members of the Military Services and all married persons are not considered minors regardless of age, and the parents of these individuals do not have access to their medical records without written consent of the individual.

(g) Access to information compiled in anticipation of civil action. (1) An individual is not entitled under this part to gain access to information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

(2) The term "civil proceeding" is intended to include quasi-judicial and pretrial judicial proceedings that are the necessary preliminary steps to formal litigation.

(3) Attorney work products prepared in conjunction with quasi-judicial
PRIVACY ACT RULES

Denial of individual access.

(a) Denying individual access. An individual may be denied formally access to a record pertaining to him or her only if the record:

(i) Was compiled in reasonable anticipation of civil action (see paragraph (g) of §310.30)

(ii) Is in a system of records that has been exempted from the access provisions of this regulation under one of the permitted exemptions (see subpart F of this part).

(iii) Contains classified information that has been exempted from the access provision of this part under blanket exemption for such material claimed for all DoD records system (see paragraph (c) of §310.50 of subpart F of this part).

(iv) Is contained in a system of records for which access may be denied under some other federal statute.

(2) Only deny the individual access to those portions of the records from which the denial of access serves some legitimate governmental purpose.

(b) Other reasons to refuse access. (1) An individual may be refused access if:

(i) The record is not described well enough to enable it to be located with a reasonable amount of effort on the part of an employee familiar with the file; or

(ii) Access is sought by an individual who fails or refuses to comply with the established procedural requirements, including refusing to name a physician to receive medical records when prertrial, and trial proceedings, to include those prepared to advise DoD Component officials of the possible legal consequences of a given course of action, are protected.

(h) Access to investigatory records.

(1) Requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and compiled for law enforcement purposes are processed under this part of the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286) depending on which part gives them the greatest degree of access.

(2) Process requests by individuals for access to investigatory record pertaining to themselves compiled for law enforcement purposes and in the custody of law enforcement activities that have been incorporated into systems of records exempted from the access provisions of this part in accordance with section B. of Chapter 5 under reference (f). Do not deny an individual access to the record solely because it is in the exempt system, but give him or her automatically the same access he or she would receive under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). See also paragraph (b) of this section.

(3) Process requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves that are in records systems exempted from access provisions under paragraph (a) of §310.52, subpart F, under this part, or the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 286) depending upon which regulation gives the greatest degree of access (see also paragraph (j) of this section).

(4) Refer individual requests for access to investigatory records exempted from access under a general exemption temporarily in the hands of a noninvestigatory element for adjudicative or personnel actions to the originating investigating agency. Inform the requester in writing of these referrals.

(i) Nonagency records. (1) Certain documents under the physical control of DoD personnel and used to assist them in performing official functions, are not considered “agency records” within the meaning of this Regulation. Uncirculated personal notes and records that are not disseminated or circulated to any person or organization (for example, personal telephone lists or memory aids) that are retained or discarded at the author’s discretion and over which the Component exercises no direct control, are not considered agency records. However, if personnel are officially directed or encouraged, either in writing or orally, to maintain such records, they required (see paragraph (f) of §310.30) or to pay fees (see §310.33 of this subpart).
(2) Always explain to the individual the specific reason access has been refused and how he or she may obtain access.

(c) Notifying the individual. Formal denials of access must be in writing and include as a minimum:
(1) The name, title or position, and signature of a designated Component denial authority;
(2) The date of the denial;
(3) The specific reason for the denial, including specific citation to the appropriate sections of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) or other statutes, this part, DoD Component instructions or Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) authorizing the denial;
(4) Notice to the individual of his or her right to appeal the denial through the Component appeal procedure within 60 calendar days; and
(5) The title or position and address of the Privacy Act appeals official for the Component.

(d) DoD Component appeal procedures. Establish internal appeal procedures that, as a minimum, provide for:
(1) Review by the head of the Component or his or her designee of any appeal by an individual from a denial of access to Component records.
(2) Formal written notification to the individual by the appeal authority that shall:
(i) If the denial is sustained totally or in part, include as a minimum:
(A) The exact reason for denying the appeal to include specific citation to the provisions of the Act or other statute, this part, Component instructions or the CFR upon which the determination is based;
(B) The date of the appeal determination;
(C) The name, title, and signature of the appeal authority;
(D) A statement informing the applicant of his or her right to seek judicial relief.
(ii) If the appeal is granted, notify the individual and provide access to the material to which access has been granted.
(3) The written appeal notification granting or denying access is the final Component action as regards access.
(4) The individual shall file any appeals from denial of access within no less than 60 calendar days of receipt of the denial notification.
(5) Process all appeals within 30 days of receipt unless the appeal authority determines that a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that period. Notify the applicant in writing if additional time is required for the appellate review. The notification must include the reasons for the delay and state when the individual may expect an answer to the appeal.

(e) Denial of appeals by failure to act. A requester may consider his or her appeal formally denied if the authority fails:
(1) To act on the appeal within 30 days;
(2) To provide the requester with a notice of extension within 30 days; or
(3) To act within the time limits established in the Component’s notice of extension (see paragraph (d)(5) of this section).

(f) Denying access to OPM records held by DoD Components. (1) The records in all systems of records maintained in accordance with the OPM government-wide system notices are technically only in the temporary custody of the Department of Defense.
(2) All requests for access to these records must be processed in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (§5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735) as well as the applicable Component procedures.

(3) When a DoD Component refuses to grant access to a record in an OPM system, the Component shall instruct the individual to direct his or her appeal to the appropriate Component appeal authority, not the Office of Personnel Management.

(4) The Component is responsible for the administrative review of its denial of access to such records.

§310.32 Amendment of records.

(a) Individual review and correction. Individuals are encouraged to review the personnel information being maintained about them by DoD Components periodically and to avail themselves of the procedures established by this part and any other Component regulations to update their records.

(b) Amending records. (1) An individual may request the amendment of any record contained in a system of records pertaining to him or her unless the system of record has been exempted specifically from the amendment procedures of this part under paragraph (b) of §310.50, subpart F. Normally, amendments under this part are limited to correcting factual matters and not matters of official judgment, such as performance ratings, promotion potential, and job performance appraisals.

(2) While a Component may require that the request for amendment be in writing, this requirement shall not be used to discourage individuals from requesting valid amendments or to burden needlessly the amendment process.

(3) A request for amendment must include:
(i) A description of the item or items to be amended;
(ii) The specific reason for the amendment;
(iii) The type of amendment action sought (deletion, correction, or addition); and
(iv) Copies of available documentary evidence supporting the request.

(c) Burden of proof. The applicant must support adequately his or her claim.

(d) Identification of requesters. (1) Individuals may be required to provide identification to ensure that they are indeed seeking to amend a record pertaining to themselves and not, inadvertently or intentionally, the record of others.

(2) The identification procedures shall not be used to discourage legitimate requests or to burden needlessly or delay the amendment process. (See paragraph (c) of §310.30).

(e) Limits on attacking evidence previously submitted. (1) The amendment process is not intended to permit the alteration of evidence presented in the course of judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Any amendments or changes to these records normally are made through the specific procedures established for the amendment of such records.

(2) Nothing in the amendment process is intended or designed to permit a collateral attack upon what has already been the subject of a judicial or quasi-judicial determination. However, while the individual may not attack the accuracy of the judicial or quasi-judicial determination under this part, he or she may challenge the accuracy of the recording of that action.

(f) Sufficiency of a request to amend. Consider the following factors when evaluating the sufficiency of a request to amend:
(1) The accuracy of the information itself; and
(2) The relevancy, timeliness, completeness, and necessity of the recorded information for accomplishing an assigned mission or purpose.

(g) Time limits. (1) Provide written acknowledgement of a request to amend within 10 working days of its receipt by the appropriate systems manager. There is no need to acknowledge a request if the action is completed within 10 working days and the individual is so informed.

(2) The letter of acknowledgement shall clearly identify the request and advise the individual when he or she may expect to be notified of the completed action.

(3) Only under the most exceptional circumstances shall more than 10 days be required to reach a decision on a request to amend. Document fully and explain in the Privacy Act case file (see paragraph (p) of this section) any such decision that takes more than 30 days to resolve.

(h) Agreement to amend. If the decision is made to grant all or part of the request for amendment, amend the record accordingly and notify the requester.

(i) Notification of previous recipients. The request for amendment is denied in whole or in part, promptly advise the individual in writing of the decision to include:

(1) The specific reason and authority for not amending;

(2) Notification that he or she may seek further independent review of the decision by the head of the Component or his or her designee;

(3) The procedures for appealing the decision citing the position and address of the official to whom the appeal shall be addressed; and

(4) Where he or she can receive assistance in filing the appeal.

(k) DoD Component appeal procedures. Establish procedures to ensure the prompt, complete, and independent review of each amendment denial upon appeal by the individual. These procedures must ensure that:

(1) The appeal with all supporting materials both that furnished the individual and that contained in Component records is provided to the reviewing official, and

(2) If the appeal is denied completely or in part, the individual is notified in writing by the reviewing official that:

(i) The appeal has been denied and the specific reason and authority for the denial;

(ii) The individual may file a statement of disagreement with the appropriate authority and the procedures for filing this statement;

(iii) If filed properly, the statement of disagreement shall be included in the records, furnished to all future recipients of the records, and provided to all prior recipients of the disputed records who are known to hold the record; and

(iv) The individual may seek a judicial review of the decision not to amend.

(3) If the record is amended, ensure that:

(i) The requester is notified promptly of the decision;

(ii) All prior known recipients of the records who are known to be retaining the record are notified of the amendment and the specific nature of the amendment (see paragraph (i) of this section); and

(iii) The requester is notified as to which DoD Components and federal agencies have been told of the amendment.

(4) Process all appeals within 30 days unless the appeal authority determines that a fair review cannot be made within this time limit. If additional time is required for the appeal, notify the requester in writing, of the delay, the reason for the delay, and when he or she may expect a final decision on the appeal. Document fully all requirements for additional time in the Privacy Case File. (See paragraph (p) of this section)

(l) Denying amendment of OPM records held by DoD Components. (1) The records in all systems of records controlled by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) government-wide system notices are technically only temporarily in the custody of the Department of Defense.

(2) All requests for amendment of these records must be processed in accordance with the OPM Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735). The Component denial authority may deny a request. However, the appeal process for all such denials must include a review by the Assistant Director for Agency Compliance and Evaluation, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street NW, Washington, DC 20415.

(3) When an appeal is received from a Component's denial of amendment of the OPM controlled record, process the appeal in accordance with the OPM Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735) and notify the OPM appeal authority listed above.

(4) The individual may appeal any Component decision not to amend the OPM records directly to OPM.

(5) OPM is the final review authority for any appeals from a denial to amend the OPM records.

(m) Statements of disagreement submitted by individuals. (1) If the reviewing authority refuses to amend the record as requested, the individual may submit a concise statement of disagreement setting forth his or her reasons for disagreeing with the decision not to amend.

(2) If an individual chooses to file a statement of disagreement, annotate the record to indicate that the statement has been filed (see paragraph (n) of this section).

(3) Furnish copies of the statement of disagreement to all DoD Components and federal agencies that have been provided copies of the disputed information and who may be maintaining the information.

(n) Maintaining statements of disagreement. (1) When possible, incorporate the statement of disagreement into the record.

(2) If the statement cannot be made a part of the record, establish procedures to ensure that it is apparent from the records that a statement of disagreement has been filed and maintain the statement so that it can be obtained readily when the disputed information is used or disclosed.

(3) Automated record systems that are not programmed to accept statements of disagreement shall be annotated or coded so that they clearly indicate that a statement of disagreement is on file, and clearly identify the statement with the disputed information in the system.

(4) Provide a copy of the statement of disagreement whenever the disputed information is disclosed for any purpose.

(o) DoD Component summaries of reasons for refusing to amend. (1) A summary of reasons for refusing to amend may be included with any record for which a statement of disagreement is filed.

(2) Include in this summary only the reasons furnished to the individual for not amending the record. Do not include comments on the statement of disagreement. Normally, the summary and statement of disagreement are filed together.

(3) When disclosing information for which a summary has been filed, a copy of the summary may be included in the release, if the Component desires.

(p) Privacy Case Files. (1) Establish a separate Privacy Case File to retain the documentation received and generated during the amendment or access process.

(2) The Privacy Case File shall contain as a minimum:

(i) The request for amendment or access;
(ii) Copies of the DoD Component's reply granting or denying the request;
(iii) Any appeals from the individual;
(iv) Copies of the action regarding the appeal with supporting documentation which is not in the basic file; and
(v) Any other correspondence generated in processing the appeal, to include coordination documentation.

(3) Only the items listed in paragraphs (p)(4) and (5) of this section may be included in the system of records challenged for amendment or for which access is sought. Do not retain copies of unamended records in the basic record system if the request for amendment is granted.

(4) The following items relating to an amendment request may be included in the disputed record system:

(i) Copies of the amended record.
(ii) Copies of the individual's statement of disagreement (see paragraph (m) of this section).
(iii) Copies of Component summaries (see paragraph (o) of this section).
(iv) Supporting documentation submitted by the individual.

(5) The following items relating to an access request may be included in the basic records system:

(i) Copies of the request;
(ii) Copies of the Component's action granting total access.

Note.—A separate Privacy case file need not be created in such cases.

(iii) Copies of the Component's action denying access;
(iv) Copies of any appeals filed;
(v) Copies of the reply to the appeal.

(6) There is no need to establish a Privacy case file if the individual has not cited the Privacy Act (reference (b)), this part, or the Component implementing instruction for this part.

(7) Privacy case files shall not be furnished or disclosed to anyone for use in making any determination about the individual other than determinations made under this part.

§ 310.33 Reproduction fees.

(a) Assessing fees. (1) Charge the individual only the direct cost of reproduction.

(2) Do not charge reproduction fees if copying is:

(i) The only means to make the record available to the individual (for example, a copy of the record must be made to delete classified information); or
(ii) For the convenience of the DoD Component (for example, the Component has no reading room where an individual may review the record, or reproduction is done to keep the original in the Component's file).

(3) No fees shall be charged when the record may be obtained without charge under any other regulation, directive, or statute.

(4) Do not use fees to discourage requests.

(b) No minimum fees authorized. Use fees only to recoup direct reproduction costs associated with granting access. Minimum fees for duplication are not authorized and there is no automatic charge for processing a request.

(c) Prohibited fees. Do not charge or collect fees for:

(1) Search and retrieval of records;
(2) Review of records to determine releasability;
(3) Copying records for DoD Component convenience or when the individual has not specifically requested a copy;
(4) Transportation of records and personnel; or
(5) Normal postage.

(d) Waiver of fees. (1) Normally, fees are waived automatically if the direct costs of a given request is less than $30. This fee waiver provision does not apply when a waiver has been granted to the individual before, and later requests appear to be an extension or duplication of that original request. A DoD Component may, however, set aside this automatic fee waiver provision when on the basis of good evidence it determines that the waiver of fees is not in the public interest.

(2) Decisions to waive or reduce fees that exceed the automatic waiver threshold shall be made on a case-by-case basis.

(e) Fees for members of Congress. Do not charge members of Congress for copying records furnished even when the records are requested under the Privacy Act on behalf of a constituent (see paragraph (k) of § 310.41 of subpart E of this part). When replying to a constituent inquiry and the fees involved are substantial, consider suggesting to the Congressman that the constituent can obtain the information directly by writing to the appropriate offices and paying the costs. When practical, suggest to the Congressman that the record can be examined at no cost if the constituent wishes to visit the custodian of the record.

(f) Reproduction fees computation. Compute fees using the appropriate portions of the fee schedule in subpart G of the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286).

Subpart E—Disclosure of Personal Information to Other Agencies and Third Parties

§ 310.40 Conditions of disclosure.

(a) Disclosures to third parties. (1) The Privacy Act only compels disclosure of records from a system of records to the individuals to whom they pertain.

(2) All requests by individual for personal information about other individuals (third parties) shall be processed under the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286), except for requests by the parents of a minor, or legal guardians of an individual, for access to the records pertaining to the minor or individual.

(b) Disclosures among DoD Components. For the purposes of disclosure and disclosure accounting, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency (see paragraph (a) of § 310.41 of this part).

(c) Disclosures outside the Department of Defense. Do not disclose personal information from a system of records outside the Department of Defense unless:

(1) The record has been requested by the individual to whom it pertains.

(2) The written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains has been obtained for release of the record to the requesting agency, activity, or individual, or

(3) The release is for one of the specific nonconsensual purposes set forth in § 310.41 of this part.

(d) Validation before disclosure. Except for releases made in accordance with the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552), before disclosing any personal information to any recipient outside the Department of Defense other than a federal agency or the individual to whom it pertains:

(1) Ensure that the records are accurate, timely, complete, and relevant for agency purposes;

(2) Contact the individual, if reasonably available, to verify the accuracy, completeness, and relevancy of the information, if the individual cannot be determined from the record; or

(3) If the information is not current and the individual is not reasonably available, advise the recipient that the information is believed accurate as of a specific date and any other known factors bearing on its accuracy and relevancy.
§ 310.41 Nonconsensual disclosures.

(a) Disclosures within the Department of Defense. (1) Records pertaining to an individual may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to any DoD official who has need for the record in the performance of his or her assigned duties.

(2) Rank, position, or title alone do not authorize access to personal information about others. An official need for the information must exist before disclosure.

(b) Disclosures under the Freedom of Information Act. (1) All records must be disclosed if their release is required by the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) see also the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286). The Freedom of Information Act requires that records be made available to the public unless exempted from disclosure by one of the nine exemptions found in the Act. It follows, therefore, that if a record is not exempt from disclosure it must be disclosed.

(2) The standard for exempting most personal records, such as personnel records, medical records, and similar records, is found in Exemption Number 6 of §286.31 of 32 CFR part 286. Under that exemption, release of personal information can only be denied when its release would be a "clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

(3) Release of personal information in investigatory records including personnel security investigation records is controlled by the broader standard of an "unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" found in Exemption Number 7 of §286.31 of 32 CFR part 286. This broader standard applies only to investigatory records.

(4) See 32 CFR part 286 for the standards to use in applying these exemptions.

(c) Personal information that is normally releasable.—(1) DoD civilian employees. (i) Some examples of personal information regarding DoD civilian employees that normally may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy include:

(A) Name.

(B) Present and past position titles.

(C) Present and past grades.

(D) Present and past salaries.

(E) Present and past duty stations.

(F) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(ii) All disclosures of personal information regarding federal civilian employees shall be made in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (FPM) 5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735.

(2) Military members. (i) While it is not possible to identify categorically information that must be released or withheld from military personnel records in every instance, the following items of personal information regarding military members normally may be disclosed without a clearly unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy:

(A) Full name.

(B) Rank.

(C) Date of rank.

(D) Gross salary.

(E) Past duty assignments.

(F) Present duty assignment.

(G) Future assignments that are officially established.

(H) Office of duty telephone numbers.

(I) Source of commission.

(J) Promotion sequence number.

(K) Awards and decorations.

(L) Attendance at professional military schools.

(M) Duty status at any given time.

(ii) All releases of personal information regarding military members shall be made in accordance with the standards established by 32 CFR part 286.

(3) Civilian employees not under the FPM. (i) While it is not possible to identify categorically those items of personal information that must be released regarding civilian employees not subject to the Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735), such as nonappropriated fund employees, normally the following items may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy:

(A) Full name.

(B) Grade or position.

(C) Date of grade.

(D) Gross salary.

(E) Present and past assignments.

(F) Future assignments, if officially established.

(G) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(ii) All releases of personal information regarding civilian personnel in this category shall be made in accordance with the standards established by 32 CFR part 286, the DoD Freedom of Information Program.

(d) Release of home addresses and home telephone numbers. (1) The release of home addresses and home telephone numbers normally is considered a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and is prohibited. However, these may be released without prior specific consent of the individual if:

(i) The individual has indicated previously that he or she interposes no objection to their release (see paragraphs (d)(3) and (4) of this section);

(ii) The source of the information to be released is a public document such as commercial telephone directory or other public listing;

(iii) The release is required by federal statute (for example, pursuant to federally-funded state programs to locate parents who have defaulted on child support payments (42 U.S.C. section 653)); or

(iv) The releasing official releases the information under the provisions of the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program (32 CFR part 286).

(2) A request for a home address or telephone number may be referred to the last known address of the individual for a direct reply by him or her to the requester. In such cases the requester shall be notified of the referral.

(3) When collecting lists of home addresses and telephone numbers, the individual may be offered the option of authorizing the information pertaining to him or her to be disseminated without further permission for specific purposes, such as locator services. In these cases, the information may be disseminated for the stated purpose without further consent. However, if the information is to be disseminated for any other purpose, a new consent is required. Normally such consent for release is in writing and signed by the individual.

(4) Before listing home addresses and home telephone numbers in DoD telephone directories, give the individuals the opportunity to refuse such a listing. Excuse the individual from paying any additional cost that may be associated with maintaining an unlisted number for government-owned telephone services if the individual requests his or her number not be listed in the directory under this part.

(5) Do not sell or rent lists of individual names and addresses unless such action is specifically authorized.

(e) Disclosures for established routine uses. (1) Records may be disclosed outside the Department of Defense without consent of the individual to whom they pertain for an established routine use.

(2) A routine use shall:

(i) Be compatible with and related to the purpose for which the record was compiled;

(ii) Identify the persons or organizations to whom the record may be released;

(iii) Identify specifically the uses to which the information may be put by the receiving agency; and
(iv) Have been published previously in the Federal Register (see paragraph (i) of § 310.62, subpart G of this part).
(3) Establish a routine use for each user of the information outside the Department of Defense who need official access to the records.
(4) Routine uses may be established, discontinued, or amended without the consent of the individuals involved. However, new or changed routine uses must be published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before actually disclosing any records under their provisions (see subpart G of this part).
(5) In addition to the routine uses established by the individual system notices, common blanket routine uses for all DoD-maintained systems of records have been established (see appendix C). These blanket routine uses are published only at the beginning of the listing of system notices for each Component in the Federal Register (see paragraph (a)(1) of § 310.62, subpart G of this part). Unless a system notice specifically excludes a system from a given blanket routine use, all blanket routine uses apply.
(6) If the recipient has not been identified in the Federal Register or a use to which the recipient intends to put the record has not been published in the system notice as a routine use, the written permission of the individual is required before release or use of the record for that purpose.
(7) Disclosures to the Bureau of the Census. Records in DoD systems of records may be disclosed without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain to the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census survey or related activities pursuant to the provisions of 13 U.S.C., section 8.
(g) Disclosures for statistical research and reporting. (1) Records may be disclosed for statistical research and reporting without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain. Before such disclosures the recipient must provide advance written assurance that:
(i) The records will be used as statistical research or reporting records;
(ii) The records will only be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable; and
(iii) The records will not be used, in whole or in part, to make any determination about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of specific individuals.
(2) A disclosure accounting (see paragraph (a) of § 310.44 of this part) is not required when information that is not identifiable individually is released for statistical research or reporting.
(h) Disclosures to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) General Services Administration. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to the NARA if they:
(i) Have historical or other value to warrant continued preservation; or
(ii) For evaluation by the NARA to determine if a record has such historical or other value.
(2) Records transferred to a Federal Records Center (FRC) for safekeeping and storage do not fall within this category. These remain under the control of the transferring Component, and the FRC personnel are considered agents of the Component which retains control over the records. No disclosure accounting is required for the transfer of records to the FRCs.
(i) Disclosures for law enforcement purposes. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to another agency or an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity, provided:
(i) The civil or criminal law enforcement activity is authorized by law;
(ii) The head of the law enforcement activity or a designee has made a written request specifying the particular records desired and the law enforcement purpose (such as criminal investigations, enforcement of a civil law, or a similar purpose) for which the record is sought; and
(iii) There is no federal statute that prohibits the disclosure of the records.
(2) Normally, blanket requests for access to any and all records pertaining to an individual are not honored.
(3) When a record is released to a law enforcement activity under paragraph (i)(1) of this section, maintain a disclosure accounting. This disclosure accounting shall not be made available to the individual to whom the record pertains if the law enforcement activity requests that the disclosure not be released.
(4) The blanket routine use for Law Enforcement (appendix C, section A.) applies to all DoD Component systems notices (see paragraph (e)(5) of this section). Only by including this routine use can a Component, on its own initiative, report indications of violations of law found in a system of records to a law enforcement activity without the consent of the individual to whom the record pertains (see paragraph (i)(1) of this section when responding to requests from law enforcement activities).
(j) Emergency disclosures. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain if disclosure is made under compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of any individual. The affected individual need not be the subject of the record disclosed.
(2) When such a disclosure is made, notify the individual who is the subject of the record. Notification sent to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is sufficient.
(3) The specific data to be disclosed is at the discretion of releasing authority.
(4) Emergency medical information may be released by telephone.
(k) Disclosures to Congress and the General Accounting Office. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to either House of the Congress or to any committee, joint committee or subcommittee of Congress if the release pertains to a matter within the jurisdiction of the committee. Records may also be disclosed to the General Accounting Office (GAO) in the course of the activities of GAO.
(2) The blanket routine use for “Congressional Inquiries” (see Appendix C, section D.) applies to all systems; therefore, there is no need to verify that the individual has authorized the release of his or her record to a congressional member when responding to a congressional constituent inquiry.
(3) If necessary, accept constituent letters requesting a member of Congress to investigate a matter pertaining to the individual as written authorization to provide access to the records to the congressional member or his or her staff.
(4) The verbal statement by a congressional staff member is acceptable to establish that a request has been received from the person to whom the records pertain.
(5) If the constituent inquiry is being made on behalf of someone other than the individual to whom the record pertains, provide the congressional member only that information releasable under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). Advise the congressional member that the written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains is required before any additional information may be released. Do not contact individuals to obtain their consents for release to congressional members unless a congressional office specifically requests that this be done.
(6) Nothing in paragraph (k)(2) of this section prohibits a Component, when appropriate, from providing the record directly to the individual and notifying the congressional office that this has been done without providing the record to the congressional member.

(7) See paragraph (e) of § 310.33 of this part for the policy on assessing fees for Members of Congress.

(8) Make a disclosure accounting each time a record is disclosed to either House of Congress, to any committee, joint committee, or subcommittee of Congress, to any congressional member, or GAO.

(I) Disclosures under court orders. (1) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the person to whom they pertain under a court order signed by a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction. Releases may also be made under the compulsory legal process of federal or state bodies having authority to issue such process.

(2) When a record is disclosed under this provision, make reasonable efforts to notify the individual to whom the record pertains, if the legal process is a matter of public record.

(3) If the process is not a matter of public record at the time it is issued, seek to be advised when the process is made public and make reasonable efforts to notify the individual at that time.

(4) Notice to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is considered reasonable effort to notify.

(5) Make a disclosure accounting each time a record is disclosed under a court order or compulsory legal process.

(m) Disclosures to consumer reporting agencies. (1) Certain personal information may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies as defined by the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended (31 U.S.C. section 952(d)).

(2) Under the provisions of paragraph (m)(1) of this section, the following information may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency:

(i) Name, address, taxpayer identification number (SSN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual.

(ii) The amount, status, and history of the claim.

(iii) The agency or program under which the claim arose.

(3) The Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended (31 U.S.C. section 952(d)) specifically requires that the system of records from which the information will be disclosed indicates that the information may be disclosed to a "consumer reporting agency."

§ 310.42 Disclosures to Commercial Enterprises.

(a) General policy. (1) Make releases of personal information to commercial enterprises under the criteria established by the DoD Freedom of Information Program (32 CFR part 286).

(2) The relationship of commercial enterprises to their clients or customers and to the Department of Defense are not changed by this part.

(b) Release of personal information.

(1) Any information that must be released under the Freedom of Information (5 U.S.C. 552) may be released to a commercial enterprise without the individual’s consent (see paragraph (b) of § 310.41 of this subpart).

(2) Commercial enterprises may present a signed consent statement setting forth specific conditions for release of personal information. Statements such as the following, if signed by the individual, are considered valid:

I hereby authorize the Department of Defense to verify my Social Security Number or other identifying information and to disclose my home address and telephone number to authorized representatives of [name of commercial enterprise] so that they may use this information in connection with my commercial dealings with that enterprise. All information furnished will be used in connection with my financial relationship with [name of commercial enterprise].

(3) When a statement of consent as outlined in paragraph (b)(2) of this section is presented, provide the requested information if its release is not prohibited by some other regulation or statute.

(4) Blanket statements of consent that do not identify specifically the Department of Defense or any of its Components, or that do not specify exactly the type of information to be released, may be honored if it is clear that the individual in signing the consent statement intended to obtain a personal benefit (for example, a loan to buy a house) and was aware of the type of information that would be sought. Care should be exercised in these situations to release only the minimum amount of personal information essential to obtain the benefit sought.

(5) Do not honor request from commercial enterprises for official evaluation of personal characteristics, such as evaluation of personal financial habits.

§ 310.43 Disclosures to the Public from Health Care Records.

(a) Section applicability. This section applies to the release of information to the news media or the public concerning persons treated or hospitalized in DoD medical facilities and patients of nonfederal medical facilities for whom the cost of the care is paid by the Department of Defense.

(b) General disclosure. Normally, the following may be released without the patient’s consent:

(1) Personal information concerning the patient. See 32 CFR part 286, the DoD Freedom of Information Act Program and paragraph (c) of § 310.41.

(2) Medical condition:

(i) Date of admission or discharge;

(ii) The present medical assessment of the individual’s condition in the following terms if the medical doctor has volunteered the information:

(A) The individual’s condition is presently (stable) (good) (fair) (serious) or (critical), and

(B) Whether the patient is conscious, semiconscious, or unconscious.

(c) Individual consent. (1) Detailed medical and other personal information may be released in response to inquiries from the news media and public if the patient has given his or her informed consent to such a release.

(2) If the patient is not conscious or competent, no personal information except that required by the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) shall be released until there has been enough improvement in the patient to ensure he or she can give informed consent or a guardian has been appointed legally for the patient and the guardian has given consent on behalf of the patient.

(3) The consent described in paragraph (c)(1) of this section applies only to patients who are minors must be given by the parent of legal guardian.

(d) Information that may be released with individual consent. (1) Any item of personal information may be released, if the patient has given his or her informed consent to its release.

(2) Releasing medical information about patients shall be done with discretion, so as not to embarrass the patient, his or her family, or the Department of Defense, needlessly.

(e) Disclosures to other government agencies. This subpart does not limit the disclosures of personal medical information to other government agencies for use in determining eligibility for special assistance or other benefits.

§ 310.44 Disclosure accounting.

(a) Disclosure accountings. [1] Keep an accurate record of all disclosures made from any system of records except disclosures:

(i) To DoD personnel for use in the performance of their official duties; or

(2) In all other cases a disclosure accounting is required even if the individual has consented to the disclosure of the information pertaining to him or her.

(b) Contents of disclosure accountings. As a minimum, disclosure accounting shall contain:

(1) The date of the disclosure.
(2) A description of the information released.
(3) The purpose of the disclosure.
(4) The name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure was made.

(c) Methods of disclosure accounting. Use any system of disclosure accounting that will provide readily the necessary disclosure information (see paragraph (a)(3) of this section).

(d) Accounting for mass disclosures. When numerous similar records are released (such as transmittal of payroll checks to a bank), identify the category of records disclosed and include the data required by paragraph (b) of this section or some form that can be used to construct an accounting disclosure record for individual records if required (see paragraph (a)(3) of this section).

(e) Disposition of disclosure accounting records. Retain disclosure accounting records for 5 years after the disclosure or the life of the record, whichever is longer.

(f) Furnishing disclosure accountings to the individual. (1) Make available to the individual to whom the record pertains all disclosure accountings except when:

(i) The disclosure has been made to a law enforcement activity under paragraph (i) of § 310.41 of this part and the law enforcement activity has requested that disclosure not be made; or
(ii) The system of records has been exempted from the requirement to furnish the disclosure accounting under the provisions of paragraph (b) of § 310.50, subpart F of this part.

(2) If disclosure accountings are not maintained with the record and the individual requests access to the accounting, prepare a listing of all disclosures (see paragraph (b) of this section) and provide this to the individual upon request.

Subpart F—Exemptions

§ 310.50 Use and establishment of exemptions.

(a) Types of exemptions. (1) There are two types of exemptions permitted by the Privacy Act.

(i) General exemptions that authorize the exemption of a system of records from all but certain specifically identified provisions of the Act.

(ii) Specific exemptions that allow a system of records to be exempted only from certain designated provisions of the Act.

(2) Nothing in the Act permits exemption of any system of records from all provisions of the Act (see appendix D).

(b) Establishing exemptions. (1) Neither general nor specific exemptions are established automatically for any system of records. The head of the DoD Component maintaining the system of records must make a determination whether the system is one for which an exemption properly may be claimed and then propose and establish an exemption rule for the system.

(2) The system of records within the Department of Defense shall be considered exempted when the head of the Component has approved the exemption and the exemption rule has been published as a final rule in the Federal Register (see paragraph (e) of § 310.60, subpart G of this part).

(c) Blanket exemption for classified material. (1) Include in the Component rules a blanket exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) of the Privacy Act from the access provisions (5 U.S.C. 552a(d)) and the notification of access procedures (5 U.S.C. 522a(e)(4)(H)) of the Act for all classified material in any system of records maintained.

(2) Do not claim specifically an exemption under section 552a(k)(1) of the Privacy Act for any system of records. The blanket exemption affords protection to all classified material in all systems of records maintained.

(d) Provisions from which exemptions may be claimed. (1) The head of a DoD Component may claim an exemption from any provision of the Act from which an exemption is allowed (see appendix D).

(2) Notify the Defense Privacy Office ODASD(A) before claiming an exemption for any system of records from the following:

(i) The exemption rule publication requirement (5 U.S.C. 552a(j)) of the Privacy Act.

(ii) The requirement to report new systems of records (5 U.S.C. 552a(l)); or

(iii) The annual report requirement (5 U.S.C. 552a(p)).

(e) Use of exemptions. (1) Use exemptions only for the specific purposes set forth in the exemption rules (see paragraph (b) of § 310.61, subpart G of this part).

(2) Use exemptions only when they are in the best interest of the government and limit them to the specific portions of the records requiring protection.

(3) Do not use an exemption to deny an individual access to any record to which he or she would have access under the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552).

(f) Exempt records in nonexempt systems. (1) Exempt records temporarily in the hands of another Component are considered the property of the originating Component and access to these records is controlled by the system notices and rules of the originating Component.

(2) Records that are actually incorporated into a system of records may be exempted only to the extent the system of records into which they are incorporated has been granted an exemption, regardless of their original status or the system of records for which they were created.

(3) If a record is accidentally misfiled into a system of records, the system notice and rules for the system in which it should actually be filed will govern.

§ 310.51 General exemptions.

(a) Use of the general exemptions. (1) No DoD Component is authorized to Therefore, paragraph nonexempt material for may incorporate suitability, or other criminal adjudicative activity shall be processed under 32 CFR part 236, The DoD Freedom of Information Act Program, provided that the system of records from which the file originated is a law enforcement record system that has been exempted from the access provisions of this part (see paragraph (h) of § 310.30, subpart D of this part).

§ 310.52 Specific Exemptions.
(a) Use of the specific exemptions. The specific exemptions permit certain categories of records to be exempted from certain specific provisions of the Privacy Act (see appendix D). To establish a specific exemption, the records must meet the following criteria (parenthetical references are to the appropriate subsection of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a(k)).

(1) The (k)(1). Information specifically authorized to be classified under the DoD Information Security Program Regulation, 32 CFR part 159. (see also paragraph (c) of this section).
(2) The (k)(2). Investigatory information compiled for law-enforcement purposes by nonlaw enforcement activities and which is not within the scope of paragraph (a) of § 310.51 of this part. If an individual is denied any right, privilege or benefit that he or she is otherwise entitled by federal law or for which he or she would otherwise be eligible as a result of the maintenance of the information, the individual will be provided access to the information except to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source. This subsection when claimed allows limited protection of investigative reports maintained in a system of records used in personnel or administrative actions.

(3) The (k)(3) Records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President and other individuals under 18 U.S.C. section 3506.
(4) The (k)(4). Records maintained solely for statistical research or program evaluation purposes and which are not used to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or entitlement of an individual except for census records which may be disclosed under 13 U.S.C., section 8.
(5) The (k)(5). Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for federal civilian employment, military service, federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent such material would reveal the identity of a confidential source. This provision allows protection of confidential sources used in background investigations, employment inquiries, and similar inquiries that are for personnel screening to determine suitability, eligibility, or qualifications.

(6) The (k)(6). Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the federal or military service, if the disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the test or examination process.

(b) Promises of confidentiality. (1) Only the identity of sources that have been given an express promise of confidentiality may be protected from disclosure under paragraphs (a)(2), (5) and (7) of this section. However, the identity of sources who were given implied promises of confidentiality in inquiries conducted before September 27, 1975, may also be protected from disclosure.

(2) Ensure that promises of confidentiality are used on a limited basis in day-to-day operations. Establish appropriate procedures and identify fully those categories of individuals who may make such promises. Promises of confidentiality shall be made only when they are essential to obtain the information sought.

(c) Access to records for which specific exemptions are claimed. Deny the individual access only to those portions of the records for which the claimed exemption applies.

Subpart G—Publication Requirements

§ 310.60 Federal Register publication.

possible, the general categories of individuals involved.

Use acronyms only parenthetically such as, "Joint Uniform Military Pay that are not commonly known unless they are preceded by an explanation.

(3) The system name may not exceed 55 character positions including punctuation and spacing.

(d) System location. (1) For systems maintained in a single location provide the exact office name, organizational identity, and address or routing symbol.

(2) For geographically or organizationally decentralized systems, specify each level of organization or element that maintains a segment of the system.

(3) For automated data systems with a central computer facility and input/output terminals at several geographically separated locations, list each location by category.

(4) When multiple locations are identified by type of organization, the system location may indicate that official mailing addresses are contained in an address directory published as an appendix to the Component system notices in the Federal Register. Information concerning format requirements for preparation of an address directory may be obtained from the project officer, Air Force 1st Information Systems Group (AF/1ISG/GNR), Washington, DC 20330-6345.

(5) If no address directory is used or the addresses in the directory are incomplete, the address of each location where a segment of the record system is maintained must appear under the “System Location” caption.

(6) Classified addresses are not listed, but the fact that they are classified is indicated.

(7) Use the standard U.S. Postal Service two letter state abbreviation symbols and zip codes for all domestic addresses.

(e) Categories of individuals covered by the system. (1) Set forth the specific categories of individuals to whom records in the system pertain in clear, easily understood, nontechnical terms.

(2) Avoid the use of broad overgeneral descriptions, such as “all Army personnel” or “all military personnel” unless this actually reflects the category of individuals involved.

(f) Categories of records in the system. (1) Describe in clear, nontechnical terms the types of records maintained in the system.

(2) Only documents actually retained in the system of records shall be described, not source documents that are used only to collect data and then destroyed.

(g) Authority for maintenance of the system. (1) Cite the specific provision of the federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes the maintenance of the system.

(2) Include with citations for statutes the popular names, when appropriate (for example, Title 51, United States Code, section 2103, “Tea-Tasters Licensing Act”), and for Executive Orders, the official title (for example, Executive Order No. 9397, “Numbering System for Federal Accounts Relating to Individual Persons”).

(3) Cite the statutes or Executive Order establishing the Component for administrative housekeeping records.

(4) If the Component is chartered by a DoD Directive, cite that Directive as well as the Secretary of Defense authority to issue the Directive. For example, “Pursuant to the authority contained in the National Security Act of 1947, as amended (10 U.S.C. 133d), the Secretary of Defense has issued DoD Directive 5105.21, the charter of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) as a separate Agency of the Department of Defense under his control. Therein, the Director, DIA, is charged with the responsibility of maintaining all necessary and appropriate records.”

(h) Purpose or purposes. (1) List the specific purposes for maintaining the system of records by the Component.

(2) Include the uses made of the information within the Component and the Department of Defense (so-called “internal routine uses”).

(1) Routine uses. (1) The blanket routine uses (appendix C) that appear at the beginning of each Component compilation apply to all systems notices unless the individual system notice specifically states that one or more of them do not apply to the system. List the blanket routine uses at the beginning of the Component listing of system notices (see paragraph (e)(5) of §310.41 of subpart E of this part).

(2) For all other routine uses, when practical, list the specific activity to which the record may be released, to include any routine automated system interface (for example, “to the Department of Justice, Civil Rights Compliance Division,” “to the Veterans Administration, Office of Disability Benefits,” or “to state and local health agencies”).

(3) For each routine user identified, include a statement as to the purpose or purposes for which the record is to be released to that activity (see paragraph (e) of §310.41 of subpart E of this part). The routine uses should be compatible with the purpose for which the record was collected or obtained (see paragraph (p) of §310.3, subpart A of this part).

(4) Do not use general statements, such as, “to other federal agencies as required” or “to any other appropriate federal agency.”

(j) Policies and practices for storing, retaining, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records. This caption is subdivided into four parts:

(1) Storage. Indicate the medium in which the records are maintained. (For example, a system may be “automated”, maintained on magnetic tapes or disks, “manual”, maintained in paper files, or “hybrid”, maintained in a combination of paper and automated form. Storage does not refer to the container or facility in which the records are kept.

(2) Retrievability. Specify how the records are retrieved (for example, name and SSN, name, SSN) and indicate whether a manual or computerized index is required to retrieve individual records.

(3) Safeguards. List the categories of Component personnel having immediate access and those responsible for safeguarding the records from unauthorized access. Generally identify the system safeguards (such as storage in safes, vaults, locked cabinets or rooms, use of guards, visitor registers, personnel screening, or computer “fail-safe” systems software). Do not describe safeguards in such detail so as to compromise system security.

(4) Retention and Disposal. Indicate how long the record is retained. When appropriate, also state the length of time the records are maintained by the Component, when they are transferred to a Federal Records Center, length of retention at the Record Center and when they are transferred to the National Archivist or are destroyed. A reference to a Component regulation without further detailed information is insufficient.

(k) System manager(s) and address. (1) List the title and address of the official responsible for the management of the system.

(2) If the title of the specific official is unknown, such as for a local system, specify the local commander or office head as the systems manager.

(3) For geographically separated or organizationally decentralized activities for which individuals may deal directly with officials at each location in exercising their rights, list the position or duty title of each category of officials responsible for the system or a segment thereof.

(4) Do not include business or duty addresses if they are listed in the Component address directory.

(l) Notification procedures. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection [e][4][G] of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) (see paragraph (d) of §310.50 of this part), so indicate.
(2) For all nonexempt systems, describe how an individual may determine if there are records pertaining to him or her in the system. The procedural rules may be cited, but include a brief procedural description of the needed data. Provide sufficient information in the notice to allow an individual to exercise his or her rights without referral to the formal rules.

(3) As a minimum, the caption shall include:
(i) The official title (normally the system manager) and official address to which the request is to be directed;
(ii) The specific information required to determine if there is a record of the individual in the system;
(iii) Identification of the offices through which the individual may obtain access; and
(iv) A description of any proof of identity required (see paragraph (c)(1) of § 310.30 of this part).

(4) When appropriate, the individual may be referred to a Component official who shall provide this data to him or her.

(m) Record access procedures. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) (see paragraph (d) of § 310.50 of this part), so indicate.

(2) For all nonexempt records systems, describe the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the records pertaining to them in the system.

(3) When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or Component official to obtain access procedures.

(4) Do not repeat the addresses listed in the Component address directory but refer the individual to that directory.

(n) Contesting record procedures. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (a)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) (see paragraph (d) of § 310.50 of this part), so indicate.

(2) For all nonexempt systems of records, state briefly how an individual may contest the content of a record pertaining to him or her in the system.

(3) The detailed procedures for contesting record accuracy, refusal of access or amendment, or initial review and appeal need not be included if they are readily available elsewhere and can be referred to by the public. (For example, “The Defense Mapping Agency rules for contesting contents and for appealing initial determinations are contained in DMA Instruction 5400.11 (32 CFR part 320).”)

(4) The individual may also be referred to the system manager to determine these procedures.

(o) Record source categories. (1) If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) (see paragraph (d) of § 310.50, subpart F of this part), so indicate.

(2) For all nonexempt systems of records, list the sources of the information in the system.

(3) Specific individuals or institutions need not be identified by name, particularly if these sources have been granted confidentiality (see paragraph (b) of § 310.52, subpart F of this part).

(p) System exempted from certain provisions of the Act. (1) If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate “None.”

(2) If there is an exemption claimed indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) it is claimed.

(3) Cite the regulation and CFR section containing the exemption rule for the system. (For example, “Parts of this record system may be exempted under Title 5, United States Code, Sections 552a(k)(3) and (5), as applicable. See exemption rules contained in 32 CFR 400 (CFR part 400)."

(q) Maintaining the master DoD system notice registry. (1) The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) maintains a master registry of all DoD record systems notices.

(2) Coordinate with the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) to ensure that all new systems are added to the master registry and all amendments and alterations are incorporated into the master registry.

§ 310.63 New and altered record systems.

(a) Criteria for a new record system. (1) A new system of records is one for which there has been no system notice published in the Federal Register.

(2) If a notice for a system of records has been canceled or deleted before reinstating or reusing the system, a new system notice must be published in the Federal Register.

(b) Criteria for an altered record system. A system is considered altered whenever one of the following actions occurs or is proposed:

(i) A significant increase or change in the number or type of individuals about whom records are maintained.

(ii) Only changes that alter significantly the character and purpose of the record system are considered alterations.

(iii) Increases in numbers of individuals due to normal growth are not considered alterations unless they truly alter the character and purpose of the system.

(iv) A reduction in the number of individuals covered is not an alteration, but only an amendment (see paragraph (a) of § 310.64 of this subpart).

(v) All changes that add new categories of individuals to system coverage require a change to the “Categories of individuals covered by the system” caption of the notice (see paragraph (a) of § 310.64 and may require changes to the “Purpose(s)” caption (paragraph (h) of § 310.62).

(vi) A new change of the types or categories of information maintained.

(i) The addition of any new category of records not described under the “Categories of Records in System” caption is considered an alteration.

(ii) Adding a new data element which is clearly within the scope of the categories of records described in the existing notice is an amendment (see paragraph (a) of § 310.64 of this subpart).

(iii) All changes under this criterion require a change to the “Categories of Records in System” caption of the notice (see paragraph (f) of § 310.62 of this subpart).

(3) An alteration in the manner in which the records are organized or the manner in which the records are indexed and retrieved.

(i) The change must alter the nature of use or scope of the records involved (for example, combining records systems in a reorganization).

(ii) Any change under this criterion requires a change to the “Retrievalability” caption of the system notice (see paragraph (i) of § 310.62 of this subpart).

(iii) If the records are no longer retrieved by name or personal identifier, cancel the system notice (see paragraph (a) of § 310.10 of subpart B of this part).

(iv) A change in the purpose for which the information in the system is used.

(v) The new purpose must be compatible with the existing purposes for which the system is maintained or a use that would not reasonably be expected to be an alteration.

(vi) If the use is compatible and reasonably expected, there is no change in purpose and no alteration occurs.

(vii) Any change under this criterion requires a change in the “Purpose(s)” caption (see paragraph (h) of § 310.62 of this subpart) and may require a change in the “Authority for maintenance of the system” caption (see paragraph (g) of § 310.62 of this subpart).
(5) Changes that alter the computer environment (such as changes to equipment configuration, software, or procedures) so as to create the potential for greater or easier access.
   (i) Increasing the number of offices with direct access is an alteration.
   (ii) Software releases, such as operating systems and system utilities that provide for easier access are considered alterations.
(iii) The addition of an on-line capability to a previously batch-oriented system is an alteration.
(iv) The addition of peripheral devices such as tape devices, disk devices, card readers, printers, and similar devices to an existing ADP system constitute an amendment if system security is preserved (see paragraph (a) of § 310.64 of this subpart).
(v) Changes to existing equipment configuration with on-line capability need not be considered alterations to the system if:
(A) The change does not alter the present security posture; or
(B) The addition of terminals does not extend the capacity of the current operating system and existing security is preserved;
(vi) The connection of two or more formerly independent automated systems or networks together creating a potential for greater access is an alteration.
(vii) Any change under this caption requires a change to the “Storage” caption element of the systems notice (see paragraph (j)(1) of § 310.62 of this subpart).
(c) Reports of new and altered systems. (1) Submit a report of a new or altered system to the Defense Privacy Office before collecting information for or using a new system or altering an existing system (see appendix F and paragraph (d) of this section).
(2) The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) coordinates all reports of new and altered systems with the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Legislative Affairs) and the Office of the General Counsel, Department of Defense.
(3) The Defense Privacy Office prepares for the DASS(A)’s approval and signatures the transmittal letters sent to OMB and Congress (see paragraph (e) of this section).
(d) Time restrictions on the operation of a new or altered system. (1) All time periods begin from the date the DASS(A) signs the transmittal letters (see paragraph (c)(3) of this section). The specific time limits are:
   (i) 60 days must elapse before data collection forms or formal instructions pertaining to the system may be issued.
   (ii) 60 days must elapse before the system may become operational; that is, collecting, maintaining, using, or disseminating records from the system (see also paragraph (f) of § 310.60 of this subpart).
   (iii) 60 days must elapse before any public issuance of a Request for Proposal or Invitation to Bid for a new ADP or telecommunication system.
   (4) Normally 30 days must elapse before publication in the Federal Register of the notice of a new or altered system (see paragraph (f) of § 310.60 of this subpart) and the preamble to the Federal Register notice must reflect the date the transmittal letters to OMB and Congress were signed by ODASD(A).
(2) Do not operate a system of records until the waiting periods have expired (see § 310.103 of subpart K of this part).
(e) Outside review of new and altered systems reports. If no objections are received within 30 days of a submission to the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Director, OMB, of a new or altered system report it is presumed that the new or altered systems have been approved as submitted.
(f) Exemptions for new systems. See paragraph (e) of § 310.60 of this subpart for the procedures to follow in submitting exemption rules for a new system of records.
(g) Waiver of time restrictions. (1) The OMB may authorize a federal agency to begin operation of a system of records before the expiration of time limits set forth in paragraph (d) of § 310.63 of this subpart.
(2) When seeking such a waiver, include in the letter of transmittal to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) an explanation why a delay of 60 days in establishing the system of records would not be in the public interest. The transmittal must include:
   (i) How the public interest will be affected adversely if the established time limits are followed; and
   (ii) Why earlier notice was not provided.
(3) When appropriate, the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall contact OMB and attempt to obtain the waiver.
(j) If a waiver is granted, the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall notify the subcommittee and submit the new or altered system notice along with any applicable procedural or exemption rules for publication in the Federal Register.
(3) If the waiver is disapproved, the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall process the system the same as any other new or altered system and notify the subcommittee of the OMB decision.
(4) Under no circumstances shall the routine uses for new or altered system be implemented before 30 days have elapsed after publication of the system notice containing the routine uses in the Federal Register. This period cannot be waived.
§ 310.64 Amendment and deletion of Systems Notices.
(a) Criteria for amended system notice. (1) Certain minor changes to published systems notices are considered amendments and not alterations (see paragraph (b) of § 310.63 of this subpart).
(b) System notices for amended systems. When submitting an amendment for a system notice for publication in the Federal Register include:
   (1) The system identification and name (see paragraph (b) and (c) of § 310.62 of this subpart).
   (2) A description of the nature and specific changes proposed.
   (3) The full text of the system notice is not required if the master registry of the Federal Register contains a current system notice for the system (see paragraph (q) of § 310.62 of this subpart).
   (c) Deletion of system notices. (1) Whenever a system is discontinued, combined into another system, or determined no longer to be subject to this part, a deletion notice is required.
(2) The notice of deletion shall include:
   (i) The system identification and name.
   (ii) The reason for the deletion.
(3) When the system is eliminated through combination or merger, identify the successor system or systems in the deletion notice.
   (d) Submission of amendments and deletions for publication. (1) Submit amendments and deletions to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) for transmittal to the Federal Register for publication.
(2) Include in the submission at least one original (not a reproduced copy) in proper Federal Register format (see appendix C).
(3) Multiple deletions and amendments may be combined into a single submission.
§ 310.70 Statutory training requirements.
The Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (5 U.S.C. 552a), requires each agency to establish rules of conduct for all persons involved in the design, development, operation, and maintenance of any system of record and to train these persons with respect to these rules.
§ 310.71 OMB training guidelines.
The OMB guidelines require all agencies additionally to:
(a) Instruct their personnel in their rules of conduct and other rules and procedures adopted in implementing the Act, and inform their personnel of the penalties for noncompliance.
(b) Incorporate training on the special requirements of the Act into both formal and informal (on-the-job) training programs.
§ 310.72 DoD training programs.
(a) To meet these training requirements, establish three general levels of training for those persons who are involved in any way with the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records. These are:
(1) Orientation. Training that provides basic understanding of this regulation as it applies to the individual’s job performance. This training shall be provided to personnel, as appropriate, and should be a prerequisite to all other levels of training.
(2) Specialized training. Training that provides information as to the application of specific provisions of this part to specialized areas of job performance. Personnel of particular concern include, but are not limited to personnel specialists, finance officers, special investigators, paperwork managers, and other specialists (reports, forms, records, and related functions), computer systems development personnel, computer systems operations personnel, statisticians dealing with personal data and program evaluations, and anyone responsible for implementing or carrying out functions under this part.
(3) Management. Training designed to identify for responsible managers (such as senior system managers, denial authorities, decision-makers, and the managers of the functions described in § 310.70 of this subpart) considerations that they shall take into account when making management decisions regarding the Defense Privacy Program.
(b) Include Privacy Act training in courses of training when appropriate. Stress individual responsibilities and advise individuals of their rights and responsibilities under this part.
§ 310.73 Training methodology and procedures.
(a) Each DoD Component is responsible for the development of training procedures and methodology.
(b) The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) will assist the Components in developing these training programs and may develop Privacy training programs for use by all DoD Components.
(c) All training programs shall be coordinated with the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) to avoid duplication and to ensure maximum effectiveness.
§ 310.74 Funding for training.
Each DoD Component shall fund its own Privacy training program.
Subpart I—Reports
§ 310.80 Requirements for reports.
The Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A) shall establish requirements for DoD Privacy Reports and DoD Components may be required to provide data.
§ 310.81 Suspense for submission of reports.
The suspenses for submission of all reports shall be established by the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A).
§ 310.82 Reports control symbol.
Any report established by this subpart in support of the Defense Privacy Program shall be assigned Report Control Symbol DD-COMP(A)1379. Special one-time reporting requirements shall be licensed separately in accordance with DoD Directive 5000.19 “Policies for the Management and Control of Information Requirements” and DoD Directive 5000.11, “Data Elements and Data Codes Standardization Program.”
Subpart J—Inspections
§ 310.90 Privacy Act inspections.
During internal inspections, Component inspectors shall be alert for compliance with this part and for managerial, administrative, and operational problems associated with the implementation of the Defense Privacy Program.
§ 310.91 Inspection reporting.
(a) Document the findings of the inspectors in official reports that are furnished the responsible Component officials. These reports, when appropriate, shall reflect overall assets of the Component Privacy Program inspected, or portion thereof, identify deficiencies, irregularities, and significant problems. Also document remedial actions taken to correct problems identified.
(b) Retain inspections reports and later follow-up reports in accordance with established records disposition standards. These reports shall be made available to the Privacy Program officials concerned upon request.
Subpart K—Privacy Act Enforcement Actions
§ 310.100 Administrative remedies.
Any individual who feels he or she has a legitimate complaint or grievance against the Department of Defense or any DoD employee concerning any right granted by this part shall be permitted to seek relief through appropriate administrative channels.
§ 310.101 Civil actions.
An individual may file a civil suit against a DoD Component or its employees if the individual feels certain provisions of the Act have been violated (see 5 U.S.C. 552a(g), of the Privacy Act).
§ 310.102 Civil remedies.
In addition to specific remedial actions, subsection (g) of the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a) provides for the payment of damages, court cost, and attorney fees in some cases.
§ 310.103 Criminal penalties.
(a) The Act also provides for criminal penalties (see 5 U.S.C. 552a(l)). Any official or employee may be found guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000 if he or she willfully:
(1) Discloses personal information to anyone not entitled to receive the information (see subpart E); or
(2) Maintains a system of records without publishing the required public notice in the Federal Register (see subpart G).
§ 310.104 Litigation status sheet.

Whenever a complaint citing the Privacy Act is filed in a U.S. District Court against the Department of Defense, a DoD Component, or any DoD employee, the responsible system manager shall notify promptly the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A). The litigation status sheet at Appendix H provides a standard format for this notification. The initial litigation status sheet forwarded shall, as a minimum, provide the information required by items 1 through 6. A revised litigation status sheet shall be provided at each stage of the litigation. When a court renders a formal opinion or judgment, copies of the judgment and opinion shall be provided to the Defense Privacy Office with the litigation status sheet reporting that judgment or opinion.

Subpart L—Matching Program Procedures

§ 310.110 OMB Matching guidelines.

The OMB has issued special guidelines to be followed in programs that match the personal records in the computerized data bases of two or more federal agencies by computer (see appendix I). These guidelines are intended to strike a balance between the interest of the government in maintaining the integrity of federal programs and the need to protect individual privacy expectations. They do not authorize matching programs as such and each matching program must be justified individually in accordance with the OMB guidelines.

§ 310.111 Requesting matching programs.

(a) Forward all requests for matching programs to include necessary routine use amendments (see paragraph (i) of § 310.62 of subpart G of this part) and analysis and proposed matching program reports (see subsection E.6. of appendix I) to the Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A).

(b) The Defense Privacy Office shall review each request and supporting material and forward the report and system notice amendments to the Federal Register, OMB, and Congress, as appropriate.

(c) Changes to existing matching programs shall be processed in the same manner as a new matching program report.

§ 310.112 Time limits for submitting matching reports.

(a) No time limits are set by the OMB guidelines. However, in order to establish a new routine use or a matching program, the amended system notice must have been published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before implementation (see paragraph (i) of § 310.60 of subpart G of this part). (b) Submit the documentation required by paragraph (a) of § 310.111 of this subpart to the Defense Privacy Office at least 45 days before the proposed initiation date of the matching program.

(c) The Defense Privacy Office may grant waivers to the 45 days' deadline for good cause shown. Requests for waivers shall be in writing and fully justified.

§ 310.113 Matching programs among DoD Components.

(a) For the purpose of the OMB guidelines, the Department of Defense and all DoD Components are considered a single agency.

(b) Before initiating a matching program using only the records of two or more DoD Components, notify the Defense Privacy Office that the match is to occur. The Defense Privacy Office may request further information from the Component proposing the match.

(c) There is no need to notify the Defense Privacy Office of computer matches using only the records of a single Component.

§ 310.114 Annual review of systems of records.

The system manager shall review annually each system of records to determine if records from the system are being used in matching programs and whether the OMB Guidelines have been complied with.

Appendix A—Special Considerations for Safeguarding Personal Information in ADP Systems

(See paragraph (b) of § 310.13, subpart B)

A. General

1. The Automated Data Processing (ADP) environment subjects personal information to special hazards as to unauthorized compromise alteration, dissemination, and use. Therefore, special considerations must be given to safeguarding personal information in ADP systems.

2. Personal information must also be protected while it is being processed or accessed in computer environments outside the data processing installation (such as, remote job entry stations, terminal stations, minicomputers, microprocessors; and similar activities).

3. ADP facilities authorized to process classified material have adequate procedures and security for the purposes of this Regulation. However, all unclassified information subject to this Regulation must be processed following the procedures used to process and access information designated “For Official Use Only” (see “DoD Freedom of Information Act Program” [32 CFR part 206]).

B. Risk Management and Safeguarding Standards

1. Establish administrative, technical, and physical safeguards that are adequate to protect the information against unauthorized disclosure, access, or misuse (see Transmittal Memorandum No. 1 to OMB Circular A-71—Security of Federal Automated Information Systems).

2. Technical and physical safeguards alone will not protect against unintentional compromise due to errors, omissions, or poor procedures. Proper administrative controls generally provide cheaper and surer safeguards.

3. Tailor safeguards to the type of system, the nature of the information involved, and the specific threat to be countered.

C. Minimum Administrative Safeguard

The minimum safeguarding standards as set forth in paragraph (b) of § 310.13, subpart B apply to all personal data within any ADP system. In addition:

1. Consider the following when establishing ADP safeguards:

   a. The sensitivity of the data being processed, stored, and accessed;

   b. The installation environment;

   c. The risk of exposure;

   d. The cost of the safeguard under consideration.

2. Label or designate output and storage media products (intermediate and final) containing personal information that do not contain classified material in such a manner as to alert those using or handling the information of the need for special protection. Designating products “For Official Use Only” in accordance with subpart E of 32 CFR part 206, “DoD Freedom of Information Act Program,” satisfies this requirement.

4. Mark and protect all computer products containing “For Official Use Only” material in accordance with subpart E of 32 CFR part 206.

5. Ensure that safeguards for protected information stored at secondary sites are appropriate.

6. If there is a computer failure, restore all protected information being processed at the time of the failure using proper recovery procedures to ensure data integrity.

7. Train all ADP personnel involved in processing information subject to this part in proper safeguarding procedures.

D. Physical Safeguards

1. For all unclassified facilities, areas, and devices that process information subject to this part, establish physical safeguards that protect the information against reasonably identifiable threats that could result in unauthorized access or alteration.

2. Develop access procedures for unauthorized access or alteration. Such procedures shall control adequately access to these areas. Safeguards on-line devices directly coupled to ADP systems that contain or process information from systems of records to prevent unauthorized disclosure use or alteration.

4. Dispose of paper records following appropriate record destruction procedures.

E. Technical Safeguards

1. The use of encryption devices solely for the purpose of protecting unclassified personal information transmitted over communication circuits or during processing in computer systems is normally discouraged. However, when a comprehensive risk assessment indicates that encryption is cost-effective it may be used.

2. Remove personal data stored on magnetic media by methods that preclude reconstruction of the data.

3. Ensure that personal information is not inadvertently disclosed as residue when transferring magnetic media between activities.

4. When it is necessary to provide dial-up remote access for the processing of personal information, control access by computer-verified passwords. Change passwords periodically or whenever compromise is known or suspected.

5. Normally the passwords shall give access only to those data elements (fields) required and not grant access to the entire data base.

6. Do not rely totally on proprietary software products to protect personnel data during processing or storage.

F. Special Procedures

1. System Managers shall:
   a. Notify the ADP manager whenever personal information subject to this Regulation is to be processed by an ADP facility.
   b. Prepare and submit for publication all system notices and amendments and alterations thereto (see paragraph (f) of § 310.60 of subpart G).
   c. Identify to the ADP manager those activities and individuals authorized access to the information and notify the manager of any changes to the access authorizations.

2. ADP personnel shall:
   a. Permit only authorized individuals access to the information.
   b. Adhere to the established information protection procedures and rules of conduct.
   c. Notify the system manager and ADP manager whenever unauthorized personnel seek access to the information.

3. ADP installation managers shall:
   a. Maintain an inventory of all computer program applications used to process information subject to this part to include the identity of the systems of records involved.
   b. Verify that requests for new programs or changes to existing programs have been published as required (see paragraphs (a) and (b) of § 310.63, subpart G).
   c. Notify the system manager whenever changes to computer installations, communications networks, or any other changes in the ADP environment occur that require an altered system report be submitted (see paragraph (b) of § 310.63, subpart G).

G. Record Disposal

1. Dispose of records subject to this part so as to prevent compromise (see paragraph (c) of § 310.13 of subpart B). Magnetic tapes or other magnetic media, may be cleared by degaussing, overwriting, or erasing. Unclassified carbon ribbons are considered destroyed when placed in a trash receptacle.

2. Do not use respliced waste computer products containing personal data.

H. Risk Assessment for ADP Installations That Process Personal Data

1. A separate risk assessment is not required for situations that process classified material. A simple certification by the appropriate ADP official that the facility is cleared to process a given level of classified material (such as, Top Secret, Secret, or Confidential) and that the procedures followed in processing "For Official Use Only" material are to be followed in processing personal data subject to this Regulation is sufficient to meet the risk assessment requirement.

2. Prepare a formal risk assessment for each ADP installation (to include those activities with terminals and devices having access to ADP facilities) that processes personal information subject to this part and that do not process classified material.

3. Address the following in the risk assessment:
   a. Identify the specific systems of records supported and determine their impact on the mission of the user.
   b. Identify the threats (internal, external, and natural) to the data.
   c. Determine the physical and operational (to include software) vulnerabilities.
   d. Evaluate the relationships between vulnerabilities and threats.
   e. Assess the impact of unauthorized disclosure or modification of the personal information.
   f. Identify possible safeguards and their relationships to the threats to be countered.
   g. Analyze the economic feasibility of adopting the identified safeguards.
   h. Determine the safeguard to be used and develop implementation plans.

   i. Discuss contingency plans including operational exercise plans.
   j. Determine if procedures proposed are consistent with those identified in the system notices for system of records concerned.
   k. Include a vulnerability assessment.

3. The risk assessment shall be reviewed by the appropriate Component officials.

4. Conduct a risk assessment at least every 3 years or when there is a change to the installation, its hardware, software, or administrative procedures that increase or decrease the likelihood of compromise or present new threats to the information.

5. Protect the risk assessment as it is a sensitive document.

6. Retain a copy of the risk assessment at the installation and make it available to appropriate inspectors and authorized personnel.

7. Include a summary of the current risk assessment with any report of new or altered system submitted in accordance with paragraph (c) of § 310.63, subpart G, for any system from which information will be processed.

8. Complete a formal risk assessment at the beginning of the design phase for each new unclassified ADP installation and before beginning the processing of personal data on a regular basis in existing ADP facility that do not process classified data.

Appendix B—Special Considerations for Safeguarding Personal Information During Word Processing

(See paragraph (b) of § 310.13, subpart B)

A. Introduction

1. Normally, word processing support is provided under two general concepts. They are:

   a. Word processing centers (WPCs), and
   b. Work groups or clusters.

2. A WPC generally provides support to one or more functional areas. Characteristically, the customer delivers (by written draft or dictation) the information to be processed by the WPC. The WPC process the information and returns it to the customer. There are generally two types of WPCs.

   a. A WPC may operate independent of the customer's function, providing service in much the same manner as data processing installation provides ADP support, or a message center provides electronic message service,

   b. A WPC may work within a customer's function providing support to that function. The support being centralized in a WPC to take advantage of increased productivity.

3. A work group or cluster generally consists of one or more pieces of word processing equipment that are integrated into the functional office support system. The overall word processing and functional management may be one and the same. Depending on the size of the support job, there may be a work group or cluster manager. Normally, however, they will be located within or in close proximity to the functional area supported. Information flows in and out of the work group or cluster by normal office routine and the personnel are an integral part of the office staff.

B. Minimum Standards of Protection

1. Regardless of configuration (WPC or work group), all personal data processed using word processing equipment shall be afforded the standards of protection required by paragraph (b) of § 310.13, subpart B.
2. The remaining special considerations discussed in this appendix are primarily for WPCs operating independent of the customer's function. However, managers of other WPCs, work groups, and work clusters are encouraged to consider and adopt, when appropriate, the special considerations discussed herein.

3. WPCs that are not independent of a customer's function, work groups, and work clusters are not required to prepare formal written risk assessments (see section H, below).

C. WPC Information Flow

1. In analyzing procedures required to safeguard adequately personal information in a WPC, the basic elements of WPC information flow and control must be considered. These are:
   a. Information receipt.
   b. Information processing.
   c. Information storage.
   d. Information transmission.

2. WPCs do not control information acquisition or its ultimate use by the customers and, therefore, these are not addressed.

D. Safeguarding Information During Receipt

1. The work processing manager shall establish procedures:
   a. That require each customer who requests information subject to this part be processed to identify specifically that information to the WPC personnel. This may be done by:
      (1) Providing a check-off type entry on the WPC work requests;
      (2) Requiring that the WPC work requests be stamped with a special legend, or that a special notation be made on the work requests;
      (3) Predesignating specifically a class of documents as coming within the provisions of this part (such as, all officer effectiveness reports, all recall rosters, and all medical protocols);
      (4) Using a special cover sheet both to alert the WPC personnel as to the type information, and to protect the document during transmission;
      (5) Requiring an oral warning on all dictation; or
      (6) Any other procedures that ensure the WPC personnel are alerted to the fact that personal data subject to this part is to be processed;
   b. To ensure that the operators or other WPC personnel receiving data for processing that has not been identified to be under the provisions of this part but that appear to be personal promptly call the information to the attention of the WPC supervisor or the customer;
   c. To ensure that any request for the processing of personal data that the customer has not identified as being in a system of records and that appears to meet the criteria set forth in paragraph (a) of § 310.10, subpart B is called to the attention of the appropriate supervisory personnel and system manager;
   d. The WPC supervisor shall ensure that personal information is not inadvertently compromised within the WPC.

E. Safeguarding Information During Processing

1. Each WPC supervisor shall establish internal safeguards that shall protect personal data from compromise while it is being processed.
   2. Physical safeguards may include:
      a. Controls on individual access to the center;
      b. Machine configurations that reduce external access to the information being processed, or arrangements that alert the operator to the presence of others;
      c. Using certain specific machines to process personal data;
      d. Any other physical safeguards, to include special technical arrangements that will protect the data during processing.

2. Other safeguards may include:
   a. Using only certain selected operators to process personal data;
   b. Processing personal data only at certain times during the day without the WPC manager's specific authorization;
   c. Using only certain colors of ink or color coded strings to process and store personal data;
   d. Using continuous tapes for dictation of personal data;
   e. Requiring all WPC copies of documents to be marked specifically so as to prevent inadvertent compromise;
   f. Returning extra copies and mistakes to the customer with the product;
   g. Disposing of waste containing personal data in a special manner;
   h. Any other local procedures that provide adequate protection to the data being processed.

F. Safeguarding Information During Return

1. The WPC shall protect the data until it is returned to the customer or placed into a formal distribution channel.

2. In conjunction with the appropriate administrative support personnel and the WPC customers, the WPC manager shall establish procedures that protect the information from the time word processing is completed until it is returned to the customer.

3. Safeguarding procedures may include:
   a. Releasing products only to specifically identifiable individuals;
   b. Using sealed envelopes to transmit products to the customer;
   c. Using special cover sheets to protect products similar to the one discussed in subparagraph D.1.a.(4), above;
   d. Handcarrying products to the customers;
   e. Using special messengers to return the products;
   f. Any other procedures that protect adequately products from compromise while they are awaiting return or being returned to the customer.

G. Safeguards During Storage

1. The WPC manager shall ensure that all personal data retained in the center for any purpose (including samples) are protected properly.

2. Safeguarding procedures may include:
   a. Marking all hard copies retained with special legends or designators;
   b. Storing media containing personal data in separate files or areas;
   c. Marking the storage containers for media containing personal data with special legends or notations;
   d. Restricting the reuse of media used to process personal data or erasing automatically the media before reuse;
   e. Establishing special criteria for the WPC retention of media used to store and process personal data;
   f. Returning the media to the customer for retention with the file copies of the finished products;
   g. Discouraging, when practical, the long-term storage of personal data in any form within the WPC;
   h. Any other filing or storage procedures that safeguard adequately any personal information retained or filed within the WPC.

H. Risk Assessment for WPCs

1. Each WPC manager shall ensure that a formal, written risk assessment is prepared for each WPC that processes personal information subject to this part.

2. The assessment shall address the areas discussed in sections D, E, F, and G of this appendix, as well as any special risks that the WPC location, configuration, or organization may present to the compromise or alteration of personal data being processed or stored.

3. A risk assessment shall be conducted at least every 5 years or whenever there is a change of equipment, equipment configuration, WPC location, WPC configuration or modification of the WPC facilities that either increases or decreases the likelihood of compromise of personal data.

4. Copies of the assessment shall be retained by the WPC manager and made available to appropriate inspectors, as well as to personnel studying equipment for facility upgrading or modification.

5. Every new WPC shall have a formal risk assessment completed before beginning the processing of personal data.

I. Special Considerations in WPC Design and Modification

Procedures shall be established to ensure that all personnel involved in the design of WPCs or the acquisition of word processing equipment are aware of the special considerations required when processing personal data subject to this part.

Appendix C—DoD Blanket Routine Uses

(See paragraph (e) of § 310.41, subpart E)

A. Routine Use—Law Enforcement

If a system of records maintained by a DoD Component to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the agency concerned, whether federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

B. Routine Use—Disclosure when Requesting Information

A record from a system of records maintained by a Component may be disclosed as a routine use to a federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to a component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit.

C. Routine Use—Disclosure of Requested Information

A record from a system of records maintained by a Component may be disclosed to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of any investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

D. Routine Use—Congressional Inquiries

Disclosure from a system of records maintained by a Component may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

E. Routine Use—Private Relief Legislation

Relevant information contained in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on or before August 22, 1975, will be disclosed to the OMB in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 (reference (u)) at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

F. Routine Use—Disclosures Required by International Agreements

A record from a system of records maintained by a Component may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigatory, or administrative authorities to comply with requirements imposed by, or to claim rights conferred in international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of DoD military and civilian personnel.

G. Routine Use—Disclosure to State and Local Taxing Authorities

Any information normally contained in Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form W-2 which is maintained in a record from a system of records maintained by a Component may be disclosed to state and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements under 5 U.S.C., sections 5516, 5517, and 5520 (reference [v]) and only to those state and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin No. 76-07.

H. Routine Use—Disclosure to the Office of Personnel Management

A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by a Component may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement, deduction, and any other information necessary for the OPM to carry out its legally authorized government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

I. Routine Use—Disclosure to the Department of Justice for Litigation

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice for the purpose of representing the Department of Defense, or any officer, employee or member of the Department in potential or actual litigation to which the record is pertinent.

J. Routine Use—Disclosure to Military Banking Facilities Overseas

Information as to current military addresses and assignments may be provided to military banking facilities who provide banking services overseas and who are reimbursed by the Government for certain checking and loan losses. For personnel separated, discharged, or retired from the Armed Forces, information as to last known residential or home of record address may be provided to the military banking facility upon certification by a banking facility officer that the facility has a returned or dishonored check negotiated by the individual or the individual has defaulted on a loan and that if restitution is not made by the individual, the U.S. Government will be liable for the losses the facility may incur.

K. Routine Use—Disclosure of Information to the General Services Administration (GSA)

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the General Services Administration (GSA) for the purpose of requests management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2004 and 2006.

L. Routine Use—Disclosure of Information to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA)

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) for the purpose of requests management inspections conducted under authority of 44 U.S.C. 2004 and 2006.

M. Routine Use—Disclosure to the Merit Systems Protection Board

A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to the Merit Systems Protection Board, including the Office of the Special Counsel for the purpose of litigation, including administrative proceedings, appeals, special studies of the civil service and other merit systems, review of OPM or component rules and regulations, investigation of alleged or possible prohibited personnel practices; including administrative proceedings involving any individual subject of a DoD investigation, and such other functions, promulgated in 5 U.S.C. 1205 and 1206, or as may be authorized by law.

Appendix E—Sample of New or Altered System of Records Notice in "Federal Register" Format

(Please see paragraph (f) of § 310.60, subpart G)

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

Privacy Act of 1974: New System of Records

AGENCY: Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA).

ACTION: Notice of a new record system.

SUMMARY: The Defense Nuclear Agency is adding a new system of records to its inventory of systems of records subject to the Privacy Act of 1974. The system notice for the new system is set forth below.

DATES: This system shall be effective (30 days after publication in the Federal Register) unless comments are received which result in a contrary determination.

ADDRESS: Send comments to the System Manager identified in the system notice.

The Defense Nuclear Agency has submitted a new system report on March 27, 1982, for this system of records under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(o) of the Privacy Act.

Patricia H. Means, OSD Federal Register Liaison Officer, Department of Defense.

Sample

HDNA-609-03

System name: Personnel Exposed to Radiation from Nuclear Tests.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All DoD and DoD-affiliated personnel, military and civilian, who participated in the U.S. Government atmospheric nuclear test programs in the Pacific and at the Nevada Test Site.

Categories of records in the system: Personal information consisting of name, rank, service number, last known or current address, dates of test participation, exposure and unit of assignment.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 10 U.S.C. Section 133, Power of an Executive Department of a Military Department to Prescribe Departmental Regulations; 10 U.S.C. Section 133, Secretary of Defense: Appointment, Powers, Duties and Delegation by; DoD Directive 5105.31, "Defense Nuclear Agency (DNA)."

Purpose(s): To identify those individuals who may have been exposed to radiation from nuclear atmospheric test conducted by the U.S. Government in the Pacific or at the Nevada Test Site.

Information is provided to the medical services of all the Military Departments to identify military and retired personnel who were exposed to ionizing radiator during testing.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system including categories of users, and the purpose of such uses:

To the National Research Council and Center for Disease Control to determine the effects of ionizing radiation for the limited purpose of conducting epidemiological studies of the atmospheric nuclear weapons tests on DoD participants in those tests.

To the Department of Energy (DoE) to identify DoE contractor personnel exposed to ionizing radiation during nuclear testing for the limited purpose of conducting epidemiological studies of radiation effects of individuals so identified.

To the Department of Transportation (DoT) for the limited purpose of identifying DoT and DoT-affiliated personnel exposed to ionizing radiation during nuclear testing.

To the Veterans Administration to make determinations on service-connected disability for the purpose of resolving claims.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Paper records in file folders; computer magnetic tape disks and printouts in secure computer facility.

Retrieveability: Paper records filed in folders and computer magnetic tape and disk retrieved by name.
Safeguards: Paper records are filed in folders stored in locked security safes. Magnetic tapes stored in a vault in a secure computer area.

Retention and disposal: Paper records are retained until information is transferred to magnetic tape, then destroyed. Magnetic tapes and disks are retained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Defense Nuclear Agency, Attn.: Privacy Act Officer, Washington, DC 20305, telephone (202) 335-7081.

Notification procedure: Information may be obtained from the System Manager.

Record access procedures: Requests should be addressed to the System Manager.

Contesting record procedures: The agency’s rules for contesting contents and appealing initial determinations are contained in DNA Instruction 5400.11 (32 CFR part 316). Additional information may be obtained from the System Manager.

Inquiries may be sent to: System exempted from certain provisions of the Act: None.

Appendix F.—Format for New or Altered System Report

(See paragraph (c) of §310.63, subpart G)

The report on a new or altered system shall consist of a transmittal letter, a narrative statement, and include supporting documentation.

A. Transmittal Letter. The transmittal letter to the Director, Defense Privacy Office, ODASD(A), shall include any request for waivers as set forth in paragraph (g) of §310.63, subpart G. The narrative statement shall be attached thereto.

B. Narrative Statement. The narrative statement is typed in double space on standard bond paper in the format shown at attachment 1. The statement includes:

1. System identification and name. This capture prior to the identification and name of the system (see paragraphs (b) and (c) of §310.62, subpart G).

2. Responsible official. The name, title, address, and telephone number of the privacy official responsible for the report and to whom inquiries and comments about the report may be directed, Congress, the Office of Management and Budget, or the Defense Privacy Office.

3. Purpose of the system or nature of the change proposed. Describe the purpose of the new system. For an altered system, describe the nature of the change being proposed.

4. Authority for the system. See paragraph (g) of §310.62, subpart G.

5. Number of individuals. The approximate number of individuals about whom records are to be maintained.

6. Information on First Amendment activities. Describe any information to be kept on the exercise of individual’s First Amendment rights and the basis for maintaining it as provided for in paragraph (e) of §310.10, subpart B.

7. Measures to ensure information accuracy. If the system is to be used to make determinations about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals; describe the measures being established to ensure the accuracy, currency, relevance, and completeness of the information used for these purposes.

8. Other measures to ensure system accuracy. Describe the steps taken to minimize the risk of unauthorized access to the system, include a detailed assessment of security risks and specific administrative, technical, and physical safeguards shall be available for review upon request.

9. Relationship to state and local government activities. Describe the relationship of the system to state or local government activities that are the sources, recipients, or users of the information in the system.

10. Supporting documentation: Item 10 of the narrative is captioned Supporting Documents. A positive statement for this caption is essential for those enclosures that are not required to be enclosed. For example, “No changes to the existing Army procedural or exemption rules (32 CFR part 503) are required for this proposed system.” List all numerical sequence only those enclosures that are actually furnished. The following are typical enclosures that may be required:

1. For a new system, an advance copy of the system notice which is proposed for publication. For an altered system, see paragraph (d) of §310.64, subpart G) an advance copy of the notice reflecting the specific changes proposed.

2. An advance copy of any new rules or changes to the published system rules to be issued for the new or altered system. If no change to existing rules is required, so state in the narrative.

3. An advance copy of any proposed exemption rule if the new or altered system is to be exempted in accordance with Subpart F. If there is no exemption, so state in the narrative.

4. Any other supporting documentation that may be pertinent or helpful in understanding the need for the system or clarifying its intended use. While not required, such documentation is available, is helpful in evaluating the new or altered system.

Defense Nuclear Agency

REPORT ON NEW SYSTEM UNDER THE PRIVACY ACT OF 1974

1. System Identification and Name: HDNA 68, entitled “Personnel Exposed to Radiation From Nuclear Tests.”

3. Purpose(s) of the System: To consolidate into one system the names, addresses, and exposures of all DoD or DoD-associated personnel who may have been exposed to ionizing radiation during the atmospheric nuclear testing programs in the Pacific and at the Nevada Test Site.

4. Authority for the System: See “Authority for Maintenance of the System” caption of the attached proposed system notice.

5. Number of Individuals: Approximately 300,000 individuals will be affected by this new system, since the system includes all DoD and DoD-affiliated participants in the atmospheric nuclear testing programs.

6. Information on First Amendment Activities: None.

7. Measures to Ensure Information Accuracy: Records consist of personal data to be provided by the individual, such as name, rank, service number, last known or current address, dates of test participation, exposure date, if available, and unit of assignment. When the information has been obtained from sources other than the individual, follow-up is attempted to ensure accuracy.

8. Other Measures to Ensure System Security:

a. Paper records before processing for computer storage are retained in locked filing cabinets located in limited access facilities at DNA Headquarters and the Armed Forces Radiobiology Research Institute.

b. Privacy data in the Headquarters, DNA, and ADP facility is afforded the same protection as classified data in that the DNA computer system employs a File Security System (FSS) to protect classified and privacy data files from being accessed by unauthorized user.

c. Relations to State and Local Government Activities: None.

10. Supporting Documentation: No changes to existing procedural or exemption rules are required for this proposed new system.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
Department of Air Force

Privacy Act of 1974; Deletions and Amendments to Systems of Records Notices

AGENCY: Department of the Air Force, DoD.

ACTION: Notice of deletions and amendments to systems of records.

SUMMARY: The Air Force proposes to delete three and amend two notices for systems of records subject to the Privacy Act of 1974. The specific changes to the notices being amended are set forth below followed by the system notices, as amended, published in their entirety.

DATES: These systems notices shall be amended as proposed without further notice on (30 days after publication in the Federal Register unless comments are received that would result in a contrary determination.

ADDRESS: Send comments to the system manager identified in the particular system notice concerned.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Air Force systems of records notices inventory subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a), as amended, have been published to date in the Federal Register as follows:

The proposed amendments are not within the purview of the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(o) which requires the submission of an altered system report.

Patricia H. Means,
OGD Federal Register Liaison Officer, Department of Defense.

Deletions

F01001 OQTPFLA
System name: Human Reliability for Special Missions.
Reason: This system is covered by F03004 AFDFMDB Advanced Personnel Data System (APDS) (46 FR 50821) August 28, 1991.

F01003 OBXQPCA
System name: Cadet Promotion List.
Reason: This system has been incorporated into F03502 AFA Cadet Management System (46 FR 50875) July 28, 1981.

F01102 OYUEBLA
System name: Locator or Personnel Data file.
Reason: This system is covered by F01102 DAYX A Base, Unit, and Organizational Military and Civilian Personnel Locator Files (46 FR 50800) October 28, 1981.

Amendments

F03501 DPMQJA
System name: Military Personnel Records System.
Changes: System location: In line 6, change “Adjustment” to Adjunctant.
External users, uses and purposes: Add at end:

“American National Red Cross Information to local Red Cross offices for emergency assistance to military members, dependents, relatives, or other persons if conditions are compelling.”

“Drug Enforcement Administration” (add to those agencies listed under Department of Justice).

“Department of Labor Bureau of Employees’ Compensation—medical information for claims of civilian employees formerly in military service, Employment and Training Administration—verification of service-related information for unemployment compensation claims; Labor-Management Services Administration—for investigations of possible violations of labor laws and preemployment investigations; National Research Council—for medical research purposes; U.S. Soldiers’ and Airmen’s Home—service information to determine eligibility.”

F03504 OJMPUSC
System name: Assessments Screening Records.
Changes: System location: In line 1, change “3700 Personnel Processing Group” to “3507 Airman Classification Squardon.”

Retention and disposal: Delete entry and substitute: “Records on airmen accepted for sensitive or high risk assignments are retained in the office files for 18 months, then destroyed. Records of nonselectees are retained in office files for 1 year, then destroyed. Destruction is by tearing into pieces, shredding, pulping; macerating, or burning.”

System manager: In line 1, change “3507 PPGP (CCO),” to “3507 Airman Classification Squardon.”

Record source categories: Add at end, “peers, character references, and the individual member.”

Appendix I—Office of Management and Budget (OMB)

Matching Guidelines
(See § 310.110, subpart L)

A. Purpose. These guidelines supplement and shall be used in conjunction with OMB Guidelines on the Administration of the Privacy Act of 1974, issued on July 1, 1975, and supplemented on November 21, 1975. They replace earlier guidance on conducting computerized matching programs issued on March 30, 1979. They are intended to help agencies relate the procedural requirements of the Privacy Act to the operational requirements of computerized matching. They are designed to address the concerns expressed by the Congress in the Privacy Act of 1974 that “the increasing use of computers and sophisticated information technology, while essential to the efficient operation of the Government, has greatly magnified the harm to individual privacy that can occur from any collection, maintenance, use, or dissemination of personal information.” These guidelines do not authorize activities that are not permitted by law, nor do they prohibit activities expressly required to be performed by law. Complying with these guidelines, however, does not relieve a federal agency of the obligation to comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act, including any provisions not cited in these guidelines.

B. Scope. These guidelines apply to all agencies subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and to all matching programs:
   1. Performed by a federal agency, whether the personal records used in the match are federal or nonfederal.
   2. For which a federal agency discloses any personal records for use in a matching... program performed by any other federal agency or any nonfederal organization.

C. Effective Date. These guidelines are effective on May 11, 1982.

D. Definitions. For the purposes of the Guidelines, all the terms defined in the Privacy Act of 1974 apply.

1. Personal Record. Any information pertaining to an individual that is stored in an automated system of records; for example, a data base which contains information about individuals that is retrieved by name or some other personal identifier.

2. Matching Program. A procedure in which a computer is used to compare two or more automated systems of records or a system of records with a set of nonfederal records to find individuals who are common to more than one system or set. The procedure includes all of the steps associated with the match, including obtaining the records to be matched, actual use of the computer, administrative and investigative action on the hits, and disposition of the personal records involved in connection with the match. It should be noted that a single matching program may involve several matches among a number of participants.

Matching programs do not include the following:

a. Matches that do not compare a substantial number of records, such as, comparison of the Department of Education's defaulted student loan data base with the Office of Personnel Management's federal employee data base would be covered; comparison of six individual student loan defaultes with the OPM file would not be covered.
b. Checks on specific individuals to verify data in an application for benefits done reasonably soon after the application is received.
c. Checks on specific individuals based on information which raises questions about an individual's eligibility for benefits or payments done reasonably soon after the information is received.
d. Matches done to produce aggregate statistical data without any personal identifiers.
e. Matches done to support any research or statistical project when the specific data are not to be used to make decisions about the rights, benefits, or privileges of specific individuals.
f. Matches done by an agency using its own records.

3. Matching Agency. The federal agency which actually performs the match.

4. Source Agency. The federal agency which discloses records from a system of records to be used in the match. Note that in some circumstances a source agency may be the instigator and ultimate beneficiary of the matching program, as when an agency lacking computer resources uses another agency to perform the match. The disclosure of records to the matching agency and any later disclosure of "hits" (by either the matching or the source agencies) must be done in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (b) of the Privacy Act.

5. Hit. The identification, through a matching program, of a specific individual.

E. Guidelines for Agencies Participating in Matching Programs. Agencies should acquire and disclose matching records and conduct matching programs in accordance with the provisions of this section and the Privacy Act.

1. Disclosing Personal Records for Matching Programs.

a. To another federal agency. Source agencies are responsible for determining whether or not to disclose personal records from their systems and for making sure they meet the necessary Privacy Act disclosure provisions when they do. Among the factors source agencies should consider are:

(1) Legal authority for the match;
(2) Purpose and description of the match;
(3) Description of the records to be matched;
(4) Whether the record subjects have consented to the match; or whether disclosure of records for the match would be compatible with future use for which the records were originally collected; that is, whether disclosure under a "routine use" would be appropriate; whether the soliciting agency is seeking the records for a legitimate law enforcement activity—whichever is appropriate; or any other provision of the Privacy Act under which disclosure may be made;
(5) Description of additional information which may be subsequently disclosed in relation to the "hits";
(6) Subsequent actions expected of the source (for example, verification of the identity of the "hits" or follow-up with individuals who are "hits");
(7) Safeguards to be afforded the records involved, including disposition.

b. If the agency is satisfied that disclosure of the records would not violate its responsibilities under the Privacy Act, it may proceed to make the disclosure to the matching agency. It should ensure that only the minimum information necessary to conduct the match is provided. If disclosure is to be made pursuant to a "routine use" (Section (b)(3) of the Privacy Act), it should ensure that the system of records contains such a use in a current use notice in the Federal Register. The agency should also be sure to maintain an accounting of the disclosures pursuant to Section (c) of the Privacy Act.

c. To a nonfederal entity. Before disclosing records to a nonfederal entity for a matching program to be carried out by that entity, a source agency should, in addition to all of the considerations in paragraph E.1.a., above, also make reasonable efforts, pursuant to Section (e)(6) of the Privacy Act, to "assure that such records are accurate, complete, timely, and relevant for agency purposes."

2. Written Agreements. Before disclosing to either a federal or nonfederal entity, the source agency should require the matching entity to agree in writing to certain conditions governing the use of the matching file; for example, that the matching file will remain the property of the source agency and be returned at the end of the matching program (or destroyed in a timely manner); that the file will be used and accessed only to match the file or files previously agreed to; that it will not be used to extract information concerning "non-hit" individuals for any purpose, and that it will not be duplicated or disseminated within or outside the matching agency unless authorized in writing by the source agency.

3. Performing Matching Programs. (a) Matching agencies should maintain reasonable administrative, technical, and physical security safeguards on all files involved in the matching program.

(b) Matching agencies should ensure that they have appropriate systems of records including those containing "hits," and that such systems and any routine uses have been appropriately noticed in the Federal Register, and reported to OMB and the Congress, as appropriate.

4. Disposition of Records. a. Matching agencies will return or destroy source matching files (by mutual agreement) immediately after the match.

b. Records relating to hits will be kept only so long as an investigation, either criminal or administrative, is active, and will be disposed of in accordance with the requirements of the Privacy Act and the Federal Records Schedule.

5. Publication Requirements. a. Agencies, before disclosing records outside the agency, will publish appropriate "routine use" notices in the Federal Register, if necessary.

b. If the matching program will result in the creation of a new or substantial alteration of an existing system of records, the agency involved should publish the appropriate Federal Register notice and submit the requisite report to OMB and the Congress pursuant to OMB Circular No. A-108.

6. Reporting Requirements. a. As close to the initiation of the matching program as possible, matching agencies shall publish in the Federal Register a brief public notice describing the matching program. The notice should include:

(1) The legal authority under which the match is being conducted;
(2) A description of the matching program including whether the program is one time or continuing, the organizations involved, the purpose or purposes for which the program is being conducted, and the procedures to be used in matching and following up on the "hits."

(3) A complete description of the personal records to be matched, including the source or sources, system of records identifying data, date or dates and page number of the most recent Federal Register full text publication when appropriate;

(4) The projected start and ending dates of the program;

(5) The security safeguards to be used to protect against unauthorized access or disclosure of the personal records; and

(6) Plans for disposition of the source records and "hits."

7. Agencies should send a copy of this notice to the Congress and OMB at the same time it is sent to the Federal Register.

a. Agencies should report new or altered systems of records as described in paragraph E.6.b., above, as necessary.

b. Agencies should also be prepared to report on matching programs pursuant to the reporting requirements of either the Privacy Act or the Paperwork Reduction Act. Reports will be solicited by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs and will focus on both the protection of individual privacy and the government’s effective use of information technology. Reporting instructions will be disseminated to the agencies as part of either the reports required by paragraph (p) of the Privacy Act or Section 333 of Pub. L. 96-651.

8. Use of Contractors. Matching programs should be as practical as, and be conducted “in-house” by federal agencies using agency personnel, rather than by contract. When contractors are used, however:
(a) The matching agency should, consistent with paragraph (m) of the Privacy Act, cause the requirements of that Act to be applied to the contractor’s performance of the matching program. The contract should include the Privacy Act clause required by Federal Personnel and Payroll Amendment 158 (41 CFR 1-337-5).
(b) The terms of the contract should include appropriate privacy and security provisions consistent with policies, regulations, standards, and guidelines issued by OMB, GSA, and the Department of Commerce.
(c) The terms of the contract should preclude the contractor from using, disclosing, copying, or retaining records associated with the matching program for the contractor’s own purposes.
(d) Contractor personnel involved in the matching program shall be made explicitly aware of their obligations under the Act and of these guidelines, agency rules, and any special safeguards in relation to each specific match performed.
(e) Any disclosures of records by the agency to the contractor should be made pursuant to a “routine use” [5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(3)].

F. Implementation and Oversight. OMB will oversee the implementation of these guidelines and shall interpret and advise upon agency proposals and actions within their scope, consistent with Section 6 of the Privacy Act.

PART 311—OSD PRIVACY PROGRAM

Sec.

311.1 Reissuance and purpose.
311.2 Applicability and scope.
311.3 Definitions.
311.4 Policy.
311.5 Responsibilities.
311.6 Procedures.
311.7 Procedures for exemptions.
311.8 Information requirements.

§ 311.1 Reissuance and purpose.

This part reissues Administrative Instruction No. 81 to update and implement basic policies and procedures outlined in Privacy Act of 1974, DoD 5400.11-R, OMB Circular No. A-108 (TM No. 4) and to provide guidance and procedures for use in establishing the Privacy Program in the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) and those organizations assigned to OSD for administrative support.

§ 311.2 Applicability and scope.

(a) This part applies to the OSD, Joint Staff, Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) and other activities assigned to administrative support (hereafter referred to collectively as “OSD Components”).

(b) This part covers record systems maintained by OSD Components and governs the maintenance, access, change, and release of information contained in OSD Component record systems, from which information pertaining to an individual is retrieved by a personal identifier.

§ 311.3 Definitions.

Access. Any individual’s review of a record or a copy of a record or parts of a system of records.

Disclosure. The transfer of any personal information from a system of records by any means of oral, written, electronic, mechanical, or other communication, to any person, private entity, or Government agency, other than the subject of the record, the subject’s designated agent, or the subject’s legal guardian.

Individual. A living citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence. The legal guardian of an individual has the same rights as the individual and may act on her or his behalf.

Individual Access. Access to information pertaining to the individual or his or her designated agent or legal guardian.

Maintain. Includes maintenance, collection, use, or dissemination.

Personal Information. Information about an individual that is intimate or private, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual’s official functions or public life.

§ 311.4 Policy.

(a) It is DoD policy to protect the privacy of individuals involved in any phase of the personnel management process and to permit any individual to know what existing records pertain to him or her in any OSD Component covered by this part.

(b) Each office maintaining records and information about individuals shall ensure that their privacy is protected from unauthorized disclosure. These offices shall permit individuals to have access to, and to have a copy made of, all or any portion of records pertaining to them (except those referred to in Chapters 3 and 5, DoD 5400.11-R and to have an opportunity to request that such records be amended as provided by the Privacy Act of 1974. Individuals requesting access to their records shall receive concurrent consideration under the Privacy Act of 1974 and the Freedom of Information Act as amended, if appropriate.

(c) The heads of OSD Components shall maintain any record of an identifiable personal nature in a manner that is necessary and lawful. Any information collected must be as accurate, relevant, timely, and complete as is reasonable to ensure fairness to the individual. Adequate safeguards must be provided to prevent misuse or unauthorized release of such information.

§ 311.5 Responsibilities.

(a) The Director of Administration and Management (D&AM) shall:

(1) Direct and administer the DoD Privacy Program for OSD Components.

(2) Establish standards and procedures to ensure implementation of and compliance with the Privacy Act of 1974, OMB Circular No. A-108 (TM No. 4), and DoD 5400.11-R.

(3) Serve as the appellate authority within OSD when a requester appeals a denial for amendment of a record or initiates legal action to correct a record.

(4) Evaluate and decide, in coordination with the General Counsel (GC), DoD, appeals resulting from denials of correction and/or amendments to records by OSD Components.

(b) Designate the Records Management Division, Correspondence and Directives Directorate, Washington Headquarters Services (WHSS), as the office responsible for all aspects of the Privacy Act, except that portion pertaining to receiving and acting on public requests for personal records. As such, the Records Management Division, shall:

(i) Exercise oversight and administrative control of the Privacy Act Program in OSD and those organizations assigned to OSD for administrative support.

(ii) Provide guidance and training to organizational entities as required by the Privacy Act of 1974 and OMB Circular A-108 (TM No. 4).

(iii) Collect and consolidate data from OSD Components, and submit an annual report to the Defense Privacy Office, as required by the Privacy Act of 1974.
OMB Circular A–108 (TM No. 4) and DoD 5400.11–R.

(iv) Coordinate and consolidate information for reporting all record systems, as well as changes to approved systems, to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), the Congress, and the Federal Register, as required by the Privacy Act of 1974, OMB Circular No. A–108 (TM No. 4) and DoD 5400.11–R.

(v) Collect information from OSD Components, and prepare consolidated reports required by the Privacy Act of 1974 and DoD 5400.11–R.

(b) The Assistant Secretary of Defense (Public Affairs) (ASD(PA)) shall:

(1) Designate the Director for Freedom of Information and Security Review, OASD(PA), as the point of contact for individuals requesting information or access to records and copies concerning themselves.

(2) Serve as the authority within OSD when requesters seek reconsideration of previously denied requests for access to records, and in coordination with the GC, DoD, and the DA&M, evaluate and decide on such requests.

(c) The Director for Freedom of Information and Security Review shall:

(1) Forward requests for information or access to records to the appropriate OSD Component having primary responsibility for any pertinent system of records under the Privacy Act of 1974 or to OSD Components, under the Freedom of Information Act as amended.

(2) Maintain deadlines to ensure that responses are made within the time limits prescribed in DoD 5400.7–R, DoD Directive 5400.10 and this part.

(3) Collect fees charged and assessed for reproducing requested materials.

(4) Refer all matters concerning amendments of records and general and specific exemptions under the Privacy Act of 1974 to the proper OSD components.

(5) Authorize a specific field activity of an OSD Component to act as the point of contact for individuals requesting information or access to records or copies, under the Privacy Act of 1974 for which the field activity has primary responsibility. All authorizations by the ASD(PA) shall be coordinated with the heads of the OSD Component concerned.

(d) The General Counsel, DoD, shall:

(1) Coordinate with the Department of Justice (DoJ) on all OSD final denials of appeals for amending records, and review actions to confirm denial of access to records.

(2) Provide advice and assistance to the DA&M in the discharge of appellate and review responsibilities, and to the ASD(PA) on all access matters.

(3) Provide advice and assistance to OSD Components on legal matters pertaining to the Privacy Act of 1974.

(e) The Head of OSD Components shall:

(1) Designate an individual as the point of contact for Privacy Act matters; designate an official to deny initial requests for access to an individual’s records or changes to records; and advise both DA&M and ASD(PA) of names of officials so designated.

(2) Report any new record system, or changes to an existing system, to the Records Administrator, WHS at least 90 days before the intended use of the system.

(3) Review all contracts that provide for maintaining records systems, by or on behalf of his or her office, to ensure that such systems shall be maintained in a manner consistent with the Privacy Act of 1974.

(4) Revise procurement guidance to ensure that any contract providing for the maintenance of a records system, by or on behalf of his or her office, includes language that ensures that such system will be maintained in accordance with the Privacy Act of 1974.

(5) Revise computer and telecommunications procurement policies to ensure that agencies review all proposed contracts for equipment and services to comply with the Privacy Act of 1974.

(6) Coordinate with Automatic Data Processing (ADP) and word processing managers providing services to ensure that an adequate risk analysis is conducted to comply with DoD 5400.11–R.

(7) Review all Directives that require forms or other methods used to collect information about individuals to ensure that the Privacy Act of 1974 is complied with.

(8) Establish administrative systems in OSD Component organizations to comply with the procedures listed in this part and DoD 5400.11–R.

(9) Coordinate with the Office of the General Counsel (OGC) on all proposed denials of access to records.

(10) Provide justification to the ASD(PA) when access to a record is denied in whole or in part.

(11) Provide the record to the ASD(PA) when the initial denial of a request for access to such record has been appealed by the requester, or at the time of initial denial when appeal seems likely.

(12) Maintain an accurate account of the actions resulting in a denial for access to a record or for the correction of a record. This account should be maintained so that it can be readily certified as the complete record of proceedings if litigation occurs.

(13) Ensure that all personnel who have access to the system of records, of who are engaged in developing or supervising procedures for handling records in the system, are aware of their responsibilities for protecting personal information as established in the Privacy Act and DoD 5400.11–R.

(14) Forward all requests for access to records received directly from an individual to the ASD(PA) for appropriate suspense control and recording.

(15) Provide ASD(PA) with a copy of the requested record when the request is granted.

(f) The Director for Space Management and Services (SM&S), WHS, shall: Upon request of the OSD Records Administrator, provide the necessary automated services through the OSD support system for publishing of data in the Federal Register as required by the Privacy Act of 1974.

(g) The Requester is responsible for:

(1) Submitting a request for access to a record or information, in person or in writing, to the Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review, (DFOI/SR), OASD(PA), Room 2C757, Pentagon, Washington, DC 20311–1155. The Requester must also:

(i) Establish his or her identity as outlined in DoD 5400.11–R.

(ii) Describe the record sought, and provide sufficient information to enable the material to be located (e.g., identification of system or records, approximate date it was initiated, originating organization, and type of document).

(iii) Comply with procedures provided in DoD 5400.11–R for inspecting and/or obtaining copies of requested records.

(2) Submitting a written request to amend the record to the system manager or to the office designated in the system notice.

§ 311.6 Procedures.

(a) Public notice of the Federal Register. (1) A notice shall be published in the Federal Register of any record system meeting the definition of a system of records defined in DoD 5400.11–R.

(2) Regarding new or revised records systems, each OSD Component shall provide the DA&M with 90 days advance notice of any anticipated new or revised system of records. This material shall be submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and to Congress at least 60 days before use and to the Federal Register at least 30 days before being put into use, in order to provide an opportunity for interested persons to submit written data, views, or arguments to the OSD Components.

Instructions on content and preparation are outlined in DoD Regulation 5400.11-R.

(b) Access to Information on Records Systems. (1) Upon request, and as provided by the Privacy Act, records shall be disclosed only to the individual they pertain to and under whose individual name or identifier they are filed, unless exempted by provisions stated in DoD 5400.11-R.

(2) There is no requirement under the Privacy Act of 1974 that a record be created so that an individual be given access to records that are not retrieved by name or other individual identifier.

(3) Granting access to a record containing personal information shall not be conditioned upon any requirement that the individual state a reason or otherwise justify the need to gain access.

(4) No verification of identity shall be required of an individual seeking access to records that are otherwise available to the public.

(5) Individuals shall not be denied access to a record in a system of records pertaining to themselves because those records are exempted from disclosure under DoD 5400.7-R. This regulation states that "an exempted record shall be made available upon request of any individual when, in the judgment of the releasing authority, no significant, legitimate governmental purpose would be served by withholding it under an applicable exemption."

(6) Individuals shall not be denied access to their records for refusing to disclose their Social Security Numbers (SSNs), unless disclosure of the SSN is required by statute, by regulation adopted before January 1, 1975, or if the record's filing identifier and only means of retrieval is by SSN.

(7) Any individual may request access to a record pertaining to him or her, in person or by mail, in accordance with the procedures outlined in paragraph (b)(8) of this section.

(8) Information necessary to identify a record is: the individual’s name, date of birth, place of birth, identification of the records system as listed in the Federal Register, or sufficient information to identify the type of records being sought, and the approximate date the records might have been created. Any individual making a request for access to records in person shall come to the Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review, DFOI/SR, OASD(PA) Room 2C757, Pentagon, Washington, DC 20301-1155; and shall provide personal identification acceptable to the Director, DFOI/SR, to verify the individual’s identity (e.g., driver’s license, other licenses, permits, or passes used for routine identification purposes).

(9) If an individual wishes to be accompanied by a third party when seeking access to records or wishes to have the record released directly to a third party, the individual may be required to furnish a signed access authorization granting the third party access.

(10) Any individual submitting a request by mail for access to information shall address such request to the Directorate for Freedom of Information and Security Review, OASD(PA), Pentagon, Room 2C757, Washington, DC 20301-1155. The request shall include a signed notarized statement to verify his or her identity or an alternate verification for individuals, such as military members overseas who do not have access to notary services.

(11) The following procedures shall apply to requests for access to investigatory records:

(i) Individuals requesting access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and for law enforcement purposes are processed under DoD 5400.11-R or DoD 5400.7-R depending on which regulation gives them the greater degree of access.

(ii) Individual requests for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and for law enforcement purposes (and in the custody of law enforcement activities) that have been incorporated into the records system, exempted from the access provisions of DoD 5400.11-R, will be processed in accordance with Section B, Chapter 5, DoD 5400.11-R. Individuals shall not be denied access to records solely because they are in the exempt system, but they will have the same access that they would receive under DoD 5400.7-R. (Also see subsection A.10., Chapter 3, DoD 5400.11-R).

(iii) Requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves that are in records systems exempted from access provisions will be processed under subsection C.1. of Chapter 5, DoD 5400.11-R or DoD 5400.7-R, depending upon which regulation gives the greater degree of access. (See also subsection A.10., Chapter 3, DoD 5400.11-R).

(iv) Individual requests for access to investigatory records exempted from access under Section B, Chapter 5, DoD 5400.11-R that are temporarily in the hands of a non-Federal investigative agency for investigative purposes, will be referred to the originating investigative agency. The request will be informed in writing of these referrals.

(12) The following procedures shall apply to requests for illegible, incomplete, or partially exempt records:

(i) An individual shall not be denied access to a record or a copy of a record solely because the physical condition or format of the record does not make it readily available (e.g., deteriorated state or on magnetic tape). The document will be prepared as an extract, or it will be exactly recopied.

(ii) If a portion of the record contains information that is exempt from access, an extract or summary containing all of the information in the record that is releasable shall be prepared.

(iii) When the physical condition of the record makes it necessary to prepare an extract for release, the extract shall be prepared so that it will be understood by the requester.

(iv) The requester shall be informed of all deletions or changes to records.

(13) Medical records shall be disclosed to the individual they pertain to, unless a determination is made in consultation with a medical doctor, that the disclosure could have adverse effects on the individual’s physical or mental health. Such information may be transmitted to a medical doctor named by the individual concerned.

(14) The individual may be charged reproduction fees for copies or records as outlined in DoD 5400.11-R.

(c) Request To Amend Personal Information in Records Systems and Disputes. (1) The Head of an OSD Component, or the designated official, shall allow individuals to request amendment to their records to the extent that such amendment does not violate existing statutes, regulations, or administrative procedures. Requests should be as brief and as simple as possible and should contain, as a minimum, identifying information to locate the record, a description of the items to be amended, and the reason for the change. A request shall not be rejected nor required to be resubmitted unless additional information is essential to process the request.

Requests shall be required to provide verification of their identity as stated in paragraph (b)(8) of this section to ensure that they are seeking to amend records pertaining to themselves, and not inadvertently or intentionally, the records of others.
(2) The appropriate system manager shall mail a written acknowledgment to an individual's request to amend a record within 10 days after receipt, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays. Such acknowledgment shall identify the request and may, if necessary, request any additional information needed to make a determination. No acknowledgment is necessary if the request can be reviewed, processed, and if the individual can be notified of the compliance or denial within the 10-day period. Whenever practicable, the decision shall be made within 30 working days. For requests presented in person, written acknowledgment may be provided at the time the request is presented.

(3) The Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, shall promptly take one of the following actions on requests to amend the records:

(i) If the OSD Component official agrees with any portion or all of an individual's request, he or she will proceed to amend the records in accordance with existing statutes, regulations, or administrative procedures, and inform the requester of the action taken. The OSD Component official shall also notify all previous holders of the record that the amendment has been made, and shall explain the substance of the correction.

(ii) If he or she disagrees with all or any portion of a request, the individual shall be informed promptly of the refusal to amend a record, the reason for the refusal, and the procedure established by OSD for an appeal as outlined in paragraph (c)(6) of this section.

(iii) If the request for an amendment pertains to a record controlled and maintained by another Federal agency, the request shall be referred to the appropriate agency, and the requester advised of this.

(4) The following procedures shall be used when reviewing records under dispute:

(i) In response to a request for an amendment to records, officials shall determine the accuracy, relevance, timeliness, or completeness of the requested record. The Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, shall develop tolerances for accuracy, relevance, and timeliness by giving consideration as to whether such tolerances could result in consequences adverse to the individual.

(ii) The Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, shall limit the review of a record to those items of information that clearly bear on any determination to amend the records and shall ensure that all those elements are present before determination is made.

(iii) If the Head of an OSD Component, or designated official, after an initial review of a request to amend a record, disagrees with all or any portion of a record, he or she shall:

(i) Advise the individual of the denial and the reason for it.

(ii) Inform the individual that he or she may request a further review.

(iii) Develop procedures for requesting such review including the name and address of the official to whom the request should be directed. The procedures should be as brief and simple as possible and should indicate where the individual can seek advice or assistance in obtaining such review.

(iv) Furnish a copy of the justification of any denial to amend a record to DA&M.

(v) If an individual disagrees with the initial OSD determination, he or she may file a request for further review of the record. The request should be sent to the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Administration), Department of Defense, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20301-1155, if the record is created and maintained by an OSD Component.

(vi) If, after review, the DA&M further refuses to amend the record as requested, the DA&M shall advise the individual:

(i) Of the refusal and the reason for it.

(ii) Of his or her right to file a statement of the reason for disagreeing with the DA&M's decision.

(iii) Of the procedures for filing a statement of disagreements.

(iv) That the statement filed shall be disclosed to anyone the record is disclosed to, together with a brief statement, at the discretion of the OSD Component, summarizing its reasons for refusing to amend the records.

(v) That prior recipients of copies of disputed records shall be provided a copy of any statement of dispute to the extent that an accounting of disclosure is maintained.

(vi) Of his or her right to seek judicial review of the DA&Ms refusal to amend a record.

(vii) If, after the review, the DA&M determines that the record should be amended in accordance with the individual's request, the OSD Component shall amend the record, advise the individual, and inform previous recipients where an accounting of disclosure has been maintained.

(5) The final OSD determination on an individual's request for a review of the DA&M's refusal to amend the record must be concluded within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after receipt by the proper office. If the DA&M determines that a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that time, the individual will be informed in writing of the reasons for the delay and of the approximate date the review is expected to be completed.

(d) Disclosure of Disputed Information. (1) After the DA&M has refused to amend a record and the individual has filed a statement under paragraph (c)(7) of this section, the OSD Component shall clearly annotate the record so that the proceeding is clear to any authorized person to whom the record is disclosed. The notation itself shall be integral to the record. Where an accounting of a disclosure has been made, the OSD Component shall advise previous recipients that the record has been disputed, and shall provide a copy of the individual's statement where requested.

(i) This statement shall be maintained to permit ready retrieval whenever the disputed portion of the record is to be disclosed.

(ii) When information that is the subject of a statement of dispute is subsequently disclosed, the OSD Component's designated official shall note which information is disputed and provide a copy of the individual's statement.

(2) The OSD Component shall include a brief summary of its reasons for not making a correction when disclosing disputed information. Such statement shall normally be limited to the reasons given to the individual for not amending the record.

(3) Copies of the OSD Component's summary will be treated as part of the individual's record; however, it will not be subject to the amendment procedure outlined in paragraph (c)(3) of this section.

(4) Paragraph B of Chapter 11, Dod, 5400.11-R, prescribes that all requests for participation in a matching program (either as a matching agency or a source agency) be submitted to the Defense Privacy Office for review and compliance. OSD Components will submit these requests through the Records Management Division.

(e) Penalties—(1) Civil Action. An individual may file a civil suit against the United States for:

(A) Refusal to amend a record.

(B) Improper denial of the access to a record.

(C) Failure to maintain a record accurately.

(ii) An individual may also file a suit against the United States for failure to implement a provision of the Privacy Act when such failure leads to an adverse determination.

(iii) If the individual's suit is upheld, the court may direct the United States to pay the court costs and lawyer's fees.

(iv) When the individual can show that personal damage was done because an OSD officer or employee failed to comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, the United States may be assessed damages by the court at a minimum of $1,000.

(2) Criminal action. (i) Criminal penalties may be imposed against an OSD officer or employee for willful unauthorized disclosure of information in the records, for failure to publish a notice of the existence of a record system in the Federal Register, or for gaining access to the individual's record under false pretenses (i.e., against any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning another individual without legal authorization).

(ii) An OSD officer or employee may be fined up to $5,000 for a violation as outlined in paragraph (e)(2)(i) of this section.

(3) Litigation Status Sheet. Whenever a complaint citing the Privacy Act of 1974 is filed in a U.S. District Court against the Department of Defense, a DoD Component, or any DoD employee, the responsible system manager shall promptly notify the Defense Privacy Office. The litigation status sheet in DoD 5400.11-R provides a standard format for this notification. (The initial litigation status sheet shall, as a minimum, provide the information required by items 1 through 6.) A revised litigation status sheet shall be provided at each stage of litigation. When a court renders a formal opinion or judgment, copies of the judgment or opinion shall be provided to the Defense Privacy Office with the litigation status sheet reporting that judgment or opinion.

§ 311.7 Procedures for exemptions.

(a) General information. The Secretary of Defense designates those Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) systems of records which will be exempt from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. There are two types of exemptions, general and specific. The general exemption authorizes the exemption of a system of records from all but a few requirements of the Act. The specific exemption authorizes exemption of a system of records or portion thereof, from only a few specific requirements. If an OSD Component originates a new system of records for which it proposes an exemption, or if it proposes an additional or new exception for an existing system of records, it shall submit the recommended exemption with the records system notice as outlined in § 311.6. No exemption of a system of records shall be considered automatic for all records in the system. The systems manager shall review each requested record and apply the exemptions only when it will serve significant and legitimate Government purpose.

(b) General exemptions. The general exemption provided by 5 U.S.C. §552a(j)(2) may be invoked for protection of systems of records maintained by law enforcement activities. Certain functional records of such activities are not subject to access provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. Records identifying criminal offenders and alleged offenders consisting of identifying data and notations of arrests, the type and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, parole, and probation status of individuals are protected from disclosure. Other records and reports compiled during criminal investigations, as well as any other records developed at any stage of the criminal law enforcement process from arrest to indictment through the final release from parole supervision are excluded from release.

(1) System Identification and Name—DWHS P42.0, “DPS Incident Reporting and Investigations Case Files”

Exemption—Portions of this system that fall within 5 U.S.C. §552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. §552a, Sections (c) (3) and (4); (d)(1) through (d)(5); (e)(1) through (e)(3); (e)(4)(G) and (e)(4)(H); (f)(5); (f)(6) through (f)(5); (g)(1) through (g)(5) of the Act.

Authority—5 U.S.C. §552a(j)(2).

Reason—From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede USSOUTHCOM's criminal law enforcement.

For subsections (e)(4) and (d) because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

From subsections (e)(4)(G) and (H) because this system of records is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d) pursuant to subsection (j).

From subsection (f) because the agency's rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt andMoment of record disclosure would add the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual might in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification. This record is exempt from record to that individual, and records amendment procedures for this record system.

For compatibility with the exemption claimed from subsection (f), the civil remedies provisions of subsection (g) must be suspended for this record system. Because of the nature of criminal investigations, standards of accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness cannot apply to this record system. Information gathered in criminal investigations is often fragmentary and leads relating to an individual in the context of one investigation may instead pertain to a second investigation.

From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the criminal investigative function creates unique problems in prescribing a specific parameter in a particular case with respect to what information is relevant or necessary. Also, due to US SOUTHCOM’s close liaison and working relationships with the other Federal, as well as state, local and foreign country law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case under the jurisdiction of another agency. The maintenance of this information may be necessary to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of other cooperating agencies.

From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information to the greatest extent possible directly from the subject individual may or may not be practicable in a criminal investigation. The individual may choose not to provide information and the law enforcement process will rely upon significant information about the subject from witnesses and informants.

From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a form containing a Privacy Act Statement would tend to inhibit cooperation by many individuals involved in a criminal investigation. The effect would be somewhat inimical to established investigative methods and techniques.

From subsection (e)(5) because the requirement that records be maintained with attention to accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness would unfairly hamper the criminal investigative process. It is the nature of criminal law enforcement for investigations to uncover the commission of illegal acts at diverse stages. It is frequently impossible to determine initially what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and least of all complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significant as further investigation brings new details to light.

c) Specific exemptions. All systems of records maintained by any OSD Component shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to subsection (k)(1) of that section to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 11265, “National Security Information,” dated June 28, 1979, as amended, and required by the Executive Order to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems necessary to certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions may contain isolated information which has been properly classified. The Secretary of Defense has designated the following OSD system of records described below specifically exempted from the appropriate provisions of the Privacy Act pursuant to the designated authority contained therein:

1. SYSID–DHWS P38, SYSNAME. Protective Services File. Exemption. This system of records is exempt from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4), (G), (H), (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, which would require the disclosure of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes; or a record maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056. If any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit that he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law, or otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of the material compiled for law enforcement purposes, the material shall be provided to that individual, except to the extent that its disclosure would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. At the time of the request for a record, a determination will be made concerning whether a right, privilege, or benefit is denied or specific information would reveal the identity of a source.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (3).

Reasons. These exemptions are necessary to maintain the confidentiality of the records compiled for the purpose of law enforcement, or protecting the President of the United States or other persons pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056.

2. SYSID–DHWS P38, SYSNAME. The Office of the Secretary of Defense Clearance File. Exemption. This system of records is exempt from subsections (c)(3) and (d) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, which would require the disclosure of investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining access to classified information but only to the extent that disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an expressed promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. A determination will be made at the time of the request for a record concerning whether specific information would reveal the identity of a source.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. This exemption is required in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of information compiled for the purpose of determining access to classified information. This confidentiality helps maintain the Government’s continued access to information from persons who would otherwise refuse to give it.

3. SYSID–DHWS P38, SYSNAME. Standards of Conduct Inquiry File. Exemption. This system of records is exempt from subsections (c)(3) and (d) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, which would require the disclosure of Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes; or investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications. for Federal civilian employment, military service, or Federal contracts, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. If any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit that he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law, or otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, the material shall be provided to that individual, except to the extent that its disclosure would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. At the time of the request for a record, a determination will be made concerning whether a right, privilege, or benefit is denied or specific information would reveal the identity of a source.

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (5). Reasons. These exemptions are necessary to protect the confidentiality of the records compiled for the purpose of: Enforcement of the conflict of interest statutes by the Department of Defense Standards of Conduct Counselor, General Counsel, or their designees; and determining suitability, eligibility or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, or Federal contracts of those alleged to have violated or caused others to violate the Standards of Conduct regulations of the Department of Defense.

(5) SYSID-DUSDPS 02, SYSNAME Special Personnel Security Cases. Exemption. All portions of this system which fall under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d).

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. This system of records is exempt from subsections (c)(3) and (d) of 5 U.S.C. 552a which would require the disclosure of investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an expressed promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. A determination will be made at the time of the request for a record concerning whether specific information would reveal the identity of a source. This exemption is required in order to protect the confidentiality of the sources of information compiled for the purpose of determining access to classified information. This confidentiality helps maintain the Government’s continued access to information from persons who would otherwise refuse to give it.

(6) System Identification and Name—DoDDS 02.0, Educator Application Files. Exemption—All portions of this system which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) may be exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3); (d).

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Reasons—It is imperative that the confidential nature of evaluation and investigatory material on teacher application files furnished to the Department of Defense Dependent Schools (DoDDS) under promises of confidentiality be exempt from disclosure to the individual to insure the candid presentation of information necessary to make determinations involving applicants suitability for DoDDS teaching positions.

(7) System Identification and Name—DoDDS 25.0, DoDDS Internal Review Office Project File. Exemption—All portions of this system that fall within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) are exempt from the following subsections: (c)(3), (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (f).

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2). Reasons—Subsection (c)(3) because the release of a disclosure accounting would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede the IRO’s criminal law enforcement effectiveness. From subsection (e)(4)(G) and (e)(4)(H), because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy. From subsection (d) and (f), because access to records and agency rules for access and amendment of records unfairly impede the DoDDS IRO criminal investigation activities. Requiring DoDDS IRO to confirm or deny the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual may in itself provide an answer to the individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender would be jeopardized by agency rules requiring verification of record disclosure of the record to the subject, and record amendment procedures, as normally apply under the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(1), (2), and (3), (c) and (e).

§ 311.8 Information requirements.

The Defense Privacy Office shall establish requirements and deadlines for DoD privacy reports. These reports shall be licensed in accordance with DoD Directive 5000.19.

PART 312—OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL (OIG) PRIVACY PROGRAM

Sec.

312.1 Purpose.

312.2 Definitions.

312.3 Procedure for requesting information.

312.4 Requirements for identification.

312.5 Access by subject individuals.

312.6 Fees.

312.7 Request for correction or amendment.

312.8 OIG review of request for amendment.

312.9 Appeal of initial amendment decision.

312.10 Disclosure of OIG records to other than subject.

312.11 Penalties.

312.12 Exemptions.

312.13 Ownership of OIG investigative records.

312.14 Referral of records.

§ 312.1 Purpose.

Pursuant to the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and 32 CFR part 310—DoD Privacy Program, the following rules of procedures are established with respect to access and amendment of records maintained by the Office of the Inspector General (OIG) on individual subjects of these records.

§ 312.2 Definitions.

(a) All terms used in this part which are defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a shall have the same meaning herein.

(b) As used in this part, the term “agency” means the Office of the Inspector General (OIG), Department of Defense.
§ 312.3 Procedure for requesting information.

Individuals should submit inquiries regarding all OIG files by mail to the Assistant Inspector General for Investigations, ATTN: FOIA/PA Division, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, VA 22202–2884. All personal visits will require some form of common identification.

§ 312.4 Requirements for identification.

Only upon proper identification will any individual be granted access to records which pertain to him/her. Identification is required both for accurate record identification and to avoid disclosing records to unauthorized individuals. Requesters must provide their full name and as much information as possible in order that a proper search for records can be accomplished. Requests made by mail should be accompanied by a notarized signature. Inclusion of a telephone number for the requester is recommended to expedite certain matters. Requesters applying in person must provide an identification with photograph, such as a driver’s license, military identification card, building pass, etc.

§ 312.5 Access by subject individuals.

(a) No individual will be allowed access to any information compiled or maintained in reasonable anticipation of civil or criminal actions or proceedings or otherwise exempt under § 312.12. Requests for pending investigations will be denied and the requester instructed to keep the request giving adequate time for the investigation to be completed. Requesters shall be provided the telephone number so they can call and check on the status in order to know when to resubmit the request.

(b) Any individual may authorize OIG to provide a copy of his/her records to a third party. This authorization must be in writing and should be provided OIG with the initial request along with a notarized signature.

§ 312.6 Fees.

Requesters will be charged only for the reproduction of requested documents and special postal methods, such as express mail, if applicable. There will be no charge for the first copy of a record provided to any individual. Thereafter, fees will be computed as set forth in appropriate DoD Directives and Regulations.

§ 312.7 Request for correction or amendment.

(a) Requests to correct or amend a file shall be addressed to the system manager in which the file is located. The request must reasonably describe the record to be amended, the items to be changed as specifically as possible, the type of amendment (e.g., deletion, correction, amendment), and the reason for amendment. Reasons should address at least one of the following categories: Accuracy, relevance, timeliness, completeness, fairness. The request should also include appropriate evidence which provide a basis for evaluating the request. Normally all documents submitted, to include court orders, should be certified. Amendments under this part are limited to correcting factual matters and not matters of official judgment or opinions, such as performance ratings, promotion potential, and job performance appraisals.

(b) Requirements of identification as outlined in § 312.4 apply to requests to correct or amend a file.

(c) Incomplete requests shall not be honored, but the requester shall be contacted for additional information needed to process the request.

(d) The amendment process is not intended to permit the alteration of evidence presented in the course of judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Any amendments or changes to these records normally are made through the specific procedures established for the amendment of such records.

(e) Nothing in the amendment process is intended or designed to permit a collateral attack upon what has already been subject of a judicial or quasi-judicial determination. However, while the individual may not attack the accuracy of the judicial or quasi-judicial determination, he or she may challenge the accuracy of the recording of that action.

§ 312.8 OIG review of request for amendment.

(a) A written acknowledgement of the receipt of a request for amendment of a record will be provided to the requester within 10 working days, unless final action regarding approval or denial will constitute acknowledgement.

(b) Where there is a determination to grant all or a portion of a request to amend a record, the record shall be promptly amended and the requesting individual notified. Individuals, agencies or DoD components shown by disclosure accounting records to have received copies of the record, or to whom disclosure has been made, will be notified of the amendment by the responsible OIG official.

(c) Where there is a determination to deny all or a portion of a request to amend a record, OIG will promptly advise the requesting individual of the specifics of the refusal and the reasons; and inform the individual that he/she may request a review of the denial(s) from the OIG designated official.

§ 312.9 Appeal of initial amendment decision.

(a) All appeals of an initial amendment decision should be addressed to the Assistant Inspector General for Investigations, ATTN: FOIA/PA Division, 400 Army Navy Drive, Arlington, VA 22202–2884. The appeal should be concise and should specify the reasons the requester believes that the initial amendment action by the OIG was not satisfactory. Upon receipt of the appeal, the designated official will review the request and make a determination to approve or deny the appeal.

(b) If the OIG designated official decides to amend the record, the requester and all previous recipients of the disputed information will be notified of the amendment. If the appeal is denied, the designated official will notify the requester of the reason of the denial, of the requester’s right to file a statement of dispute disagreeing with the denial, that such statement of dispute will be retained in the file, that the statement will be provided to all future users of the file, and that the requester may file suit in a federal district court to contest the OIG decision not to amend the record.

(c) The OIG designated official will respond to all appeals within 30 working days or will notify the requester of an estimated date of completion if the 30 day limit cannot be met.

§ 312.10 Disclosure of OIG records to other than subject.

No record containing personally identifiable information within a OIG system of records shall be disclosed by any means to any person or agency outside the Department of Defense, except with the written consent of the individual subject of the record or as provided for in the Act and DoD 5400.11–R (32 CFR part 310).

§ 312.11 Penalties.

(a) An individual may bring a civil action against the OIG to correct or amend the record, or where there is a refusal to comply with an individual request or failure to maintain any records with accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness, so as to guarantee fairness, or failure to comply with any other provision of the Privacy Act. The court may order correction or amendment of records. The court may enjoin the OIG from withholding the records and order the production of the record.

(b) Where it is determined that the action was willful or intentional with respect to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1) (C) or (D), the United States shall be liable for the actual damages sustained, but in no case less than the sum of $1,000 and the costs of the action with attorney fees.

(c) Criminal penalties may be imposed against an officer or employee of the OIG who discloses material which he/ she knows is prohibited from disclosure, or who willfully maintains a system of records without compliance with the notice requirements.

(d) Criminal penalties may be imposed against any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning another individual from an agency under false pretenses.

(e) All of these offenses are misdemeanors with a fine not to exceed $5,000.

§ 312.12 Exemptions.

(a) Exemption for classified records. Any record in a system of records maintained by the Office of the Inspector General which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (G)I, and (K) to the extent that a record system contains any record properly classified under Executive Order 12356 and that the record is required to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This specific exemption rule, claimed by the Inspector General under authority of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), is applicable to all systems of records maintained, including those individually designated for an exemption herein as well as those not otherwise specifically designated for an exemption, which may contain isolated items of properly classified information.

(b) The Inspector General of the Department of Defense claims an exemption for the following record systems under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k)(1)(7) from certain indicated subsections of the Privacy Act of 1974. The exemptions may be invoked and exercised on a case by case basis by the Deputy Assistant Inspector General for Investigations or the Director, Investigative Support Directorate and Freedom of Information Act/Privacy Act Division Chief which serves as the Systems Program Managers. Exemptions will be exercised only when necessary for a specific, significant and legitimate reason connected with the purpose of the records system.

(c) No personal records releasable under the provisions of The Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552) will be withheld from the subject individual based on these exemptions.

(d) System Identifier: CIG-04.

(1) System name: Case Control System.

(2) Exemption: Any portion of this system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(C), (H), (I), (I)(5), (e)(8)(f), and (g).

(3) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(9) From subsection (e)(4) it is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(10) From subsection (e)(5) because the requirement that reports be maintained with attention to accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness would unfairly hamper the investigative process. It is the nature of law enforcement for investigations to uncover the commission of illegal acts at diverse stages. It is frequently impossible to determine initially what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and least of all complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light.

(11) From subsection (e)(8) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and existence of confidential investigations.

(12) From subsection (f) because the agency's rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden of the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual might in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system.

(13) For comparability with the exemption claimed from subsection (f), the civil remedies provisions of subsection (g) must be suspended for this record system. Because of the nature of criminal investigations, standards of accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness cannot apply to this record system. Information gathered in an investigation is often fragmentary and leads relating to an individual in the context of one investigation may instead pertain to a second investigation.

(e) System Identifier: CIG-06.

(1) System name: Investigative Files.

(2) Exemption: Any portion of this system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3), (d)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (H), (I), (I)(5), (e)(8)(f), and (g).

(3) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).
(4) Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in providing him or her with knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies. This would greatly impede OIG’s criminal law enforcement.

(5) From subsection (c)(4) and (d), because notification would alert a subject to the fact that an open investigation on that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy.

(6) From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the criminal and/or civil investigative function creates unique problems in prescribing a specific parameter in a particular case with respect to what information is relevant or necessary. Also, due to OIG’s close liaison and working relationships with other Federal, state, local and foreign law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. The maintenance of this information may be necessary to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of other cooperating agencies.

(7) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information to the fullest extent possible directly from the subject individual may or may not be practical in a criminal and/or civil investigation.

(8) From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a form containing a Privacy Act Statement would tend to inhibit cooperation by many individuals involved in a criminal and/or civil investigation. The effect would be somewhat adverse to established investigative methods and techniques.

(9) From subsection (e)(4) (G) through (I) because this system of records is exempt from the access provisions of subsection (d).

(10) From subsection (e)(5) because the requirement that records be maintained with attention to accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness would unfairly hamper the investigative process. It is the nature of law enforcement for investigations to uncover the commission of illegal acts at diverse stages. It is frequently impossible to determine initially what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and least of all complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light.

(11) From subsection (e)(6) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to law enforcement by revealing investigatory techniques, procedures, and existence of confidential investigations.

(12) From subsection (f) because the agency’s rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual might in itself provide an answer to that individual relating to an on-going investigation.

The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system.

(13) For comparability with the exemption claimed from subsection (f), the civil remedies provisions of subsection (g) must be suspended for this record system. Because of the nature of criminal investigations, standards of accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness cannot apply to this record system. Information gathered in an investigation is often fragmentary and leads relating to an individual in the context of one investigation may instead pertain to a second investigation.

(f) System Identifier: CIG–15
(1) System name: Special Inquiries Investigative Case File and Control System.
(2) Exemption: Any portions of this system which fall under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(C–H), and (f).
(3) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).
(4) Reasons: From subsection (c)(3) because disclosures from this system could interfere with the just, thorough and timely resolution of the compliant or inquiry, and possibly enable individuals to conceal their wrongdoing or mislead the course of the investigation by concealing, destroying or fabricating evidence or documents.

§ 312.13 Ownership of OIG investigative records.
(a) Criminal and or civil investigative reports shall not be retained by DoJ recipient organizations. Such reports are the property of OIG and are on loan to the recipient organization for the purpose for which requested or provided. All copies of such reports shall be destroyed within 180 days after the completion of the final action by the requesting organization.

(b) Investigative reports which require longer periods of retention may be retained only with the specific written approval of OIG.

§ 312.14 Referral of records.
An OIG system of records may contain records other DoJ Components or Federal agencies originated, and who may have claimed exemptions for them

§ 316.1 Purpose.

This part delineates responsibility and provides guidance for the implementation of Pub. L. 93–579 (Privacy Act of 1974).

§ 316.2 Applicability.

This part applies to Headquarters, DCA and DCA field activities.

§ 316.3 Authority.

This part is published in accordance with the authority contained in 32 CFR part 310, August 1975. [40 FR 55535, Nov. 28, 1975. Redesignated and amended at 57 FR 8074, Feb. 20, 1992]

§ 316.4 Definitions.

Add to the definitions contained in 32 CFR 310.6 the following:

System Manager: The DCA official who is responsible for policies and procedures governing a DCA System of Record. His title and duty address will be found in the paragraph entitled System Manager in DCA’s Record System Notices which are published in the Federal Register in compliance with provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. [40 FR 55535, Nov. 28, 1975. Redesignated and amended at 57 FR 8074, Feb. 20, 1992]

§ 316.5 Policy.

It is the policy of DCA:

(a) To preserve the personal privacy of individuals, to permit an individual to know what records exist pertaining to him in the DCA, and to have access to and have a copy made of all or any portion of such records and to correct or amend such records.

(b) To prevent, collect, maintain, use, or disseminate any record of identifiable personal information in a manner that assures that such action is for a necessary and lawful purpose; that the information is timely and accurate for its intended use; and that adequate safeguards are provided to prevent misuse of such information.

§ 316.6 Procedures and responsibilities.

(a) The Counsel, DCA, is hereby designated the Privacy Act Officer for DCA and is responsible for insuring that an internal DCA Privacy Program is established and maintained. He will also insure that all echelons of DCA effectively comply with and implement 32 CFR part 310.

(b) The Civilian Assistant to the Chief of Staff will be responsible for the annual reporting requirements contained in 32 CFR 310.5.

(c) DCA System Managers and other appropriate DCA officials will:

(1) Insure compliance with the provisions of 32 CFR 310.9.

(2) Comply with the provisions of 32 CFR 310.11. In this area the Assistant to the Director for Administration will provide assistance.

(3) Adhere to the following:

(i) Within DCA, the System Manager of any record system will assure that records pertaining to an individual will be disclosed, upon request, to the individual to whom the record pertains. The individual need not state a reason or otherwise justify the need to gain access. A person of the individual’s choosing may accompany the individual when the record is disclosed. The System Manager may require the individual to furnish a written statement authorizing discussion of the individual's records in the presence of the accompanying person. If requested, the System Manager will make a copy made of all or any portion of the record pertaining to the individual in a form comprehensible to the requester.

(ii) The System Manager may release records to the individual’s representative who has the written consent of the individual. The System Manager will require reasonable identification of individuals to assure that records are disclosed to the proper person. No verification of identity will be required of an individual seeking access to records which are otherwise available to any member of the public under the Freedom of Information Act. Identification requirements should be consistent with the nature of the records being disclosed. For disclosure of records to an individual in person, the System Manager will require that the individual show some form of identification. For records disclosed to an individual in person or by mail, the System Manager may require whatever identifying information is needed to locate the record; i.e., name, social security number, date of birth. If the sensitivity of the data warrants, the System Manager may require a signed notarized statement of identity. The System Manager may compare the signatures of the requester with those in the records to verify identity. An individual will not be denied access to records pertaining to him because the records are exempted from disclosure under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.
(iii) The System Manager will not deny access to a record or a copy thereof to an individual solely because its physical presence is not readily available (i.e., on magnetic tape) or because the context of the record may disclose sensitive information about another individual. To protect the privacy of other individuals who may be identified in a record, the System Manager shall prepare an extract to delete only that information which would not be releasable to the requesting individual under the Freedom of Information Act.

(iv) When the System Manager is of the opinion that the disclosure of medical information could have an adverse effect upon the individual to whom it pertains, the System Manager will promptly request the individual to submit the name and address of a doctor who will determine whether the medical record may be disclosed directly to the individual. The System Manager will then request the opinion of her doctor named by the individual on whether a medical record may be disclosed to the individual. The System Manager shall disclose the medical record to the individual to whom it pertains unless, in the judgment of the doctor, access to the record could have an adverse effect upon the individual's physical or mental health. In this event the System Manager will transmit the record to the doctor and immediately inform the individual.

(v) The fees to be charged, if any, to an individual for making copies of his record, excluding the cost of any search for and review of the record, will be in accordance with the "Schedule of Fees" as set forth in 32 CFR 286.5 and 286.10.

(vi) The System Manager of the record will permit an individual to request amendment of a record pertaining to the individual. Requests to amend records shall be in person or in writing and shall be submitted to the System Manager who maintains the records. Such requests should contain as a minimum, identifying information needed to locate the record, a brief description of the item or items of information to be amended, and the reason for the requested change.

(vii) The System Manager will provide a written acknowledgment of the receipt of a request to amend a record to the individual who requested the amendment within 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the date of receipt of such request. Such an acknowledgment may, if necessary, request any additional information needed to make a determination. No acknowledgment is required if the request can be reviewed and processed and the individual notified of compliance or denial within the 10 day period.

(viii) The System Manager will promptly take one of the following actions on requests to amend records:

(A) Refer the request to the agency or office that has control of and maintains the record in those instances where the record requested remains the property of the controlling office or agency. In accordance with existing statute, regulation, or administrative procedure, make any correction of any portion thereof which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely or complete, or

(C) Inform the individual of the System Manager's refusal to amend the record in accordance with the individual's request, the reason for the refusal, and the individual's right to request a review of the refusal by the Director, DCA, through the DCA Privacy Act Board.

(ix) The DCA Privacy Act Board will be comprised of the DCA Counsel, as Chairman; the Assistant to the Director for Administration, and the Assistant to the Director for Personnel; or in their absence, their authorized representatives. The individual who disagrees with the refusal of the System Manager to amend his record may request a review of this refusal by the DCA Privacy Act Board. The request for the review may be made orally or in writing and shall be made to the System Manager. The System Manager will promptly forward the request for review to the Chairman of the Board to make a proper review. The Board will promptly review the matter. If, after review, the Board is unanimous in its decision that the record be amended in accordance with the request of the individual then the Chairman of the Board shall so notify the System Manager. The System Manager will immediately make the necessary corrections to the record and will promptly notify the individual. The System Manager will, if an accounting of disclosure of the record has been made, advise all previous recipients of the record, which was corrected, of the correction and its substance. This will be done in all instances when a record is amended. If, after review, the Board decides that the request for amendment should be denied, it will promptly forward its recommendation to the Director, DCA. A majority vote of the members of the Board will constitute a recommendation to the Director.

(x) The Director, DCA, upon receipt of the Board's recommendation, will complete the review and make a final determination.

(xi) If the Director, DCA, after his review, agrees with the individual's request to amend the record, he will, through the DCA Counsel, so inform the individual in writing. The System Manager will receive a copy of the Director's decision and will assure that the record is corrected accordingly and that if an accounting of disclosure of the record has been made, advise all previous recipients of the record which was corrected of the correction and its substance.

(xii) If, after his review, the Director refuses to amend the record as the individual requested, he will, through the DCA Counsel, advise the individual of his refusal and the reasons for it; of the individual's right to file a concise statement setting forth the reasons for the individual's disagreement with the decision of the Director, DCA; that the statement which is filed will be made available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed together with, at the discretion of the Agency, a brief statement by the Agency summarizing its reasons for refusing to amend the record; that prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided a copy of any statement of dispute to the extent that an accounting of disclosures was maintained; and of the individual's right to seek judicial review of the Agency's refusal to amend a record.

(xiii) The Director's final determination on the individual's request for a review of the System Manager's initial refusal to amend the record must be concluded within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) from the date on which the individual requested such review unless the Director determines that a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that time. If additional time is required, the individual will be informed in writing of reasons for the delay and of the approximate date on which the review is expected to be completed.

(xiv) After the Director, DCA, has refused to amend a record and the individual has filed a statement setting forth the reasons for the individual's disagreement with the decision of the Director, the System Manager will clearly note any portion of the record which is disputed. The System Manager's notation should make clear that the record is disputed and this should be apparent to anyone who may subsequently have access to, use, or disclose the record. When the System Manager has previously disclosed or will subsequently disclose that portion of the record which is disputed he will note that portion of the record is disputed and will provide the recipients of the record with a copy of the individual's statement setting forth the reasons for the individual's disagreement with the decision of the Director not to amend the record. The System Manager will also provide recipients of the disputed record with a brief summary of the Director's reasons for not making the requested amendments to the record.

(xv) Nothing herein shall allow an individual access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

(xvi) Any requests by an individual for access to or copies of his records shall be processed in accordance with this part and CFR part 310.

(d) DCA System Managers will:

(1) Responsible for protecting the rights of individuals as defined in 32 CFR 310.4 relating to the disclosure of personal records, obtaining the written consent of individuals to whom the record pertains, and for keeping an accurate accounting of each disclosure of a record.

(2) Responsible for providing to the Civilian Assistant to the Chief of Staff the information requested in 32 CFR 310.5. However, the information will be reported on a quarterly basis with the first report due to the Civilian Assistant to the Chief of Staff by December 31, 1975.

(e) The Assistant to the Director for Administration, Headquarters, DCA will:

(1) Be responsible for furnishing written guidelines to assist System Managers and other DCA officials in evaluating and implementing paperwork management procedures required under the Privacy Act of 1974. In this regard it should be noted that the Act establishes a number of requirements. Among these are the requirements: (i) To disclose records contained in a system of records only under conditions specified in the law, (ii) to maintain an accounting of such disclosures, (iii) to establish procedures for the disclosure to an individual of his record or information pertaining to him, (iv) for reviewing a request concerning the amendment of such record, and (v) for permitting individuals to file a statement of disagreement which will be forwarded with subsequent disclosures. The guidelines will cover those portions of the Privacy Act which require paperwork systems for implementation.

In preparing those guidelines the Assistant to the Director for Administration will make use of the "Records Management System for Implementing the Privacy Act" as provided by the GSA National Archives and Records Service, Office of Records Management. The GSA procedures and guidelines will be adapted and modified as required to meet DCA needs.

(2) Be responsible for providing the "Forms" which are required to comply with 32 CFR 310.9(b).

(f) The Assistant to the Director for Personnel, Headquarters, DCA will:

(1) Be responsible for development, within DCA, of an appropriate training program for all DCA personnel whose duties involve responsibilities for systems of records affected by the Privacy Act.

(2) Assure that DCA personnel involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records, as defined in 32 CFR 310.6 are informed of all requirements to protect the privacy of the individuals who are subjects of the records. The criminal penalties and civil suit aspects of the Privacy Act will be emphasized.

(3) Assure that within DCA administrative and physical safeguards are established to protect information from unauthorized or unintentional access, disclosure, modification or destruction and to assure that all persons whose official duties require access to processing and maintenance of personal information are trained in the proper safeguarding and use of such information.

§ 316.7 Questions. Questions on both the substance and procedure of the Privacy Act and the DCA implementation thereof should be addressed to the DCA Counsel by the most expeditious means possible, including telephone calls.

§ 316.8 Exemptions. Section 5 U.S.C. 552a (3)(j) and 3)(k) authorize an agency head to exempt certain systems of records or parts of certain systems of records from some of the requirements of the act. This part reserves to the Director, DCA, as head of an agency, the right to create exemptions pursuant to the exemption provisions of the act. All systems of records maintained by DCA shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(3)(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 11652, "Classification and Declassification of National Security Information and Material," dated March 8, 1972 (37 FR 10053, May 19, 1972) and which is required by the executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions may contain isolated information which has been properly classified.

§ 317.1 Purpose.

This part implements the Privacy Act of 1974 by prescribing:

(a) The procedures whereby individuals can be notified in response to their requests if any system of records named by the individuals contains a record pertaining to them.

(b) The requirements for verifying the identity of individuals who request their records or information pertaining to them before the record or information shall be made available to them.

(c) The procedures for granting access to individuals upon their request of their records or information pertaining to them.

(d) The procedures for reviewing a request from individuals concerning the amendment of any record or information pertaining to them, for making a determination on the request, and for an appeal of an initial adverse determination.

(e) The procedures and policies governing the collection, safeguarding, maintenance, public notice, use, and dissemination of personal information.

(f) The conditions under which disclosure of personal information may be made and procedures for exempting systems of records from certain requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974.

§ 317.2 Applicability and scope.

(a) The provisions of this part apply to all offices of DCAA, hereinafter referred to singularly as "element" or collectively as "elements."

(b) Its provisions govern the collection, maintenance, use, and dissemination of personal information by DCAA in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a. Requests for information under the Freedom Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, by an individual about another individual are governed by the provisions of 32 CFR part 290. Requests for personal information from the General Accounting Office are governed by DOD Directive 7650.1, "General Accounting Office Comprehensive Audits." Requests for personal information from the Congress are governed by DOD Directive 5400.4, "Provision of Information to Congress." Requests from other agencies and the courts are governed by DOD Directive 5400.7, "Availability to the Public of Department of Defense Information," as well as the provisions of this part.

§317.3 Policy.

The policy of DCAA is:

(a) Preserve the personal privacy of individuals, permitting individuals to know what records pertaining to them are collected, maintained, used, or disseminated in DCAA, and to have access to and have a comprehensible copy made of all or any portion of such records, and to correct or amend such records.

(b) Collect, maintain, use, or disseminate any record of identifiable personal information in a manner that assures that such action is for a necessary and lawful purpose; that the information is timely and accurate for its intended use; and that adequate safeguards are provided to prevent misuse of such information.

§317.4 Authority and responsibilities.

(a) A DCAA Privacy Board is hereby established for the purpose of ensuring the preservation of individual privacy within DCAA. Privacy programs and procedures shall be developed and coordinated by the Board under the Chairmanship of the Assistant Director, Resources.

(1) Membership of the Board shall consist of the Records Administrator, who shall serve as the Executive Secretary and Privacy Act Coordinator; and representatives designated by the Assistant Director, Operations and Professional Development; Counsel; Director of Personnel; Security Officer; and Chief, Information Systems and Services.

(2) The Board shall:

(i) Identify all DCAA systems of records affected by the Privacy Act.

(ii) Require all data required by the act concerning each record system so identified.

(iii) Review policies, practices, and procedures relating to each identified system of records to ensure they are in conformity with the act.

(iv) Supervise the preparation for publication in the Federal Register of all required information on systems of records affected by the act.

(v) Review for conformity with the act, all proposed rules, including forms, which require an individual to furnish information, and formulate corrective or supplementary provisions as necessary.

(vi) Recommend establishment of DCAA policies which will provide safeguards to protect personal privacy.

(vii) Refer to the DOD Privacy Board for resolution, any requirement for information from an individual which does not appear to be clearly authorized by law or executive order.

(viii) Review proposed DCAA implementing instructions and related issuances pertaining to the Privacy Act, as well as draft implementing instructions of the DCAA Regional Offices in order to provide the comprehensive guidance necessary for uniform compliance with the act by all elements of DCAA.

(ix) Serve as the focal point on privacy matters for DCAA in communications with the DOD Privacy Board, which serves as the focal point in communications with the Office of Management and Budget, the Privacy Protection Study Commission, and the Office of the Federal Register for publication of system notices.

(b) The Assistant Director, Resources, in conjunction with the DCAA Privacy Board shall:

(1) Formulate DCAA policies to ensure that both manual and ADP record systems contain appropriate safeguards to protect personal privacy.

(2) Ensure development throughout DCAA of an appropriate training program for all personnel whose duties involve responsibilities for systems of records affected by the act.

(c) Regional Managers, Chief of Detachment A, and the Manager of the Defense Contract Audit Institute shall:

(1) Designate a Privacy Act Coordinator to serve as the principal point of contact on privacy matters.

(2) Establish and maintain an effective internal Privacy Program, through all echelons, as prescribed herein.

§317.5 Definitions.

(a) Individual: A citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence. A legal guardian or the parent of a minor has the same rights as the individual and may act on behalf of the individual.

(b) Maintain (records on individuals): Collect, use, or disseminate.

(c) Record: Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by an element, including, but not limited to, his education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains his name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

(d) System of records: A group of any records under the control of any element from which information is retrieved by the name of an individual or by some identifying number, symbol or other identifying particular assigned to the individual.

(e) Routine use: With respect to the disclosure of a record, the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected. Routine use encompasses not only common or ordinary uses, but also all the proper and necessary uses of the record, even if such use occurs infrequently.

§317.6 Access by the individual.

(a) Upon request, individuals shall be informed whether or not a system of records contains a record pertaining to them. Accompanied by a person of their own choosing, if so desired, they shall be permitted to review their records, and to obtain a copy of such records in a form that is comprehensible to them unless exempted in accordance with §317.9 or 317.6(a)(5), below. This part does not require that a record be created or that an individual be given access to records which are not retrieved by name or other individual identifier. Only costs of reproduction may be charged; however, the first copy of a personnel record maintained by a Personnel Office should be provided without charge. If copying is the only means whereby the record can be made available to the individual, reproduction fees will not be assessed; i.e., when a copy must be made in order to delete information contained on the record pertaining to another individual.

(1) The granting of access to a record containing personal information shall not be conditioned upon any requirement that the individual state a reason or otherwise justify the need to gain access.

(2) Prior to being granted access to personal information, an individual may be required to provide reasonable verification of identity.
(i) No verification of identity shall be required of an individual seeking access to records which are otherwise available to any member of the public under the Freedom of Information Act.

(ii) For the individual who seeks access in person, verification of identity will normally be made by those documents which an individual is likely to have readily available, such as an employee identification card, driver’s license, or medical card.

(iii) When access is requested by mail, verification of identity may consist of the individual providing certain minimum identifying data, such as name and date of birth or such other information deemed necessary by the element having custody of the record.

(iv) An individual shall not be denied access to his record for refusing to disclose his Social Security Number (SSN) unless disclosure of his SSN is required by statute or by regulation adopted before January 1, 1975.

(v) Individuals may not be denied access to a record pertaining to themselves because those records are exempted from disclosure under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

(3) Access to a record or a copy thereof will not be denied solely because the record’s physical presence is not readily available, i.e., on magnetic tape, or because the context of the record may disclose sensitive information about another individual. To protect the personal privacy of other individuals who may be identified in a record, an extract shall be prepared deleting only that information which would not be released to the requesting individual under the Freedom of Information Act.

(4) A medical record shall be disclosed to the individual to whom it pertains unless, in the judgment of a physician, access to such record could have an adverse effect upon the individual’s physical or mental health. When it has been determined that the disclosure of medical information could have an adverse effect upon the individual to whom it pertains, the information may be transmitted to a physician named by the requesting individual.

(5) This part does not entitle an individual to have access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

(6) An element may require an individual who wishes to be accompanied by another person when receiving access to his records to furnish a written statement authorizing discussion of the records in the presence of the accompanying person.

(7) Any requests from individuals for access to or copies of their own records shall be processed in accordance with this part and not the Freedom of Information Act. Normally, requests for access to records should be acknowledged within 10 working days of receipt and access provided within 30 working days.

(8) Copies of investigatory records compiled by an investigative organization, but in the temporary custody of an element requesting the record for purposes of adjudication or other personnel action, are the records of the originating investigative agency. Individuals seeking access to such records shall be directed to the originating investigative organization and should be instructed to direct all requests submitted under the Privacy Act of 1974 to that organization. Records concerning the adjudication, or other personnel actions based on the investigatory records, are originated by DCAA and are the records of DCAA. All requests for these records shall be referred to the Security Officer, DCAA who shall respond under this part considering them.

(b) Amendment of personal information.

(1) Individuals shall be given the opportunity to request either in person or through the mail that their records be amended; however, all requests for such amendment must be made in writing. Instruct the individual, request and any forms employed should be as brief and as simple as possible. Requests should contain as a minimum, identifying information to locate the record, a description of the items to be amended and the reason amendment is being requested. A request shall not be rejected or required to be resubmitted unless additional information is essential to process the request.

Incomplete or inaccurate requests shall not be rejected categorically; the individual shall be asked to clarify the request as needed. Individuals shall be required to provide identification of identity as in § 317.6(a)(2) to assure that the requester is seeking to amend records pertaining to him and not inadvertently or intentionally, the records of another individual.

(2) A written acknowledgment of the receipt of a request for amendment of a record must be provided to the individual within 10 working days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after receipt by the proper office. The acknowledgment shall clearly identify the request and advise the individual when he may expect to be advised of action taken on the request. Whenever practicable the decision shall be made within 30 working days. No separate acknowledgment of receipt is necessary if the request can be either approved or denied, and the individual advised within the 10-day period. For requests presented in person, written acknowledgment may be provided at the time the request is presented.

(3) If the element agrees with any portion or all of the individual’s request to amend a record, it shall promptly advise the individual and amend the record accordingly. If a disclosure accounting has been made, the element shall advise all previous recipients of the record that the amendment has been made and the substance of the correction.

(4) If the element disagrees with all or any portion of a request to amend a record, it shall promptly:

(i) Advise the individual of its refusal and the reasons therefor;

(ii) Inform the individual that he may request a further review by the Assistant Director, Resources; and

(iii) Describe the procedures for requesting such a review, including the name and address of the Assistant Director, Resources.

(5) A review of the initial refusal to amend a record shall be made if requested by the individual.

(i) The Assistant Director, Resources, shall make a review of the initial determination.

(ii) If, after conducting the review, the Assistant Director, Resources, also refuses to amend the record in accordance with the individual’s request, the individual shall be notified:

(A) Of the refusal and the reasons therefor;

(B) Of the right to file a concise statement of reasons for disagreeing with the decision of the agency;

(C) Of the procedures for filing a statement of disagreement and that such statement will be made available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed;

(D) That prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided a copy of the statement of disagreement to the extent that an accounting of disclosures is maintained;

(E) Of his right to seek judicial review of the agency’s refusal to amend a record.

(iii) If the Assistant Director, Resources determines that the record should be amended in accordance with the request, the element shall amend the record, advise the individual and inform previous recipients where an accounting of disclosures has been maintained.

(iv) A final determination on the individual’s request for a review of an initial refusal to amend a record must be completed within 30 working days after receipt by the proper office unless the Director, DCAA determines that a fair and equitable review cannot be completed in that time. If additional time is required, the individual shall be informed of the reasons for the delay and of the approximate date on which the review is expected to be completed.

(6) When an individual files a statement of dispute, the element shall clearly annotate the record so that the dispute is apparent to anyone who may subsequently grant access to, use, or disclose the record. The notation itself shall be integral to the record. Where an accounting of disclosure has been made, the element shall advise previous recipients that the record has been disputed and shall provide a copy of the individual’s statement.

(i) The individual’s statement of dispute need not be filed as an integral part of the record to which it pertains. It shall, however, be maintained in such a manner as to permit ready retrieval whenever the disputed portion of the record is to be disclosed. When information which is the subject of a statement of dispute is subsequently disclosed, the element shall note which information is disputed and provide a copy of the individual’s statement.

(ii) An element may include a brief summary of its reasons for not making an amendment when disclosing disputed information. Summaries normally will be limited to the reasons stated to the individual. The element’s summary will be treated as part of the individual’s record; however, it will not be subject to the amendment procedures.

§ 317.7 Disclosure to others.

(a) Except as prescribed in § 317.6, this part does not require disclosure of records to anyone other than the individual to whom the records pertain.

(b) No record contained in a system of records maintained within DCAA shall be disclosed by any means of communication to any person, or to any agency outside DCAA, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the record pertains, unless disclosure of the record will be:

(1) To those officials and employees of DCAA who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties and the use is compatible with the purpose for which the record is maintained. This includes, for example, transfer of information between DOD components when personnel assigned to DCAA are involved in an activity of another component such as the Defense Investigative Service, the Defense Supply Agency, or one of the Military Departments.

(2) Required to be disclosed to a member of the public by the Freedom of Information Act. Some examples of personal information pertaining to civilian employees which are normally released without an unwarranted invasion of privacy are: name, present and past positions, office phone number, and grade. However, disclosure of personal information pertaining to civilian employees shall be made in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual and, therefore, all requests for such information should be referred to the appropriate Personnel Office.

(3) For a routine use as defined in § 317.5 and described in DCAA record system notices.

(4) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity authorized by law.

(5) To a recipient who has provided DCAA with advance adequate written assurance that: The record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record; the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable, i.e., the identity of the individual cannot be determined by combining various statistical records; and will not be used to make any decisions about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of an individual.

(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his designee to determine whether the record has such value. A record transferred to a Federal records center for safekeeping or storage does not fall within this category since Federal records center personnel act on behalf of DCAA in this instance and the records remain under the control of DCAA. No disclosure accounting record of the transfer of records to Federal records centers need be maintained.

(7) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the element which maintains the record specifying the particular portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought. Blanket requests for all records pertaining to an individual will not be accepted. A record may also be disclosed to a law enforcement agency at the initiative of the Counsel, DCAA when criminal conduct is suspected, provided that such disclosure has been established in advance as a routine use.

(b) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual if upon such disclosure notification is transmitted to the last known address of the individual to whom the record pertains.

(9) To either House of Congress, or, to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof, or any joint committee. This does not authorize the disclosure of any record subject to this to members of Congress acting in their individual capacities or on behalf of their constituents, unless the individual consents.

(10) To the Comptroller General, or any of his authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office.

(11) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

(i) When a record is disclosed under compulsory legal process and when the issuance of that order or subpoena is made public by the court which issued it, make reasonable efforts to notify the individual to whom the record pertains. This may be accomplished by notifying the individual by mail at his most recent address as contained in the element’s records.

(ii) Upon being served with an order to disclose a record, the element shall endeavor to determine whether the issuance of the order is a matter of public record and, if it is not, seek to be advised when it becomes public. An accounting of the disclosure shall be made at the time the element complies with the order or subpoena.

(c) Each DCAA element, with respect to each system of records under its control shall:

(1) Except for disclosures made under paragraphs (b)(1) and (b)(2) of this section, keep an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure of a record to any person or to another agency; and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. A DCAA element need not make a notation on a single document of every disclosure of a particular record, provided it can construct from its system the required accounting information when required by the individual; when necessary to inform previous recipients of any amended record; or when providing a cross reference to the justification or basis upon which the disclosure was made, including any written documentation as required in the case of the release of records for statistical or law enforcement purposes.

(2) Retain the accounting made under paragraph (c)(1) of this section, for at least 5 years after the last disclosure or the life of the record, whichever is longer. No record of the disclosure of this accounting need be maintained.

(3) Upon request of the individual to whom the record pertains, make available to that individual all information in its accounting of disclosures except that pertaining to disclosures for law enforcement purposes pursuant to § 317.7(b)(7).

(d) (1) An individual's name and address may not be sold or rented by an element unless such action is specifically authorized by law. This provision shall not be construed to require the withholding of names and addresses otherwise permitted to be made public.

(2) Lists or compilations of names and home addresses, or single home addresses will not be disclosed, without the consent of the individual involved, to the public including, but not limited to, individual congressmen, creditors, and commercial and financial institutions. Requests for home addresses may be referred to the last known address of the individual for reply at his discretion and the requester will be notified accordingly. This prohibition may be waived when circumstances of a case indicate compelling and overriding interests.

§ 317.8 Collection of personal information from individuals.

(a) Personal information shall be collected to the greatest extent practicable directly from the individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's rights, benefits, and privileges under Federal programs. The collection of information from third parties shall be minimized. Exceptions to this policy may be made under certain circumstances, such as the following:

(1) There is a need to insure accuracy of information supplied by an individual by verifying with a third party, such as in the case of verifying information for a security clearance.

(2) The nature of the information is such that it can only be obtained from a third party, such as an employee's performance in a previous job or assignment.

(3) Obtaining the information from the individual would present exceptional practical difficulties or would result in unreasonable cost.

(b) Each individual who is asked to supply personal information must be told of the authority (statute or Executive Order) which authorizes its solicitation; the principal purpose or purposes for which it is to be used; the routine uses to be made of it; whether furnishing such information is mandatory or voluntary; and the effects on him, if any, of not providing it. This notice to the individual may be made on the form used to collect the information or on a separate form which can be retained by the individual. This advice must be given regardless of the media used in requesting information, whether it is a "form" in the usual sense, i.e., a preprinted document with a control number and an edition date, or a format, questionnaire, survey sheet, or report rendered on a blank sheet.

(1) Forms in use before September 27, 1975, which are to be used on and after that date must meet the notice requirements by use of a separate statement to accompany each form subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. The statement will be assigned the identifying number used in collecting the information and the suffix "Privacy Act Statement," as follows:

(i) For forms in regularly issued, numbered series, the Privacy Act Statement shall bear the same number as the form to which it pertains.

(ii) For unnumbered formats, questionnaires, survey forms, and reports, the Privacy Act Statement will bear the report control symbol or OMB Approval Number under the authority of which the information is collected if applicable.

(2) As forms are revised or new ones issued, the Privacy Act Statement shall be incorporated, if practical, in the body of each form, format, questionnaire, survey sheet, or report initiated or revised on or after September 27, 1975. Where feasible, the Privacy Act Statement when incorporated on a form, format, etc. should be positioned in such a manner that the individual will be informed of the information required by the act before he begins to furnish any of the information requested.

[3][i] The proponent, i.e., the initiator, has the final responsibility for determining whether a form, format, questionnaire, survey, or report requires a Privacy Act Statement. Statements should be sufficiently complete and specific, but, at the same time, be concise and couched in easily understood language.

(ii) Forms and information management officers at all echelons of DCAA must assure that Privacy Act Statements are available and that new forms contain the Statement, if required.

(iii) No element may deny any individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because of such individual's refusal to disclose his SSN, unless such disclosure is required by Federal statute or to any element maintaining a system of records in existence and operating before January 1, 1975, if such disclosure was required under statute or regulation adopted prior to such date to verify the identity of an individual. Executive Order No. 9937, November 22, 1943, authorizes elements to use the SSN as a system of numerical identification of individuals.

(iv) Any DCAA element which requests an individual to disclose the SSN must inform that individual whether disclosure is mandatory or voluntary, by what statutory or other authority such number is solicited, and what uses will be made of it.

(c) If disclosure of the SSN is not required by Federal statute or is not for a system of records in existence and, operating prior to January 1, 1975, DCAA elements are not precluded from requesting it from the individuals concerned. However, the separate Privacy Act Statement for the SSN alone, or a merged Privacy Act Statement, covering not only the SSN but also other items of personal information, must make clear that the disclosure of the SSN is voluntary. If, in such instances, the individual refuses to disclose it, the element concerned must be prepared to identify him by alternate means.

§ 317.9 Exemptions.

(a) The Director, DCAA reserves the right to designate the systems of records maintained by this agency which are to be exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, and shall publish in the Federal Register the information specifying the name of each designated system, the specific provisions of the act from which each system is to be exempted, and the reasons for each exemption of the record system.

(b) To qualify for a general exemption, as defined in the Privacy Act of 1974, the system of records must be maintained by an agency or component thereof which performs as its principal function any activity pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws, including police efforts to prevent, control, or reduce crime or to apprehend criminals, and the activities of prosecutors, courts, correctional, probation, pardon, or parole authorities. Such system of records must consist of:
(1) Information compiled for the purpose of identifying individual criminal offenders and alleged offenders and containing only identifying data and notations of arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, and parole and probation status;
(2) Information compiled for the purpose of a criminal investigation, including reports of informants and investigators, and associated with an identifiable individual;
(3) Reports identifiable to an individual compiled at any state of the process of enforcement of the criminal laws from arrest or indictment through release from supervision.
(c) To qualify for a specific exemption, as defined by the Privacy Act of 1974, the system of records must be:
(1) Specifically authorized under criteria established under an Executive Order to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy and are in fact properly classified pursuant to such Executive Order;
(2) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, other than material covered under a general exemption; however, an individual shall not be denied access to information which has been used to deny him a right or privilege unless disclosure would reveal a confidential source. The Security Officer, DCAA, shall establish procedures governing the granting of confidentiality;
(3) Maintained in connection with providing protective service to the President of the United States or other individuals protected pursuant to 18
(4) Used only to generate aggregate data or for other similarly evaluative or analytic purposes and which are not used to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals except for the disclosure of a census
(5) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. The Security Officer, DCAA, shall establish procedures governing the granting of confidentiality;
(6) Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual eligibility or qualification for promotion in the Federal service, the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process; or
(7) Evaluation material used to determine potential for promotion in the Armed Services, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.
(d) Section 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) authorize an agency head to exempt certain systems of records or parts of certain systems of records from some of the requirements of this Act. All systems of records maintained by the Defense Contract Audit Agency shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C.
552a(d) pursuant to 5 USC 552a(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 11652, "Classification and Declassification of National Security Information and Material," dated March 8, 1972 (37 FR 10053, May 19, 1972) and which is required by the Executive Order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions may contain isolated information which has been properly classified.
[40 FR 55536, Nov. 28, 1975, as amended at 42
FR 35137, July 8, 1977]
§ 317.10 Systems of records.
(a)(1) Each DCAA element shall maintain in its records systems only such personal information as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose or mission required by statute or Executive Order of the President.
(2) Each element shall identify the specific provision of law, or Executive Order, which provides authority for the maintenance of information in each system of records.
(3) Statutory or regulatory authority to establish and maintain a system of records does not convey unlimited authority to collect and maintain all information which may be useful or convenient to have. The contributor of each system of records will evaluate each category of information in a system for both necessity and relevance. In performing this evaluation the following points will be considered:
(i) Relationship of each item of information to the statutory or regulatory purpose for which the system is maintained.
(ii) Specific adverse consequences of not collecting each category of information.
(iii) Possibility of meeting the information requirement through use of information not individually identifiable or through sampling techniques.
(iv) Length of time that the information is needed and, where appropriate, techniques for purging parts of the record.
(v) Financial cost of information maintenance compared to risk or adverse consequence of not maintaining it.
(vi) Necessity and relevance of this information to all individuals included in the system.
(4) Collection will be discontinued for each category or item of information which after the above evaluation does not appear to be reasonably justifiable.
Moreover, such information will be withdrawn and destroyed provided it can be economically segregated from necessary and relevant information.
(5) The evaluation described above will be performed by each proponent of a system of records:
(i) During the design phase of a new system of records or a change in an existing system of records.
(ii) Annually, prior to republication of all system notices in the Federal Register.
(b)(1) The Privacy Act requires that a notice of the existence of each system of records, as defined in § 317.5, be published in the Federal Register. Initial system notices will be submitted to the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) (OASD(C)) by the Records Administrator.
(2) Notices for new systems must be published in the Federal Register for public comment at least 30 days before the system may be legally implemented.
The proposed notices shall be submitted to the Records Administrator at least 90 days before the proposed implementing date. The Records Administrator shall submit the proposed system notices to OASD(C) 60 days before the proposed implementing date.
(3)(i) The following proposed changes to an existing system must be published in the Federal Register for public comment at least 30 days before the changes are implemented:
(A) Those which expand the categories of individuals on whom records are maintained.
(B) Those which add new categories or records to the system.
(C) Those which add new categories to the sources.
(D) Those which change routine uses which involve disclosure to a new category of recipient.
(E) Changes in procedures governing access.
(ii) Notices of proposed changes to existing systems will be submitted to the Records Administrator 90 days before implementation.
(4) Changes in records systems not stated in paragraphs (b)(3)(i) of this section, do not require advance publication, but must be submitted for inclusion in the annual consolidated listing of records systems. Accordingly, each DCAA element shall establish procedures to ensure that all such changes are forwarded to the Records Administrator by May 1 of each year for submission to the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) by May 31 for annual publication in the Federal Register.
(5) Concurrently with paragraphs (b)(3) and (4) of this section, the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) shall provide the Office of Management and Budget and the Privacy Protection Study Commission advance notice of proposals to establish new systems or to change routine uses of existing system.
(6) The Records Administrator shall ensure that information contained in each system notice as published in the Federal Register, is incorporated in DCAA Manual 5015.1, Files Maintenance and Disposition. DCAA elements shall take immediate action to either publish a system notice, or discontinue any system of records not contained in the Files Maintenance and Disposition Manual.
(3)(1) Records used by DCAA elements in making determinations about an individual will be maintained with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to ensure fairness to the individual in any determination.
(2) Prior to disseminating any record about an individual to any person other than a Federal agency, unless the dissemination is made pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, reasonable efforts will be made to ensure that such records are accurate, complete, timely, and relevant for agency purposes.
(d) Maintenance of a system of records describing how individuals exercise rights guaranteed by the First Amendment is prohibited unless expressly authorized by Federal statute or by the individual concerned, unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity. The exercise of these rights includes, but is not limited to, religious and political beliefs, freedom of speech and the press, and the right of assembly and to petition.
(e) The head of each DCAA element shall assure that persons, including Government contractors or their employees, involved in the design, development, operation, maintenance, or control of any system of records, as defined in § 317.5, are informed of all requirements to protect the privacy of the individuals who are subjects of the records. The following sanctions should be emphasized to personnel:
(1) There are criminal penalties for knowingly and willfully disclosing a record about an individual without the written consent or the written request of that individual, or unless disclosure is for one of the reasons listed in § 317.7.
(2) The agency may be subject to civil suit for failure to comply with the Privacy Act of 1974.
(f)(1) Each DCAA element shall establish administrative and physical safeguards to protect each system of records from unauthorized or unintentional access, disclosure, modification, or destruction. These safeguards shall apply to systems of records, in whatever medium in which personal information is processed or stored. Such safeguards shall be tailored to the requirements of each system of records.
(2) Access to personal information shall be restricted to those persons whose official duties require access and the individual concerned and in accordance with § 317.7.
(3) Each DCAA element shall ensure that all persons whose official duties require access to or processing and maintenance of personal information are trained in the proper safeguarding and use of such information.
(4) Personal records and documents shall be stored so as to reasonably preclude unauthorized disclosure.
(5) Disposal of records containing personal information which are no longer required will be accomplished in such a manner that will prevent the contents from being disclosed, e.g., tearing the record into pieces to prevent reconstruction, burning, or in the case of magnetic tapes, by degaussing.
§ 317.11 Annual report.
(a) Each DCAA Region shall prepare an annual report for the preceding calendar year on its implementation of the Privacy Act.
(b) Seven copies of the report shall be furnished to the Records Administrator by March 15 of each year for transmittal in six copies to the OASD(C) by March 31 of each year.
(c) The annual report shall contain the following:
(1) A brief management summary of the status of actions taken to comply with the act, the results of these efforts, any problems encountered and recommendations for any changes in legislation, policies, or procedures.
(2) A summary of major accomplishments, i.e., improvements in information practices and safeguards.
(3) A summary of major plans for activities in the upcoming year, e.g., area of emphasis, additional securing of facilities.
(4) A list of systems which are exempted during the year from any of the operative provisions of this law permitted under the terms of subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act of 1974, whether or not the exemption was obtained during the year, the number of records in each system exempted from each specific provision and reasons for invoking the exemption.
(5) A brief summary of changes to the total inventory of personal data systems subject to the provisions of the act, including reasons for major changes, e.g., the extent to which review of the relevance of and necessity for records has resulted in elimination of all or portions of systems of records or any reduction in the number of individuals on whom records are maintained.
(6) A general description of operational experiences including estimates of the number of individuals in relation to the total number of records in the system requesting information on the existence of records pertaining to them, refusing to provide information, requesting access to their records, appealing initial refusals to amend records, and seeking redress through the courts.
(7) Any available data, or estimates, of the cost of administering the Privacy Act of 1974.
PART 318—DEFENSE NUCLEAR AGENCY PRIVACY PROGRAM

Sec. 318.1 Purpose.
318.2 Applicability.
318.3 Designations.
318.4 Responsibilities.
318.5 Exemptions.

§ 318.1 Purpose.
This rule implements the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended, and adopts the policies and procedures as set forth by the Department of Defense Privacy Program, 32 CFR part 310.

§ 318.2 Applicability.
The provisions of this rule apply to Headquarters, Defense Nuclear Agency (HQDNA), Field Command, Defense Nuclear Agency (FCDNA), and the Armed Forces Radiobiology Research Institute (AFMRI).

§ 318.3 Designations.
The General Counsel, HQDNA, is designated as the agency Privacy Act Officer. The Privacy Act Officer is the principal point of contact for privacy matters and is the agency Initial Denial Authority. The Director, DNA, is the agency Appellate Authority.

§ 318.4 Responsibilities.
(a) The Director, DNA is responsible for implementing the agency Privacy Program in accordance with the specific requirements of 32 CFR part 310.
(b) The Privacy Act Officer is responsible for monitoring and ensuring agency compliance with the DoD Privacy Program in accordance with 32 CFR part 310.
(c) Agency component and element responsibilities are set forth in DNA Instruction 5400.11A, 1 March 1986.

§ 318.5 Exemptions.
(a) HDNA 007 Security Operations; (1) Specific Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), (I), and (f).
(2) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

1 Copies may be obtained, if needed, from: HQ, Defense Nuclear Agency, Office of General Counsel, Washington, DC 20305–1000.

(3) Reason. To protect the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that identity of the source would be held in confidence.
(b) In accordance with 32 CFR 310.50(c), the blanket exemption for classified material is applicable to any agency system of records.

PART 319—PRIVACY ACT OF 1974

Sec. 319.1 Authority.
319.2 Purpose.
319.3 Scope.
319.4 Definitions.
319.5 Procedures for requests pertaining to individual records in a record system.
319.6 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.
319.7 Special procedures: Medical records.
319.8 Request for correction of amendment to record.
319.9 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record.
319.10 Appeal of initial adverse Agency determination for access, correction or amendment.
319.11 Fees.
319.12 General exemptions. [Reserved]
319.13 Specific exemptions.

§ 319.1 Authority.
Pursuant to the requirements of section 553 of Title 5 of the United States Code, the Defense Intelligence Agency promulgates its rules for the implementation of the Privacy Act of 1974, Pub. L. 93–579, 5 U.S.C. 552a(f) and (k).

§ 319.2 Purpose.
(a) To promulgate rules providing procedures by which individuals may exercise their rights granted by the act to: (1) Determine whether a Defense Intelligence Agency system of records contains a record pertaining to themselves; (2) be granted access to all or portions thereof; (3) request administrative correction or amendment of such records; (4) receive an accounting of disclosures from such records; and (5) appeal any adverse determination for access or correction/amendment of records.
(b) To set forth Agency policy and fee schedule for cost of duplication.
(c) To identify records subject to the provisions of these rules.
(d) To specify those systems of records for which the Director, Defense Intelligence Agency, claims an exemption.

§ 319.3 Scope.
(a) Any individual who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the United States may submit an inquiry to the Defense Intelligence Agency.
(b) These rules apply to those systems of records: (1) Maintained by the Defense Intelligence Agency; (2) for which the Defense Intelligence Agency prescribes the content and disposition pursuant to statute or executive order of the President, which may be in the physical custody of another Federal agency; (3) not exempted from certain provisions of the act by the Director, Defense Intelligence Agency.
(c) The Defense Intelligence Agency may have physical custody of the official records of another Federal agency which exercises dominion and control over the records, their content, and access thereto. In such cases, the Defense Intelligence Agency maintenance of the records is considered subject to the rules of the other Federal agency. Except for a request for a determination of the existence of the record, when the Defense Intelligence Agency receives requests related to these records, the DIA will immediately refer the request to the controlling agency for all decisions regarding the request and will notify the individual making the request of the referral.
(d) Records subject to provisions of the Act which are transferred to the Washington National Records Center for storage shall be considered to be maintained by the Defense Intelligence Agency. Disclosure from such records—to other than an element of the Defense Intelligence Agency—can only be made with the prior approval of the Defense Intelligence Agency.
(e) Records subject to provisions of the Act which are transferred to the National Archives shall be considered to be maintained by the National Archives and are no longer records of the Agency.

§ 319.4 Definitions.
(a) All terms used in this part which are defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a shall have the same meaning herein.
(b) As used in this part:
(2) The term “Agency” means the Defense Intelligence Agency.
§ 319.5 Procedures for requests pertaining to individual records in a record system.

(a) An individual seeking notification of whether a system of records, maintained by the Defense Intelligence Agency, contains a record pertaining to himself/herself and who desires to review, have copies made of such records, or to be provided an accounting of disclosures from such records, shall submit his or her request in writing. Requests are encouraged to review the systems of records notices published by the Agency so as to specifically identify the particular record system(s) of interest to be accessed.

(b) In addition to meeting the requirements set forth in this § 319.5, the individual seeking notification, review, or copies of disclosures will provide in writing his or her full name, address, social security account number or date of birth and a telephone number where the requester can be contacted should questions arise concerning his or her request. This information will be used only for the purpose of identifying relevant records in response to an individual's inquiry. It is further recommended that individuals indicate any present or past relationship or affiliations, if any, with the Agency and the appropriate dates in order to facilitate a more thorough search of the record system specified and any other system which may contain information concerning the individual. A signed-notarized statement may also be required.

(c) An individual who wishes to be accompanied by another individual when viewing his or her records, must provide the Agency with written consent authorizing the Agency to disclose or discuss such records in the presence of the accompanying individual.

(d) A request for medical records must be submitted as set forth in § 319.7.

(e) Individuals should mail their written request to: Defense Intelligence Agency, DSP-1A, Washington, DC 20340-3290 and indicate clearly on the outer envelope "Privacy Act Request."

(f) An individual who makes a request on behalf of a minor or legal incompetent shall provide a signed notarized statement affirming the relationship.

(g) When an individual wishes to authorize another person access to his or her records, the individual shall provide a signed notarized statement authorizing and consenting to access by the designated person.

(h) Except as provided by section 552a(b) of the act, 5 U.S.C. 552a(b), the written request or prior written consent of the individual to whom a record pertains shall be required before such record is disclosed to any person or to another agency outside the Department of Defense.

(i) Any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from this Agency under false pretenses shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

§ 319.6 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.

The Defense Intelligence Agency, upon receiving a request for notification of the existence of a record or for access to a record, shall: (a) Determine whether such record exists; (b) determine whether access is available under the Privacy Act; (c) notify the requester of those determinations within 10 days (excluding Saturday, Sunday and legal holidays) and; (d) provide access to information pertaining to that person which has been determined to be available.

§ 319.7 Special procedures: Medical records.

Medical records, requested pursuant to § 319.5, will be disclosed to the requester unless the disclosure of such records directly to the requester could, in the judgment of a physician, have an adverse effect on the physical or mental health or safety and welfare of the requester or other persons with whom he may have contact. In such an instance, the information will be transmitted to a physician named by the requester or to a person qualified to make a psychiatric or medical determination.

§ 319.8 Request for correction or amendment to record.

(a) An individual may request that the Defense Intelligence Agency correct, amend, or expunge any record, or portions thereof, pertaining to the requester that he believes to be inaccurate, irrelevant, untimely, or incomplete.

(b) Such requests shall be in writing and may be mailed to DSP-1A as indicated in § 319.5.

(c) The requester shall provide sufficient information to identify the record and furnish material to substantiate the reasons for requesting corrections, amendments or expurgation.

§ 319.9 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record.

(a) The Agency will acknowledge a request for correction or amendment of a record within 10 days (excluding Saturday, Sunday, and legal public holidays) of receipt. The acknowledgment will be in writing and will indicate the date by which the Agency expects to make its initial determination.

(b) The Agency shall complete its consideration of requests to correct or amend records within 30 days (excluding Saturday, Sunday, and legal public holidays) and inform the requester of its initial determination.

(c) If it is determined that records should be corrected or amended in whole or in part, the Agency shall advise the requester in writing of its determination; and correct or amend the records accordingly. The Agency shall then advise prior recipients of the records of the fact that a correction or amendment was made and provide the substance of the change.

(d) If the Agency determines that a record should not be corrected or amended, in whole or in part, as requested by the individual, the Agency shall advise the requester in writing of its refusal to correct or amend the records and the reasons therefor. The notification will inform the requester that the refusal may be appealed administratively and will advise the individual of the procedures for such appeals.

§ 319.10 Appeal of initial adverse Agency determination for access, correction, or amendment.

(a) An individual who disagrees with the denial or partial denial of his or her request for access, correction, or amendment of Agency records pertaining to himself/herself, may file a request for administrative review of such refusal within 30 days after the date of notification of the denial or partial denial.

(b) Such requests should be in writing and may be mailed to RTS-1 as indicated in § 319.5.

(c) The requester shall provide a brief written statement setting forth the reasons for his or her disagreement with the initial determination and provide such additional supporting material as the individual feels necessary to justify his or her appeal.

(d) Within 30 days (excluding Saturday, Sunday, and legal public holidays) of the receipt of request for review, the Agency shall advise the individual of the final disposition of his or her request.

(e) In those cases where the initial determination is reversed, the individual will be so informed and the Agency will take appropriate action.

(f) In those cases where the initial determinations are sustained, the individual shall be advised:

(1) In the case of a request for access to a record, of the individual’s right to seek judicial review of the Agency refusal for access.

(2) In the case of a request to correct or amend the record: (i) Of the individual’s right to file with record in question a concise statement of his or her reasons for disagreeing with the Agency’s decision, (ii) of the procedures for filing a statement of disagreement, and (iii) of the individual’s right to seek judicial review of the Agency’s refusal to correct or amend a record.

§ 319.11 Fees.

(a) The schedule of fees chargeable is contained at §286.80 et seq. As a component of the Department of Defense, the applicable published Departmental rules and schedules with respect to fees will also be the policy of DIA.

(b) Current employees of the Agency will not be charged for the first copy of a record provided by the Agency.

(c) In the absence of an agreement to pay required anticipated costs, the time for responding to a request begins on resolution of this agreement to pay.

(d) The fees may be paid by check, draft or postal money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States. Remittance will be forwarded to the office designated in §319.5(e).

§ 319.12 General exemptions (Reserved).

§ 319.13 Specific exemptions.

(a) All systems of records maintained by the Director, Defense Intelligence Agency shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not specifically designated for exemption may contain isolated information which has been properly classified.

(b) The Director, Defense Intelligence Agency, designated the systems of records listed below for exemptions under the specified provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, as amended (Pub. L. 93-579):

(c) System identification and name: LDIA 0271, Investigations and Complaints.

(1) Exemption: Any portion of this record system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

(3) Reason: The reasons for asserting these exemptions are to ensure the integrity of the adjudication process used by the Agency to determine the suitability, eligibility or qualification for Federal service with the Agency and to make determinations concerning the questions of access to classified materials and activities. The proper execution of this function requires that the Agency have the ability to obtain candid and necessary information in order to fully develop or resolve pertinent information developed in the process. Potential sources, out of fear or retaliation, exposure or other action, may be unwilling to provide needed information or may not be sufficiently frank to be a value in personnel screening, thereby seriously interfering with the proper conduct and adjudication of such matters.

(f) System identification and name: LDIA 0800, Operation Record System.

(1) Exemption: Any portion of this record system which falls within the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5) may be exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

(2) Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

(3) Reason: The reasons for asserting these exemptions are to ensure the integrity of ongoing foreign intelligence collection and/or training activities conducted by the Defense Intelligence Agency and the Department of Defense. The execution of these functions requires that information in response to national level intelligence requirements be provided in a free and open manner without fear of retribution or unauthorized disclosure. Disclosures from this system can jeopardize sensitive sources and methodology.

Sec. 320.5 Request for correction or amendment to record.

320.6 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record. Appeals of initial adverse agency determination on correction or amendment.

320.8 Disclosure of record to person other than the individual to whom it pertains. Fees. Penalties. Specific exemptions.

Source: 40 FR 55543, Nov. 28, 1975, unless otherwise noted. Redesignated from 28 FR 8074, Feb. 20, 1992.

§ 320.1 Purpose and scope.

(a) This regulation is published pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974, Pub. L. 93-579, 88 Stat. 1986, 5 U.S.C. 552a (hereinafter the “Privacy Act”). This regulation:

(1) Establishes or advises of procedures whereby an individual can request notification of whether the Defense Mapping Agency (DMA) maintains or has disclosed a record pertaining to him in any nonexempt system of records. (ii) request a copy or other access to such a record or to an accounting of its disclosure. (iii) request that the record be amended and (iv) appeal any initial adverse determination of any such request;

(2) Specifies those systems of records in which the Director, Headquarters DMA has determined to be exempt from the procedures established by this regulation and from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. DMA policy encompasses the safeguarding of individual privacy from any misuse of DMA records and the provision of the fullest access practicable to individuals to DMA records concerning them.

§ 320.2 Definitions.

As used in this part:

“Individual” means a natural person who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence. A legal guardian or the parent of a minor have the same rights as the individual and may act on behalf of the individual.

“Maintain” means to collect, use or disseminate records on individuals.

“Record” means any item, collection or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by the DMA or a Component thereof, including, but not limited to, his education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains his name or the identifying number, symbol or other identifying particulars assigned to the individual such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

“System of records” means a group of any records under the control of the DMA or a Component thereof from which information is retrieved by the name of an individual or by some identifying number or symbol or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. “Routine use” means (with respect to the disclosure of a record), the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected. Routine use encompasses not only common or ordinary uses but also all the proper and necessary uses of the record even if such use occurs infrequently.

§ 320.3 Procedures for requests for information pertaining to individual records in a record system.

(a) Upon request in person or by mail any individual, as defined in § 320.2, shall be informed whether or not any DMA system of records contains a record pertaining to him.

(b) Any individual requesting such information in person may present himself at HQ DMA or at the principal office of the DMA Component (please refer to the DMA address list at § 320.3(e) thought to maintain the record in question and shall provide:

(1) Information sufficient to identify the record, e.g., the individual's own name, date of birth, place of birth, and, if possible, an indication of the type of record believed to contain information concerning the individual, and

(2) Acceptable identification to verify the individual's identity, e.g., driver's license, employee identification card or medicare card.

(c) Any individual requesting such information by mail shall address his request to the Director, Defense Mapping Agency, or to the Director of the DMA Component (refer to § 320.3(e) for address list) thought to maintain the record in question and shall include in such request the following:

(1) Information sufficient to identify the record, e.g., the individual’s own name, date of birth, place of birth, and, if possible, an indication of the type of record believed to contain information concerning the individual, and;

(2) A signed, notarized statement to verify his identity, if, in the opinion of the DMA custodian of the record, the sensitivity of the material involved warrants.

(d) DMA Procedures on Requests for Information. Upon receipt of a request for information made in accordance with these regulations, notice of the existence or nonexistence of any records described in such requests will be furnished to the requesting party within ten working days of receipt.

(e) DMA Headquarters and Component address list:

(2) Director, DMA Aerospace Center, St. Louis Air Force Station, Missouri 63118.

(3) Director, DMA Hydrographic Center, Washington, DC 20390.

(4) Director, DMA Topographic Center, 6500 Brooks Lane, NW, Washington, DC 20315.

(5) Director, Defense Mapping School, Fort Belvoir, Virginia 22060.

(6) Director, Inter American Geodetic Survey, APO New York 09827.

§ 320.4 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.

(a) Upon request by an individual made in accordance with the procedures set forth in this section, such individual shall be granted access to any record pertaining to him which is contained in a nonexempt DMA system of records. However, nothing in this section shall allow an individual access to any information compiled by DMA in reasonable anticipation of a civil or criminal action or proceeding.

(b) Procedures for requests for access to records. Any individual may request access to a DMA record pertaining to him in person or by mail.

(1) Any individual making such request in person shall present himself at Headquarters Defense Mapping Agency, or at the principal office of the DMA Component (refer to § 320.3(e) for address list) thought to maintain such record and shall provide identification to verify the individuals' identity, e.g., driver's license, employee identification card, or medicare card.

(2) Any individual making a request for access to records by mail shall address such request to the Director, Defense Mapping Agency, or the Director of the DMA Component (refer to § 320.3(e) for address list) thought to maintain the record in question, and shall include therein a signed, notarized statement to verify his identity.

(3) Any individual requesting access to records under this section in person may be accompanied by a person of his own choosing while reviewing the record requested. If an individual elects to be so accompanied he shall give notice of such election in his request and shall provide a written statement authorizing disclosure of the record in the presence of the accompanying person. Failure to so notify DMA in a request for access shall be deemed to be a decision by the individual not to be accompanied.

(c) DMA determination of requests for access. (1) Upon receipt of a request made in accordance with this section, the Staff Director of the Headquarters or Component Staff Element having responsibility for maintenance of the record in question for amendment of a record. Such requests shall specify the particular portions of the record to be amended, the desired amendments and the reasons, supported by documentary proof, if available, therefor.

(2) The Staff Director shall decide whether the request shall be granted.

(i) Make such determination and provide notification within 30 working days after receipt of such request.

(ii) Notify the individual that fees for reproducing copies of records will be assessed and should be remitted before the copies may be delivered. Fee schedule and rules for assessing fees are contained in § 320.9.

(iii) Requests for access to personal records may be denied only after consultation with Counsel of a DMA Component, when available, or the Counsel, Headquarters DMA, in all other cases, to determine that such denial is authorized by the Act.

(3) If access to a record is denied because such information has been compiled by DMA in reasonable anticipation of a civil or criminal action or proceeding, the individual will be notified of such determination and his right to judicial appeal under 5 U.S.C. 552a(g).

(d) Manner of providing access. (1) If access is granted, the individual making the request shall notify the DMA whether the records requested are to be copied and mailed to him.

(2) If the records are to be made available for personal inspection the individual shall arrange for a mutually agreeable time and place for inspection of the record. The DMA reserves the right to require the presence of a DMA officer or employee during personal inspection of any record pursuant to this section and to request of the individual that he provide a signed acknowledgment of the fact that access to the record in question was granted him by the DMA.

§ 320.5 Request for correction or amendment to record.

(a) Any individual may request amendment of a record pertaining to him in accordance with the following procedure.

(b) After inspection of a record pertaining to him an individual may file a request in writing with the Staff Director of the DMA Headquarters or Component Staff Element having responsibility for maintenance of the record in question for amendment of a record. Such requests shall specify the particular portions of the record to be amended, the desired amendments and the reasons, supported by documentary proof, if available, therefor.

§ 320.6 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record.

(a) Not later than 10 working days after receipt of a request to amend a record, in whole or in part, the Staff Director of the DMA Headquarters or Component Staff Element having responsibility for maintenance of the record in question shall make any correction of any portion of the record which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely or complete and thereafter inform the individual of such correction; or inform the individual by certified mail, return receipt requested, of refusal to amend the record setting forth the reasons therefor and notifying the individual of his right to appeal the decision to the Director, Defense Mapping Agency in accordance with § 320.7.

(b) Requests for amendment of a record may be refused only after consultation with Counsel at a DMA Component, when available, or the Counsel, HQ DMA, in all other cases, to determine that such refusal is authorized by the Act.

(c) Any person or other agency to whom the record has been previously disclosed shall be informed of any correction or notation of dispute with respect to such records.

(d) These provisions for amending records are not intended to permit the alteration of evidence previously presented during any administrative or quasi-judicial proceeding, such as an employee grievance case. Any changes in such records should be made only through the established procedures for such cases. Further, these provisions are not designed to permit collateral attack upon what has already been the subject of an administrative or quasi-judicial action. For example, an individual may not use this procedure to challenge the final decision on a grievance, but the individual would be able to challenge the fact that such action has been incorrectly recorded in his file.

§ 320.7 Appeal of initial adverse agency determination on correction or amendment.

(a) An individual whose request for amendment of a record pertaining to him may further request a review of such determination in accordance with this section.

(b) Not later than 30 working days following receipt of notification of refusal to amend, an individual may file an appeal of such decision with the Director, Defense Mapping Agency. The appeal shall be in writing, mailed or delivered to Headquarters, Defense Mapping Agency, Building 56, U.S. Naval Observatory, Washington, DC 20305. The appeal shall identify the records involved, shall indicate the dates of the request and adverse determination and shall indicate the express basis for that determination. In addition, the letter of appeal shall state briefly and succinctly the reasons why the adverse determination should be reversed.

(c) Upon appeal from a denial to amend a record the Director, Defense Mapping Agency shall make a determination whether or not to amend the record and shall notify the individual of that determination by certified mail, return receipt requested, not later than 10 working days after receipt of such appeal, unless extended pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section.

(1) The Director shall also notify the individual of the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1A) regarding judicial review of his determination.

(2) If on appeal the refusal to amend the record is upheld, the individual shall be permitted to file a statement setting forth the reasons for his disagreement with the Director's determination and such statement shall be appended to the record in question.

(d) The Director may extend up to 30 days the time period prescribed above within which to make a determination on an appeal from refusal to amend a record for the reason that a fair and equitable review cannot be completed within the prescribed time period.

§ 320.8 Disclosure of record to person other than the individual to whom it pertains.

(a) Subject to the conditions hereinafter set forth, no officer or employee of the DMA will disclose any record which is contained in a system of records, by any means of communication to any person or other agency who is not an individual to whom the record pertains.

(b) Any such record may be disclosed to any person or other agency only upon written request or with prior written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains.

(c) In the absence of a written consent from the individual to whom the record pertains, such record may be disclosed only provided such disclosure is:
(1) To those officers and employees of the DoD who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties.
(2) Required under the Freedom of Information Act.
(3) For a routine use as defined in § 200.2 of this chapter.
(4) To the Bureau of Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity under the provisions of Title 13 of the U.S. Code.
(5) To a recipient who has provided the DMA with adequate advance written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record and the record is transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable and will not be used to make any decisions about the rights, benefits or entitlements of an individual.
(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the U.S. Government or for evaluation by the Administrator of the General Services Administration or his designee to determine whether the record has such value.
(7) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the U.S. for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity authorized by law, provided the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a prior written request to the Director, Defense Mapping Agency specifying the particular record and the law enforcement activity for which it is sought.
(8) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual, if upon such disclosure notification is transmitted to the last known address of such individual.
(9) To either house of Congress, and, to the extent of the matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee or joint committee of Congress.
(10) To the Comptroller General or any of his authorized representatives in the course of the performance of the duties of the GAO.
(11) Under an order of a court of competent jurisdiction.
(4) Except for disclosures made pursuant to paragraphs (c)(1) and (2) of this section, an accurate accounting will be kept of the data, nature and purpose of each disclosure of a record to any person or agency, and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure was made. The accounting of disclosures will be made available for review by the subject of a record at his request except for disclosures made pursuant to paragraph (c)(7) of this section. If an accounting of disclosure has been made, any person or agency contained therein will be informed of any correction or notation of dispute made pursuant to § 320.6.
§ 320.9 Fees.
(a) The following services are available with respect to requests made under the provisions of this part for which fees will be charged as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section:
(1) Copying of records/documents.
(2) Certification of copies of records/documents.
(b) The fees set forth below provide for documents to be mailed with ordinary first-class postage prepaid. If a copy is to be transmitted, at the individual's request, registered, certified, air mail, or every mail, postage therefor will be added to the basic fee. Also, if special handling or packaging is required, costs thereof will be added to the basic fee.

(2) Rules relating to charging fees:
(i) Fees may be charged to an individual only for the making of copies when requested by the individual. When copies are made by the DMA as a necessary incident to granting access to a record, a fee may not be charged.
(ii) The individual may not be charged for time spent in searching for requested records or for time spent in reviewing records to determine if they fall within the disclosure requirements of the Act.
(iii) The fee charged may not exceed the direct cost of making the copy.
(3) Certification and validation with the DMA seal of documents will be available at $2.00 for each certification.
(4) Fees charged for the above services are payable in advance by check, or money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States.
§ 320.10 Penalties.
The Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3)) makes it a misdemeanor subject to a maximum fine of $5,000, to knowingly and willfully request or obtain any record concerning an individual under false pretenses. The Act also establishes similar penalties for violations by DMA employees of the Act or regulations established thereunder.
§ 320.11 Specific exemptions.
(a) The Director of the Defense Mapping Agency proposes to designate the systems of records described in paragraphs (b) through (d) of this section for exemptions under the specified provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974.
(b) ID—Manual.
SYSTYPE—504-01 Personnel Security Files.
EXEMPTION—Parts of this system of records are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5, U.S. Code, section 552a:
(d), (e) (1), (e) (4) (G), (e) (4) (H), (e) (4) (I) and (f).
AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).
REASONS—This system of records is maintained solely for the purpose of determining an individual's qualifications, eligibility or suitability for access to classified information. Portions of it are considered relevant and necessary to making judicial determinations as to such qualifications, eligibility or suitability and could only be obtained by providing assurances to the source that his or her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record. Disclosure of all or part of the record with the identity of the source removed would likely reveal the identity of the source, e.g., the record could contain... information which could only have been furnished by one of several individuals known to the subject.

(d) ID—Manual.

SYSNAME—504-02 Special Security Briefing and Debriefing Files.

EXEMPTION—Parts of this system of records are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5, U.S. Code, section 552a: (d), (e) (1), (e) (4) (G), (e) (4) (H), (e) (4) (I) and (f).

AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

REASONS—This system of records is maintained solely for the purpose of determining an individual's qualifications, eligibility or suitability for access to classified information. Portions of it are considered relevant and necessary to making judicious determinations as to such qualifications, eligibility or suitability and could only be obtained by providing assurances to the source that his or her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record. Disclosure of all or part of the record with the identity of the sources removed would likely reveal the identity of the source, e.g., the record could contain information which could only have been furnished by one of several individuals known to the subject.

(e) In addition, all systems of records maintained by the DMA shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that such systems contain any information properly classified under Executive Order 11652, 3 CFR part 339, and which is required by the said Executive Order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein may contain isolated items of information which have been properly classified.

§ 321.1 Purpose and applicability.

(a) This part establishes rules, policies and procedures for the disclosure of personal records in the custody of the Defense Investigative Service (DIS) to the individual subjects, the handling of requests for amendment or correction of such records, appeal and review of DIS decisions on these matters, and the application of general and specific exemptions, under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974. It also prescribes other policies and procedures to effect compliance with the Privacy Act of 1974 and DIS Directive 5400.11.

(b) The procedures set forth in this part do not apply to DIS personnel seeking access to records pertaining to themselves which previously have been available. DIS personnel will continue to be granted ready access to their personnel, security, and other records by making arrangements directly with the maintaining office. DIS personnel should contact the Office of Information and Legal Affairs for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves or any assistance in obtaining access to other records pertaining to themselves, and may follow the procedures outlined in these rules in any case.

§ 321.3 Definitions.

(a) All terms used in this part which are defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a shall have the same meaning herein.

(b) As used in this part, the term "agency" means the Defense Investigative Service.

Appendix A—Definitions

[46 FR 35640, July 10, 1981]
(c) Categories of Individuals in DIS Record Systems. (1) If an individual has ever been investigated by DIS, the investigative case file should be a record in system DIS 5-01. An index to such files should be in DIS 5-02.
(2) If an individual has ever made a formal request to DIS under the Freedom of Information Act or the Privacy Act of 1974, a record pertaining to that request under the name of the requester, or subject matter, will be in system DIS 1-01.
(3) If an individual is or has ever been a member of DIS, i.e., a civilian employee or appointee, or a military assignee, then he may be a subject of any of the 22 record systems depending on his activities, with the following exceptions:
(i) Civilian personnel will not be subjects of DIS 4-05.
(ii) Military personnel will not be subjects of systems DIS 4-06, 07, 08, or 09.
(4) Individuals who have been applicants for employment with DIS, or nominees for assignment to DIS, but who have not completed their DIS affiliation, may be subjects in systems DIS 4-02, 4-04, 5-01, 5-02, or 6-01.
(5) Any individual who is a subject, victim or cross-referenced personally in an investigation by an investigative element of any DoD component, may be referenced in the Defense Central Index of Investigations, system DIS 5-02, in an index to the location, file number, and custodian of the case record.
(6) Individuals who have ever presented a complaint to or have been connected with a DIS Inspector General inquiry may be subjects of records in system DIS 2-01.
(7) If an individual has ever attended the Defense Industrial Security Institute, he should be subject of a record in DIS 7-01.
(8) If an individual has ever been a guest speaker or instructor at the Defense Industrial Security Institute, he should be subject of a record in DIS 7-02.
(9) If an individual is an employee or major stockholder of a government contractor or other DoD-affiliated company or agency and has been issued, now possesses or has been processed for a security clearance, he may be subject to a record in DIS 8-01.
(d) Procedures. The following procedures shall be followed to determine if an individual is a subject of records maintained by DIS, and to request notification and access.
(1) Individuals should submit inquiries in person or by mail to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20325. Inquiries by personal appearance should be made Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. The information requested in § 321.5 must be provided if records are to be accurately identified. Telephonic requests for records will not be honored. In a case where the system of records is not specified in the request, only systems that would reasonably contain records of the individual will be checked, as described in § 321.4b.
(2) Only the Director, the Chief, Office of Information and Legal Affairs, or the Director for Investigations may authorize exemptions to notification of individuals in accordance with § 321.14. [40 FR 55546, Nov. 28, 1975. Redesignated at 56 FR 55631, Oct. 29, 1991, and amended at 56 FR 57802, Nov. 14, 1991]
§ 321.5 Requirements for identification.
(a) General. Only upon proper identification, made in accordance with the provisions of this section, will any individual be granted notification concerning and access to all releasable records pertaining to him which are maintained in a DIS system.
(b) Identification. Identification information of individuals is required both for accurate record identification and to verify identity in order to avoid disclosing records to unauthorized persons. Individuals who request notification of, access to, or amendment of records pertaining to themselves, must provide their full name (and additional names such as aliases, maiden names, alternate spellings, etc., if a check of these variants is desired), date and place of birth, and social security account number (SSAN).
(1) Where reply by mail is requested, a mailing address is required, and a telephone number is recommended to expedite certain matters. For military requesters residing in the United States, home address or PO Box number is preferred in lieu of duty assignment address.
(2) Signatures must be notarized on requests received by mail. Exceptions may be made when the requester is well known to releasing officials. For requests made in person, a photo identification card, such as military ID, driver’s license or building pass, must be presented.
(3) While it is not required as a condition of receiving notification, in many cases the SSAN may be necessary to obtain an accurate search of DCII (DIS 5-02) records.
(c) A DIS Form 30 (Request for Notification of/Access to Personal Records) will be provided to any individual inquiring about records pertaining to himself whose mailed request was not notarized. This form is also available at the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, Washington, DC for those who make their requests in person.
[40 FR 55546, Nov. 28, 1975, as amended at 46 FR 35541, July 10, 1981]
§ 321.6 Access by subject individuals.
(a) General. (1) Individuals may request access to records pertaining to themselves in person or by mail in accordance with this section. However, nothing in this section shall allow an individual access to any information compiled or maintained by DIS in reasonable anticipation of a civil or criminal action or proceeding, or otherwise exempted under the provisions of § 321.14.
(2) A request for a pending personnel security investigation will be held in abeyance until completion of the investigation and the requester will be so notified.
(b) Manner of access. (1) Requests by mail or in person for access to DIS records should be made to the Offices specified in the record systems notices published in the Federal Register by the Department of Defense or to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, 1900 Half St. SW, Washington, DC 20324.
(2) Any individual who makes a request for access in person shall:
(i) Provide identification as specified in § 321.5.
(ii) Complete and sign a request form.
(3) Any individual making a request for access to records by mail shall include a signed and notarized statement to verify his identity, which may be the DIS request form if he has received one.
(4) Any individual requesting access to records in person may be accompanied by an identified person of his own choosing while reviewing the record. If the individual elects to be accompanied, he shall make this known in his written request, and include a statement authorizing disclosure of the record contents to the accompanying person. Without written authorization of the subject individual, records will not be disclosed to third parties accompanying the subject.
(5) Members of DIS field elements may be given access to records maintained by the field elements without referral to the Office of Information or the records system manager at headquarters. An account of such access will be kept for reporting purposes.

(6) In all requests for access, the requester must state whether he or she desires access in person or mailed copies of records. During personal access, where copies are made for retention, a fee for reproduction and postage may be assessed as provided in §321.12. Where copies are mailed because personal appearance is impractical, there will be no fee.

(7) All individuals who are not affiliates of DIS will be given access to records in the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, or by means of mailed copies.

§ 321.7 Medical records.

(a) General. Medical records that are part of DIS records systems will generally be included with those records when access is granted to the subject to which they pertain. However, if it is determined that such access could have an adverse effect upon the individual's physical or mental health, the medical record in question will be released only to a physician named by the requesting individual.

[40 FR 55546, Nov. 28, 1975, as amended at 46 FR 35641, July 10, 1981]

§ 321.8 Request for correction or amendment.

(a) General. Upon request and proper identification by any individual who has been granted access to DIS records pertaining to himself or herself, that individual may request, either in person or through the mail, that the record be amended. Such a request must be made in writing and addressed to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, 1900 Half St., SW, Washington, DC 20524.

(b) Content. The following information must be included to insure effective action on the request:

(1) Description of the record. Requesters should specify the number of pages and documents, the titles of the documents, form numbers if there are any, dates on the documents and names of individuals who signed them. Any reasonable description of the document is acceptable.

(2) Description of the items to be amended. The description of the passages, pages or documents to be amended should be as clear and specific as possible.

(i) Page, line and paragraph numbers should be cited where they exist.

(ii) A direct quotation of all or a portion of the passage may be made if it isn't otherwise easily identifiable. If the passage is long, a quotation of its beginning and end will suffice.

(iii) In appropriate cases, a simple substantive request may be appropriate, e.g., "delete all references to my alleged arrest in July 1970."

(iv) If the requester has received a copy of the record, he may submit an annotated copy of documents he wishes amended.

(3) Type of amendment. The requester must clearly state the type of amendment he is requesting.

(i) Deletion or expungement, i.e., a complete removal from the record of data, sentences, passages, paragraphs or documents.

(ii) Correction of the information in the record to make it more accurate, e.g., rectify mistakes, identities, dates, data pertaining to the individual, etc.

(iii) Additions to make the record more relevant, accurate or timely may be requested.

(iv) Other changes may be requested; they must be specifically and clearly described.

(4) Reason for amendment. Requests for amendment must be based on specific reasons, included in writing. Categories of reasons are as follows:

(i) Accuracy. Amendment may be requested where matters of fact are believed incorrectly recorded, e.g., dates, names, addresses, identification numbers, or any other information concerning the individual. The request, whenever possible, should contain the accurate information, copies of verifying documents, or indication of how the information can be verified.

(ii) Relevance. Amendment may be requested when information in a record is believed not to be relevant or necessary to the purposes of the record system. (See DOD Federal Register Descriptions.)

(iii) Timeliness. Amendment may be requested when information is thought to be so old as to no longer be pertinent to the stated purposes of the records system. It may also be requested when there is recent information of a pertinent type that is not included in the record.

(iv) Completeness. Amendment may be requested where information in a record is incomplete with respect to its purpose. The data thought to have been omitted should be included or identified with the request.

(v) Fairness. Amendment may be requested when a record is thought to be unfair concerning the subject, in terms of the stated purposes of the record. In such cases, a source of additional information to increase the fairness of the record should be identified where possible.

(vi) Other reasons. Reasons for requesting amendment are not limited to those cited above. The content of the records is authorized in terms of their stated purposes which should be the basis for evaluating them. However, any matter believed appropriate may be submitted as a basis of an amendment request.

(vii) Court orders and statutes may require amendment of a file. While they do not require a Privacy Act request for execution, such may be brought to the attention of DIS by these procedures.

(c) [Reserved]

(d) Assistance. Individuals seeking to request amendment of records pertaining to themselves that are maintained by DIS will be assisted as necessary by DIS officials. Where a request is incomplete, it will not be denied, but the requester will be contacted for the additional information necessary to his request.

(e) This section does not permit the alteration of evidence presented to courts, boards and other official proceedings.

[40 FR 55546, Nov. 28, 1975, as amended at 46 FR 35641, July 10, 1981]

§ 321.9 DIS review of request for amendment.

(a) General. Upon receipt from any individual of a request to amend a record pertaining to himself and maintained by the DIS, the Office of Information and Legal Affairs will handle the request as follows:

(1) A written acknowledgment of the receipt of a request for amendment of a record will be provided to the individual within 10 working days, unless final action regarding approval or denial can be accomplished within that time. In that case, the notification of approval or denial will constitute adequate acknowledgment.

(2) Where there is a determination to grant all or a portion of a request to amend a record, the record shall be promptly amended and the requesting individual notified. Individuals, agencies or components shown by accounting records to have received copies of the record, or to whom disclosure has been made, will be notified of the amendment by the responsible official. Where a DOD recipient of an investigative record cannot be located, the notification will be sent to the personnel security element of the parent Component.

(3) Where there is a determination to deny all or a portion of a request to amend a record, the office will promptly:
(i) Advise the requesting individual of the specifics of the refusal and the reasons;
(ii) Inform the individual that he may request a review of the denial(s) from "Director, Defense Investigative Service, 1900 Half Street, SW, Washington, DC 20324." The request should be brief, in writing, and enclose a copy of the denial correspondence.

(b) DIS Determination to Approve or Deny: Determination to approve or deny and request to amend a record or portion thereof may necessitate additional investigation or inquiry be made to verify assertions of individuals requesting amendment. Coordination will be made with the Director for Investigations and the Director of the Personnel Investigations Center in such instances.

[40 FR 55546, Nov. 28, 1975, as amended at 46 FR 35641, July 10, 1981]

§ 321.10 Appeal of initial amendment decision.

(a) General. Upon receipt from any individual of an appeal to review a DIS refusal to amend a record, the Office of Information and Legal Affairs will assure that such appeal is handled in compliance with the Privacy Act of 1974 and DOD Directive 5400.11 and accomplish the following:

(1) Review the record, request for amendment, DIS decision on the request and the denial, and direct such additional inquiry or investigation as is deemed necessary to make a fair and equitable determination.

(2) Recommend to the Director whether to approve or deny the appeal.

(3) If the determination is made to amend a record, advise the individual and previous recipients or an appropriate office where an accounting of disclosures has been made.

(4) Where the decision has been made to deny the individual’s appeal to amend a record, notify the individual:

(i) Of the denial and the reason;

(ii) Of his right to file a concise statement of reasons for disagreeing with the decision not to amend the record;

(iii) That such statement may be sent to the Office of Information and Legal Affairs, DIS (D0030), Washington, DC 20314, and that it will be disclosed to users of the disputed record;

(iv) That prior recipients of the disputed record will be provided a copy of the statement of disagreement, or if they cannot be reached (e.g., through deactivation) the personnel security element of their DOD component;

(v) And, that he may file a suit in a Federal District Court to contest DIS’s decision not to amend the disputed record.

(b) Time limit for review of appeal. If the review of an appeal of a refusal to amend a record cannot be accomplished within 30 days, the Office of Information and Legal Affairs will notify the individual and advise him of the reasons, and inform him of when he may expect the review to be completed.

40 FR 55546, Nov. 28, 1975, as amended at 46 FR 35641, July 10, 1981]

§ 321.11 Disclosure to other than subject.

(a) General. No record contained in a system of records maintained by DIS shall be disclosed by any means to any person or agency outside the Department of Defense, except with the written consent or request of the individual subject to the request, except as provided in this section. Disclosures that may be made without the request or consent of the subject of the record are as follows:

(1) To those officials and employees of the Department of Defense who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties, when the use is compatible with the stated purposes for which the record is maintained.

(2) Required to be disclosed by the Freedom of Information Act.

(3) For a routine use as described in DOD Directive 5400.11 and DOD publication in the Federal Register.

(4) To the Census Bureau, National Archives, the U.S. Congress, the Comptroller General or General Accounting Office under the conditions specified in DOD Directive 5400.11.

(5) At the written request of the head of an agency, or any other person, for law enforcement activity as authorized by DOD Directive 5400.11.

(6) For statistical purposes, in response to a court order, or for compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual as described in DOD Directive 5400.11.

(7) Legal guardians recognized by the Act.

(b) Accounting of disclosures. Except for disclosures made to members of the DOD in connection with their routine duties, and disclosures required by the Freedom of Information Act, an accounting will be kept of all disclosures of records maintained in DOD systems listed in § 321.4(b).

(1) Accounting entries will normally be kept on a DIS form, which will be maintained in the record file jacket, or in a document that is part of the record.

(2) Accounting entries will record the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure, and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made.

(3) An accounting of disclosures made to agencies outside the DOD in records in the Defense Central Index of Investigations (DIS 5-02) will be kept as prescribed by the Director of Systems; DIS.

(4) Accounting records will be maintained for at least 5 years after the last disclosure, or for the life of the record, whichever is longer.

(5) Subjects of DIS records will be given access to associated accounting records upon request, except as exempted under § 321.14.

§ 321.12 Fees.

Individuals may request copies for retention of any documents to which they are granted access in DIS records pertaining to them. Requesters will not be charged for the first copy of any records provided; however, duplicate copies will require a charge to cover costs of reproduction. Such charges will be computed in accordance with DoD Directive 5400.11.

46 FR 35641, July 10, 1981]

§ 321.13 Penalties.

(a) An individual may bring a civil action against the DIS to correct or amend the record, or where there is a refusal to comply with an individual request or failure to maintain any record with accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness, so as to guarantee fairness, or failure to comply with any other provision of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The court may order correction or amendment. It may assess against the United States reasonable attorney fees and other costs, or may enjoin the DIS from withholding the records and order the production to the complainant.

(b) Where it is determined that the action was willful or intentional with respect to 5 U.S.C. 552a(1) (C) or (D), the United States shall be liable for the actual damages sustained, but in no case less than the sum of $1,000 and the costs of the action with attorney fees.

(c) Criminal penalties may be imposed against an officer or employee of the DIS who fully discloses material, which he knows is prohibited from disclosure, or who willfully maintains a system of records without the notice requirements; or against any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from an agency under false pretenses. These offenses shall be misdemeanors with a fine not to exceed $5,000.
§ 321.14 Exemptions.

(a) General. The Director of the Defense Investigative Service establishes the following exemptions of records systems (or portions thereof) from the provisions of these rules, and other indicated portions of Pub. L. 93–579, in this section. They may be exercised only by the Director, DIS and the Chief of the Office of Information and Legal Affairs. Exemptions will be exercised only when necessary for a specific, significant and legitimate reason connected with the purpose of a records system, and not simply because they are authorized by statute. Personal records releasable under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 will not be withheld from subject individuals based on these exemptions.

(b) All systems of records maintained by DIS shall be exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under Executive Order 11652 and which is required by the Executive Order to be withheld in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption, which may be applicable to parts of all systems of records, is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein may contain items of information that have been properly classified.

(c) [Reserved]

(d) Investigative files—DIS 5–01.

(1) Exemption. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d);

(e) [Reserved]

(f) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(g) Reasons: This exemption will permit the DIS to conduct certain law enforcement investigations effectively, and without compromise, to delay law enforcement information without compromise, and to protect the identities of sources who would not otherwise provide information. Investigatory material, including certain reciprocal investigations and counterintelligence information, must be exempted until such time action is taken regarding the allegations, but after that time only to the extent that the information would identify a confidential source who furnished information under an express promise that the source’s identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise).

(h) Investigative files—DIS 5–01.

(1) Exemption. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d);

(e) [Reserved]

(f) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(3);

(g) Reasons: DIS investigatory material exempted under this authority is maintained in connection with assisting the U.S. Secret Service (USSS) to provide protective services to the President of the United States and other individuals pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056. This exemption provision will enable the DIS to continue its statutory support of this activity without compromising the contents of Secret Service intelligence files or DIS investigative activities.

(i) Investigative files—DIS 5–01.

(1) Exemption. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d) and (f);

(2) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5); (3) Reasons: Personnel security investigatory material is exempt to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information under an express promise that the source’s identity would be held in confidence (or prior to the effective date of the Act, under an implied promise). This exemption provision will allow the DIS to collect information necessary for personnel security investigations from certain sources who would otherwise be unwilling to provide it. This exemption will be applied only in those cases where it is clearly necessary to grant confidentiality for the performance of an authorized investigative function.

§ 321.15 DIS implementation policies.

(a) General. The implementation of the Privacy Act of 1974 within DIS is as prescribed by DOD Directive 5400.11. This section provides special rules and information that extend or amplify DOD policies with respect to matters of particular concern to the Defense Investigative Service.

(b) Privacy Act rules application. Any request which cites neither Act, concerning personal record information in a system or records, by the individual to whom such information pertains, for access, amendment, correction, accounting of disclosures, etc., will be governed by the Privacy Act of 1974, DoD Directive 5400.11 and these rules exclusively. Requests for information which cite only the Freedom of Information Act will be governed by the Freedom of Information Act DoD Regulation 5400.7R. Any denial or exemption of all or part of a record from notification, access, disclosure, amendment or other provision, will also be processed under these rules, unless court order or other competent authority directs otherwise.

(c) [Reserved]

(d) First amendment rights. No DIS official or element may maintain any information pertaining to the exercise by an individual of his rights under the First Amendment without the permission of that individual unless such collection is specifically authorized by statute or necessary to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(e) Standards of accuracy and validation of records. (1) All individuals or elements within DIS which create or maintain records pertaining to individuals will insure that they are reasonably accurate, relevant, timely and complete to serve the purpose for which they are maintained and to assure fairness to the individual to whom they pertain. Information that is not pertinent to a stated purpose of a system of records will not be maintained within those records. Officials compiling investigatory records will make every reasonable effort to assure that only reports that are impartial, clear, accurate, complete, fair and relevant with respect to the authorized purpose of such records are included, and that reports not meeting these standards or serving such purposes are not included in such records.

(2) Prior to dissemination to an individual or agency outside DOD of any record about an individual (except for a Freedom of Information Act action or access by a subject individual under these rules) the disclosing DIS official will by review, make a reasonable effort to assure that such record is accurate, complete, timely, fair and relevant to the purpose for which they are maintained.

(f) The defense central index of investigations (DCII). It is the policy of DIS, as custodian of the DOD component or element that has direct access to or contributes records to the DCII (DIS 5–02), is individually responsible for compliance with The Privacy Act of 1974 and DOD Directive 5400.11 with respect to requests for notification, requests for access by subject individuals, granting of such access, request for amendment and corrections by subjects, making amendments or corrections, other disclosures, accounting for disclosures and the exercise of exemptions, insofar as they pertain to any record placed in the DCII by that component or element. Any component or element of the DOD that makes a disclosure of any record whatsoever to an individual or agency outside the DOD, from the DCII, is individually responsible to maintain an accounting of that disclosure as prescribed by The Privacy Act of 1974 and DOD Directive 5400.11 and to notify the element placing the record in the DCII of the disclosure. Use of and compliance with the procedures of the DCII Disclosure Accounting System will meet these requirements. Any component or element of DoD with access to the DCII that, in response to a request concerning an individual, discovers a record pertaining to that individual placed in the DCII by another component or element, may refer the request to the DoD component that placed the record in the DCII without making an accounting of such referral, although it involves the divulging of the existence of that record. Generally, consultation with, and referral to, the component or element placing a record in the DCII should be effected by any component receiving a request pertaining to that record to insure appropriate exercise of amendment or exemption procedures.

(g) Investigative operations. (1) DIS agents must be thoroughly familiar with and understand these rules and the authorities, purposes and routine uses of DIS investigative records, and be prepared to explain them and the effect of refusing information to all sources of investigative information, including subjects, during interview, in response to questions that go beyond the required printed and oral notices. Agents shall be guided by reference (f) § 321.2, in this respect.

(2) All sources may be advised that the subject of an investigative record may be given access to it, but that the identities of sources may be withheld under certain conditions. Such advisement will be made as prescribed in § 321.2(f), and the interviewing agent may not urge a source to request a grant of confidentiality. Such pledges of confidence will be given sparingly and then only when required to obtain information relevant and necessary to the stated purpose of the investigative information being collected.

(h) Non-system information on individuals. The following information is not considered part of personal records systems reportable under the Privacy Act of 1974 and may be maintained by DIS members for ready identification, contact, and property control purposes only. If at any time the information described in this paragraph is to be used for other than these purposes, that information must become part of a reported, authorized record system. No other information concerning individuals except that described in the records systems notice and this paragraph may be maintained within DIS.

(1) Identification information at doorways, building directories, desks, lockers, name tags, etc.

(2) Identification in telephone directories, locator cards and rosters.

(3) Geographical or agency contact cards.

(4) Property receipts and control logs for building passes, credentials, vehicles, weapons, etc.

(5) Temporary personal working notes kept solely by and at the initiative of individual members of DIS to facilitate their duties.

(i) Notification of prior recipients. Whenever a decision is made to amend a record, or a statement contesting a DIS decision not to amend a record is received from the subject individual, prior recipients of the record identified in disclosure accounting will be notified to the extent possible. In some cases, prior recipients cannot be located due to reorganization or deactivations, etc. The Military Assistance Command, Vietnam. In these cases, the personnel security element of the receiving Defense Component will be sent the notification or statement for appropriate action.

(j) Ownership of DIS Investigative Records. Personnel security investigatory reports shall not be retained by DoD recipient organizations. Such reports are considered to be the property of the investigating organization and are on loan to the recipient organization for the purpose for which requested. All copies of such reports shall be destroyed within 120 days after the completion of the final personnel security determination and the completion of all personnel action necessary to implement the determination. Reports that are required for longer periods may be retained only with the specific written approval of the investigative organization.

(k) Consultation and referral. DIS system of records may contain records originated by other components or agencies which have been claimed in any of the Privacy Act of 1974. When any action that may be exempted is initiated concerning such a record, consultation with the originating agency or component will be effected. Where appropriate such records will be referred to the originating component or agency for approval or disapproval of the action.

PART 322—PRIVACY ACT SYSTEMS OF RECORDS—DISCLOSURES AND AMENDMENT PROCEDURES—SPECIFIC EXEMPTIONS, NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCY

Sec. 322.1 Purpose and scope.

322.2 Definitions.

322.3 Procedures for requests concerning individual records in a system of records.

322.4 Times, places and procedures for disclosures.

322.5 Medical or psychological records.

322.6 Parents or legal guardians acting on behalf of minor applicants and employees.

322.7 Procedures for amendment.

322.8 Appeal determination.

322.9 Fees.

322.10 Specific exemptions.

§ 322.1 Purpose and scope.

(a) The purpose of this rule is to comply with and implement title 5 U.S.C. 552a, sections (f) and (k), hereinafter identified as the Privacy Act. It establishes the procedures by which an individual may be notified whether a system of records contains information pertaining to the individual; defines times, places and requirements for identification of the individual requesting records, for disclosure of requested records where appropriate; special handling for medical and psychological records; for amendment of records; appeal of denials of requests for amendment; and provides a schedule of fees to be charged for making copies of requested records. In addition, this rule contains the exemptions promulgated by the Director, NSA, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (k), to exempt Agency systems of records found in subsections (c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4)(C) (H), (I); and (f) of section 552a.

(b) The procedures established and exemptions claimed apply to systems of records for which notice has been published in the Federal Register pursuant to the Privacy Act. Requests from individuals for records pertaining to themselves will be processed in accordance with these procedures and consistent with the exemptions claimed. Requests for records which do not specify the statute pursuant to which they are made but which may be reasonably construed to be requests by an individual for records pertaining to that individual will also be processed in accordance with these procedures and consistent with exemptions claimed.
the extent appropriate, these procedures apply to records maintained by this Agency pursuant to system of records notices published by the Civil Service Commission. The primary category of records affected by a Commission notice is that maintained in conjunction with the CSC system identified as "CSC-Retirement Life Insurance and Health Benefits Records System." Authority pursuant to 44 U.S.C. 301 to maintain each system of records for which notice has been published is implied in each "authority for maintenance of a system" of each systems notice.

§ 322.2 Definitions.
(a) Access to the NSA headquarters.
Means current and continuing daily access to those facilities making up the NSA headquarters.
(b) Individual. Means a natural person who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence.
(c) Request. Means a request in writing for records pertaining to the requester contained in a system of records and made pursuant to the Privacy Act or if no statute is identified considered by the Agency to be made pursuant to that Act.
(d) System of Records. Means a grouping of records maintained by the Agency for which notice has been published in the Federal Register pursuant to section 552a(e)(4) of title 5
U.S.C.

§ 322.3 Procedures for requests concerning individual records in a system of records.
(a) Notification. Any individual may be notified in response to a request if any system of records contains a record pertaining to the requester by sending a request addressed to:
Information Officer, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755. Such request shall be in writing, shall be identified on the envelope and the request as a "Privacy Act Request," shall designate the system or systems of records using the names of the systems as published in the system notices, shall contain the full name, present address, date of birth, social security number and dates of affiliation or contact with NSA/CSS of the requester and shall be signed in full by the requester.
(b) A request pertaining to records concerning the requester which does not specify the Act pursuant to which the request is made shall be processed as a Privacy Act request. A request which does not designate the system or systems of records to be searched shall be processed by checking the following systems of records: Applicants:
Personnel; Health, Medical and Safety.
(b)(1) Identification. Any individual currently not authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters who requests disclosure of records shall provide the following information with the written request for disclosure:
Full name, present address, date of birth, social security number, and date of first affiliation or contact with NSA/CSS and date of last affiliation or contact with NSA/CSS.
(2) Any individual currently not authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters shall provide the following information with the request for notification: Full name, present organizational assignment, date of birth, social security number.
(3) Such request shall be treated as a certification of the requester that the requester is the individual named.
Individuals should be aware that the Privacy Act provides criminal penalties for any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any records concerning an individual under false pretenses.

§ 322.4 Times, places and procedures for disclosures.
(a) Individual not currently affiliated with NSA:
(1) Request procedure. Any individual currently not authorized access to the National Security Agency headquarters shall make the request for notification in writing and shall include the required identifying data. Upon verification of the existence in systems of records pertaining to the requester, a copy of the records located shall be mailed to the requester subject to appropriate specific exemptions, applicable Public Laws, special procedures pertaining to medical records including psychological records, and the exclusion for information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.
If the request cannot be processed within ten working days from the time of receipt of the request, an acknowledgment of receipt of the request will be sent to the requester.
(2) Appointment of other individual. If a requester wishes another individual to obtain the requested records on his behalf, the requester shall provide a written, signed, notarized statement appointing that individual as his representative, certifying that the individual appointed may have access to the records of the requester and that such access shall not constitute an invasion of the privacy of the requester nor a violation of his rights under the

(b) Individual currently affiliated with NSA—(1) Request procedure. Any individual currently authorized access requests disclosure of records shall provide the following information with the written request for notification to the appropriate official delegated responsibility for a system of records pursuant to internal agency regulations pertaining to the Privacy Act of 1974. In the alternative, such individual may direct the request to the NSA Information Officer in writing in the same form and including the data required in § 322.4(a)(1) above. In the case of any denial of notification by officials delegated responsibility for a system the request shall be referred to the NSA Information Officer for review.
(2) Appointment of other individual. If the requester makes a request pursuant to this paragraph and wishes to designate another individual to accompany him, the same procedures as provided in paragraph (a)(2) of this section apply. If the individual is not currently administered access to the National Security Agency headquarters, he may accompany the requester. If the individual appointed is currently authorized access, a copy of the records located may be mailed to the appointed individual subject to appropriate specific exemptions, applicable Public Laws, special procedures pertaining to medical records including psychological records, and the exclusion for information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

§ 322.5 Medical or psychological records.
If the request includes records of a dependent or psychological nature, and if an Agency doctor makes the determination that the records requested contain information which would have an adverse effect upon the requester, the requester shall be advised to appoint a medical doctor in the appropriate discipline to receive the information.
The appointment of the doctor shall be in the same form as that indicated in § 322.4(a)(2) and shall include a certification that the doctor appointed is authorized to practice the appropriate specialty by virtue of a license to practice same in the state which granted the license.

§ 322.6 Parents or legal guardians acting on behalf of minor applicants and employees.

Parents or Legal Guardians acting on behalf of minors who request records concerning NSA/CSS applicants or employees who are minors shall be subject to the same requirements contained in § 322.4(a)(1) Appointment of Other Individuals, including the requirement for written authorization. Requested by parents or legal guardians acting on behalf of minors will be processed in the same manner and in accordance with the procedures established herein for individuals not currently authorized access to the NSA headquarters.

§ 322.7 Procedures for amendment.

(a) Request procedure. Any request for amendment of a record or records contained in a system of records shall be in writing addressed to the Information Officer, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755, Attention: Privacy Act Amendment, and shall contain sufficient details concerning the requested amendment, justification for the amendment, and a copy of the record(s) to be amended or sufficient identifying data concerning the affected record(s) to permit its timely retrieval. Such requests may not be used to accomplish actions for which other procedures have been established such as grievances, performance appraisal protests, etc. In such cases the requester will be advised of the appropriate procedures for such actions.

(b) Initial determination: The NSA Information Officer may make an initial determination concerning the requested amendment within ten working days or shall acknowledge receipt of the amendment request within that period if a determination cannot be completed. The determination shall advise the requester of action taken to make the requested amendment or inform the requester of the rejection of the request, the reason(s) for the rejection and the procedures established by the Agency for review of rejected amendment requests.

(c) Request on appeal: A requester may appeal the rejection by the NSA Information Officer of a request for amendment to the Executive for Staff Services. Such appeal shall be in writing addressed to the Executive for Staff Services, National Security Agency, Fort George G. Meade, Md. 20755, Attention: Privacy Act Amendment Appeal.

§ 322.8 Appeal determination.

The Executive for Staff Services shall acknowledge receipt of the appeal within ten working days. A determination concerning the appeal shall be provided to the requester within 30 working days, unless the Director, National Security Agency, extends the period for good cause. The Executive for Staff Services shall advise the requester of the action taken to make the requested amendment or inform the requester of the rejection of the appeal, the right to submit for incorporation in the file containing the disputed record(s) a concise statement of disagreement, and notify the requester of right of judicial review of the denial pursuant to subsection (g)(1)(A) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

§ 322.9 Fees.

A fee may be charged for the reproduction of copies of any requested records, provided one copy is made available without charge where access is limited to mail service only. Fees shall be charged in accordance with the Uniform Schedule of Fees established by the Department of Defense pursuant to Pub. L. 93-502.

§ 322.10 Specific exemptions.

(a)(1) The following National Security Agency systems of records, published in the Federal Register, are specifically exempted from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, subsections (c)(3), (e), (f)(1), (g)(1)(A), (g)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I), (f) pursuant to subsection (k) of Section 552a to the extent that each system contains individual records or files within the category or categories provided by subsection (k). Notice is hereby given that individual records and files within each NSA system of records may be subject to specific provisions of Pub. L. 86-36, Pub. L. 86-290 and Title 18 U.S.C. 798 and other laws limiting access to certain types of information or application of laws to certain categories of information.

(2) In addition, those records maintained pursuant to notice of systems of records published by the CSC are exempted pursuant to Title 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) to the extent that they contain classified information in order to protect such information from unauthorized disclosure. Such records may also be subject to other specific exemptions pursuant to rules promulgated by the CSC.

(b) Systems of records subject to specific exemptions:

1. System name: NSA/CSS Access, Authority and Release of Information File. Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the limitations noted in that paragraph.

  Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(1), (k)(5)

  Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigative material compiled solely for the purpose of determining access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted, not otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure, and which would not undermine the integrity of the controlled access system.

2. System name: NSA/CSS Applicants Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the limitations noted in that paragraph.

  Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (k)(5)

  Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigative material compiled solely for the purpose of determining access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted, not otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

3. System name: NSA/CSS Correspondence. Cases, Complaints, Visitors, Requests

  Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the limitations noted in that paragraph.

  Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (k)(2), (k)(4), (k)(5)

  Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not subject to this exemption, nor otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.
This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(2) to protect from unauthorized disclosure individual records and files which constitute investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes pursuant to a lawful national security intelligence investigation and maintain the integrity of the personnel security system required by Pub. L. 86-290. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not investigatory material which are not exempted or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(4) where individual records and files are maintained and used solely for statistical records in accordance with statutory requirements to insure compliance with those requirements with a minimum of administrative burden and expense.

This system is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not subject to this exemption or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

(4) System name: NSA/CSS Cryptologic Reserve Mobilization Designee List Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (k) (5)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to prevent the unauthorized disclosure of classified information concerning anticipated personnel assigned to high-cryptologic positions during periods of national emergency or war requiring reserve mobilization.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information concerning anticipated personnel assigned to high-cryptologic positions during periods of national emergency or war requiring reserve mobilization.

(5) System name: NSA/CSS Equal Employment Opportunity/Drug Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (k) (2), (4)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

(6) System name: NSA/CSS Health, Medical and Safety Files Exemption: This system of records is exempted from sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the statutory limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (k) (6), (k)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(6) to protect those testing or examination materials used solely to determine individual qualifications for employment in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(7) System name: NSA/CSS Motor Vehicles and Cargo Systems Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the statutory limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure any and all classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

(8) System name: NSA/CSS Payroll and Claims Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the statutory limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (k) (2)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(2) to protect investigatory materials related to the enforcement of laws with respect to claims against the Government. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system not related to investigations of claims or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(6) to protect those testing or examination materials used solely to determine individual qualifications for employment in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(9) System name: NSA/CSS Personnel File Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the statutory limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (k) (5), (k)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory materials compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(6) to protect those testing or examination materials used solely to determine individual qualifications for employment in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(10) System name: NSA/CSS Personnel Security File Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in § 322.10(a) and is subject to the statutory limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (k)(2), (k) (5)

Reasons: This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(1) to protect from unauthorized disclosure any and all classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(5) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(6) to protect those testing or examination materials used solely to determine individual qualifications for employment in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.
to exemption \((k)(1)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(2)\) to protect investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(5)\) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(6)\) to protect those testing or examination materials used solely to determine individual qualifications for employment in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(13) System name: NSA/CSS Archival Records

Exemption: This system is exempted from the sections of title 5 U.S.C. 552a cited in §322.10(a) and is subject to the statutory limitations noted in that paragraph.

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (k)(4).

Reasons—This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(1)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(2)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(4)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

(15) System Identification and Name—CNSA15, entitled “NSA/CSS Computer Users Control System”.

Exemption—Portions of this system which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (k)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, sections \((c)(3), (d)(1)–(5), (e)(1), (a)(4), (G)(1), (G)(3), and (f) (1)–(5).

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (k)(2).

Reasons—This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(1)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(2)\) to the extent that individual records and files are related to investigations to enforce the provisions of Pub. L. 88–290 and consistent with the provisions of that statute with respect to individual access to such records. The purpose of the exemption is to protect the integrity of investigations conducted pursuant to Pub. L. 88–290.

(16) System Identification and Name—CNSA36, entitled “NSA/CSS Drug Testing Program”.

Exemption—Portions of this system which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (k)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, sections \((c)(3), (d)(1)–(5), (e)(1), (a)(4), (G)(1), (G)(3), and (f) (1)–(5).

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

Reasons—This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(1)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system.

(17) System Identification and Name—CNSA17, entitled “Employee Assistance Service (EAS) Case Records System”.

Exemption—Portions of this system which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (k)(2), (k)(4) and (k)(5) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, sections \((c)(3), (d)(1)–(5), (e)(1), (a)(4), (G)(1), and (f) (1)–(5).

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). and (k)(4), and (k)(5).

Reasons—This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(1)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure classified information which may be contained in records and files making up the system. This system of records is exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption \((k)(2)\) to the extent that individual records and files are related to investigations to enforce the provisions of Public Law 92–261 and consistent with the provisions of that statute with respect to individual access to such records. The purpose of the exemption is to protect the integrity of investigations conducted pursuant to Public Law 92–261.

This record system is exempted from all subsections pursuant to exemption \((k)(4)\) to protect from unauthorized disclosure records maintained for statistical research or program evaluation. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not classified or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure. This system of records is also exempted from all subsections cited pursuant to exemption (k)(6) to protect the identity of confidential sources of information constituting investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for federal civilian employment, federal contracts or access to classified information. The exemption does not limit access to that portion of the records in the system which are not exempted or otherwise protected from unauthorized disclosure.

Exemption—Portions of this record system may be exempted from subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1)—(5), (e)(4)(G)—(I), and (f)(5)—(6).

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (2) and (5).

Reasons—Subsection (c)(3) because there may be occasions when making an accounting available to the individual named in the record at his or her request, would reveal classified information. The release of accounting of disclosure would inform a subject that he or she is under investigation. This information would provide considerable advantage to the subject in his or her knowledge concerning the nature of the investigation and the coordinated investigative efforts and techniques employed by the cooperating agencies.

Subsection (d) because granting access and/or subsequent amendment to the record would reveal classified information. It may also alert a subject to the fact that an investigation of that individual is taking place, and might weaken the on-going investigation, reveal investigatory techniques, and place confidential informants in jeopardy. NSA/CSS may refuse to confirm or deny the existence of a particular record because to do so would reveal classified information.

Subsection (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (e)(4)(I).

Although NSA/CSS has published procedures whereby an individual can be notified if a particular record system contains information about themselves; how to gain access to that information; and the source of the information, there may be occasions when confirming that a record exists, granting access, or giving out the source of the information would reveal classified information.

Subsection (f) because the agency’s rules are inapplicable to those portions of the system that are exempt and would place the burden on the agency of either confirming or denying the existence of a record pertaining to a requesting individual. The confirming or denying might, in itself, provide an answer to that record to that individual relating to an on-going criminal investigation. The conduct of a successful investigation leading to the indictment of a criminal offender precludes the applicability of established agency rules relating to verification of record, disclosure of the record to that individual, and record amendment procedures for this record system. Also, because this record system is exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

§ 323.1 Purpose and scope.

This Part 323 implements the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and DoD Directive and DoD Regulation 5400.11, Department of Defense Privacy Program (32 CFR part 310). It applies to Headquarters, Defense Logistics Agency (HQ DLA) and all DLA field activities.

§ 323.2 Policy.

It is the policy of DLA to safeguard personal information contained in any system of records maintained by DLA activities and to make that information available to the individual to whom it pertains to the maximum extent practicable. DLA policy specifically requires that DLA activities:

(a) Collect, maintain, use, and disseminate personal information only when it is relevant and necessary to achieve a purpose required by statute or Executive Order.

(b) Collect personal information directly from the individuals to whom it pertains to the greatest extent practicable.

(c) Inform individuals who are asked to supply personal information for inclusion in any system of records:

(1) The authority for the solicitation.

(2) Whether furnishing the information is mandatory or voluntary.

(3) The intended uses of the information.

(4) The routine disclosures of the information that may be made outside DoD.

(5) The effect on the individual of not providing all of any part of the requested information.

(d) Ensure that all records used in making determinations about individuals are accurate, relevant, timely, and complete.

(e) Make reasonable efforts to ensure that records containing personal information are accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for the purposes for which they are being maintained before making them available to any recipients outside DoD, other than a Federal agency, unless the disclosure is made under DLAR 5400.14, Availability to the Public of Official Information (32 CFR part 1285).

(f) Keep no record that describes how individuals exercise their rights guaranteed by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, unless expressly authorized by statute or by the individual to whom the records pertain or is pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(g) Make reasonable efforts, when appropriate, to notify individuals whenever records pertaining to them are made available under compulsory legal process, if such process is a matter of public record.

(h) Establish safeguards to ensure the security of personal information and to protect this information from threats or hazards that might result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to the individual.

(i) Establish rules of conduct for DLA personnel involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records and train them in these rules of conduct.

(j) Assist individuals in determining what records pertaining to them are being collected, maintained, used, or disseminated.

(k) Permit individual access to the information pertaining to them maintained in any system of records, and to correct or amend that information, unless an exemption for the system has been properly established for an important public purpose.

(l) Provide, on request, an accounting of all disclosures of the information pertaining to them except when disclosures are made:

(1) To DoD personnel in the course of their official duties.

(2) Under 32 CFR part 1285 (DLAR 5400.14).

(m) Advise individuals on their rights to appeal any refusal to grant access to or amend any record pertaining to them, and to file a statement of disagreement with the record in the event amendment is refused.

§ 323.3 Definitions.

(a) Access. The review of a record or a copy of a record or parts thereof in a system of records by any individual.

(b) Agency. For the purpose of disclosing records subject to the Privacy Act among DoD Components, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency. For all other purposes including applications for access and amendment, denial of access or amendment, appeals from denials, and recordkeeping as regards release to non-DoD agencies, DLA is considered an agency within the meaning of the Privacy Act.

(c) Confidential source. A person or organization who has furnished information to the Federal Government under an express promise that the person’s or the organization’s identity will be held in confidence or under an implied promise of such confidentiality if this implied promise was made before September 27, 1975.

(d) Disclosure. The transfer of any personal information from a system of records by any means of communication to any person, private entity, or Government agency, other than the subject of the record, the subject’s designated agent or the subject’s legal guardian.

(e) Individual. A living citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence. The legal guardian of an individual has the same rights as the individual and may act on his or her behalf.

(f) Individual access. Access to information pertaining to the individual by the individual or his or her designated agent or legal guardian.

(g) Maintain. Includes maintain, collect, use, or disseminate.

(h) Member of the public. Any individual or party acting in a private capacity to include Federal employees or military personnel.

(i) Official use. Within the context of this part, this term is used when officials and employees of a DLA activity have a demonstrated need for the use of any record or the information contained therein in the performance of their official duties or functions.

(j) Personal information. Information about an individual that is intimate or private to the individual, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual’s official functions or public life.

(l) Privacy Act request. A request from an individual for notification as to the existence of, access to, or amendment of records pertaining to that individual. These records must be maintained in a system of records. The request must indicate that it is being made under the Privacy Act to be considered a Privacy Act request.

(m) Record. Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by DLA, including, but not limited to, the individual’s educational, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history, and that contains the individual’s name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

(n) Risk assessment. An analysis considering information sensitivity, vulnerabilities, and the cost to a computer facility or word processing system in safeguarding personal information processed or stored in the facility or activity.

(o) Routine use. The disclosure of a record outside DoD for a use that is compatible with the purpose for which the information was collected and maintained by DoD. The routine use must be included in the published system notice for the system of records involved.

(p) Statistical record. A record maintained only for statistical research or reporting purposes and not used in whole or in part in making determinations about specific individuals.

(q) System of Records. A group of records under the control of a DLA activity from which information is retrieved by the individual’s name or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. System notices for all Privacy Act systems of records must be published in the Federal Register.

§ 323.4 Responsibilities.

(a) Headquarters Defense Logistics Agency.

(i) The Chief, Resources Management Division, Office of Administration (DLA-XA) will:

(i) Formulate policies, procedures, and standards necessary for uniform compliance with the Privacy Act by DLA activities.

(ii) Serve as the DLA Privacy Act Officer and DLA representative on the Defense Privacy Board.

(iii) Maintain a master registry of system notices published by DLA.

(iv) Develop or compile the rules, notices, and reports required under this part.

(b) The General Counsel, DLA (DLA–G) will:

(i) Serve as the appellate authority for denials of individual access and amendment of records.

(ii) Provide representation to the Defense Privacy Board Legal Committee.

(iii) Advise the Defense Privacy Office on the status of DLA privacy litigation.

(c) The Command Security Officer, Office of Command Security, DLA (DLA–T) will formulate and implement protective standards for personal information maintained in automated data processing systems and facilities.

(d) The Heads of DLA Primary Level Field Activities (PLFAs) will:

(1) Ensure that the collection, maintenance, use, or dissemination of records of identifiable personal information is in a manner that assures that such action is for a necessary and lawful purpose; that the information is timely and accurate for its intended use; and that adequate safeguards are provided to prevent misuse of such information.

(2) Designate a Privacy Act Officer to serve as the principal point of contact on privacy matters.

(3) Ensure the internal operating procedures provide for effective compliance with the Privacy Act.

(4) Establish a training program for those personnel whose duties involve responsibilities for systems of records affected by the Privacy Act.

§ 323.5 Procedures.

(a) Individual access. (1) The access provisions of this part are intended for use by individuals whose records are maintained in systems of records. Release of personal information to individuals under this part is not considered public release of information.

(2) Individuals will address requests for access to personal information about themselves in a system of records to the system manager or to the office designated in the system notice. Before being granted access to personal data, an individual may be required to provide reasonable verification of his or her identity. Identity verification procedures will be simple so as not to discourage individuals from seeking access to information about themselves, or be required of an individual seeking access to records which normally would be available under 32 CFR part 1285 (DLAR 5400.14).

(i) Normally, when individuals seek personal access to records pertaining to themselves, identification will be made from documents that normally are readily available, such as employee and military identification cards, driver's license, other licenses, permits, or passes used for routine identification purposes.

(ii) When access is requested by mail, identity verification may consist of the individual providing certain minimum identifying data, such as full name, date and place of birth, or such other personal information necessary to locate the record sought. If the information sought is sensitive, additional identifying data may be required. If notarization of requests is required, procedures will be established for an alternate method of verification for individuals who do not have access to notary services, such as military members overseas.

(3) If an individual wishes to be accompanied by a third party when seeking access to his or her records or to have the records released directly to a third party, the individual may be required to furnish a signed access authorization granting the third party access. An individual will not be refused access to his or her record solely for failure to divulge his or her social security number (SSN) unless it is the only method by which retrieval can be made. The individual is not required to explain or justify his or her need for access to any record under this part.

(4) Disclose medical records to the individual to whom they pertain, even if a minor, unless a judgment is made that access to such records could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of the individual. Normally, this determination will be made in consultation with a medical doctor. If it is determined that the release of the medical information may be harmful to the mental or physical health of the individual, send the record to a physician named by the individual and in the transmittal letter to the physician, explain why access by the individual without proper professional supervision could be harmful (unless it is obvious from the record). Do not require the physician to request the records for the individual. If the individual refuses or fails to designate a physician, the record will not be provided. Such refusal of access is not considered a denial for reporting purposes.

(5) Requests by individuals for access to investigatory records pertaining to themselves and compiled for law enforcement purposes are processed under this part or 32 CFR part 1285 depending on which part gives them the greatest degree of access.

(6) Certain documents under the physical control of DoD personnel and used to assist them in performing official functions, are not considered "agency records" within the meaning of this part. Uncirculated personal notes and records that are not disseminated or circulated to any person or organization (for example, personal telephone lists or memory aids) that are retained or discarded at the author's discretion and over which DLA exercises no direct control, are not considered agency records. However, if personnel are officially directed or encouraged, either in writing or orally, to maintain such records, they may become "agency records," and may be subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and this part.

(7) Acknowledge requests for access within 10 working days after receipt and provide access within 30 working days.

(a) Denial of individual access. (1) Individuals may be formally denied access to a record pertaining to them only if the record was compiled in reasonable anticipation of civil action; is in a system of records that has been exempted from the access provisions of this part under one of the permitted exemptions; contains classified information that has been exempted from the access provision of this part under the blanket exemption for such material claimed for all DoD records systems; or is contained in a system of records for which access may be denied under some other Federal statute. Only deny the individual access to those portions of the records from which the denial of access serves some legitimate Governmental purpose.

(ii) An individual may be refused access if the record is not described well enough to locate it; is located within a reasonable amount of effort on the part of an employee familiar with the file; or access is sought by an individual who fails or refuses to comply with the established procedural requirements, including refusing to name a physician to receive medical records when required or to pay fees. Always explain to the individual the specific reason access has been refused and how he or she may obtain access.

(iii) Formal denial of access must be in writing and include as a minimum:

(A) The name, title or position, and signature of the appropriate Head of the HQ DLA principal staff element or primary level field activity.

(B) The date of the denial.

(C) The specific reason for the denial, including specific citation to the appropriate sections of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) or other statutes, this part, or DLA 5400.21 authorizing the denial.

(iv) Notice to the individual of his or her right to appeal the denial within 60 calendar days.

(v) The title or position and address of the Privacy Act appeals official, DLA-G, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304-6100.

(4) The individual will file any appeals from denial of access within 60 calendar days of receipt of the denial notification. DLA-G will process all appeals within 30 days of receipt unless a fair and equitable review cannot be made within that period. The written appeal notification granting or denying access is the final DLA action on access.

(5) The records in all systems of records maintained in accordance with the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) Government-wide system notices are technically only in the temporary custody of DLA. All requests for access to these records must be processed in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (5 CFR parts 293, 294, 297 and 735) as well as this part. DLA-G is responsible for the appellate review of denial of access to such records.

(c) Amendment of records. (1) Individuals are encouraged to review the personal information being maintained about them by DLA and to avail themselves of the procedures established by this part to update their records. An individual may request the amendment of any record contained in a system of records pertaining to him or her unless the system of record has been exempted specifically from the amendment procedures of this part. Normally, amendments under this part are limited to correcting factual matters and not matters of official judgment, such as performance ratings, promotion potential, and job performance appraisals.

(ii) The applicant must adequately support his or her claim and be required to provide identification to ensure that they are indeed seeking to amend a record pertaining to themselves and not, inadvertently or intentionally, the record of others. Consider the following factors when evaluating the sufficiency of a request to amend:

(i) The accuracy of the information itself.

(ii) The relevancy, timeliness, completeness, and necessity of the recorded information for accomplishing an assigned mission or purpose.

(3) Provide written acknowledgement of a request to amend within 10 working days of its receipt by the appropriate systems manager. There is no need to acknowledge a request if the action is completed within 10 working days and the individual is so informed. The letter of acknowledgement shall clearly identify the request and advise the individual when he or she may expect to be notified of the completed action. Only under the most exceptional circumstances will more than 30 days be required to reach a decision on a request to amend.

(4) If the decision is made to grant all or part of the request for amendment, amend the record accordingly and notify the requester. Notify all previous recipients of the information, as reflected in the disclosure accounting records, that an amendment has been made and the substance of the amendment. Recipients who are known to be no longer retaining the information need not be notified of the amendment. All DoD Components and Federal agencies known to be retaining the record or information, even if not reflected in disclosure records, will be notified of the amendment. Advise the requester of these notifications, and honor all requests by the requester to notify specific Federal agencies of the amendment action.

(5) If the request for amendment is denied in whole or in part, promptly advise the individual in writing of the decision to include:

(i) The specific reason and authority for not amending.

(ii) Notification that he or she may seek further independent review of the decision by the Office of General Counsel, DLA (DLA-G).

(b) Individual appeals of amendment denials must be submitted to the Office of General Counsel, DLA (DLA-G), Cameron Station, Alexandria, Virginia, 22304-1000. With all supporting materials, DLA-G will process all appeals within 30 days unless a fair review cannot be made within this time limit.

(i) If the appeal is granted, DLA-G will promptly notify the requester and system manager of the decision. The system manager will amend the record(s) as directed and ensure that all prior known recipients of the records who are known to be retaining the record are notified of the decision and the specific nature of the amendment and that the requester is notified as to which DoD Components and Federal agencies have been told of the amendment.

(ii) If the appeal is denied completely or in part, the individual is notified in writing by the reviewing official that:

A. The appeal has been denied and the specific reason and authority for the denial, (B) The individual may file a statement of disagreement with the appropriate authority and the procedures for filing this statement.

(C) If filed properly, the statement of disagreement shall be included in the record, furnished to all future recipients of the record, and provided to all prior recipients of the disputed records who are known to hold the record.

(D) The individual may seek a judicial review of the decision not to amend.

(7) The records in all systems of records controlled by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) Government-wide system notices are technically only temporarily in the custody of DLA. All requests for amendment of these records must be processed in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual (FPM). A DLA denial authority may deny a request. However, the appeal process for all such denial must include a review by the Assistant Director for Agency Compliance and Evaluation, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street, NW, Washington, DC 20415. When an appeal is received from a DLA denial of amendment of the OPM controlled record, process the appeal in accordance with the FPM and notify the OPM appeal authority listed above. The individual may appeal any DLA decision not to amend the OPM records directly to OPM. OPM is the final review authority for any appeal from a denial to amend the OPM records.

(8) If the reviewing authority refuses to amend the record as requested, the individual may submit a concise statement of disagreement setting forth his or her reasons for disagreeing with the decision not to amend.

(i) If an individual chooses to file a statement of disagreement, annotate the record to indicate that the statement has been filed. Furnish copies of the statement of disagreement to all DoD Components and Federal agencies that have been provided copies of the disputed information and who may be maintaining the information.

(ii) When possible, incorporate the statement of disagreement into the record. If the statement cannot be made a part of the record, establish procedures to ensure that it is apparent from the records that a statement of disagreement has been filed and maintain the statement so that it can be obtained readily when the disputed information is used or disclosed. Automated record systems that are not programmed to accept statements of disagreement shall be annotated or coded so that they clearly indicate that a statement of disagreement is on file, and clearly identify the statement with the disputed information in the system. Provide a copy of the statement of disagreement whenever the disputed information is disclosed for any purpose.

(9) A summary of reasons for refusing to amend may be included with any record for which a statement of disagreement is filed. Include in this summary only the reasons furnished to the individual for not amending the record. Do not include comments on the statement of disagreement. Normally, the summary and statement of disagreement are filed together. When disclosing information for which a summary has been filed, a copy of the summary may be included in the release, if desired.

(d) Documentation. Establish a separate Privacy Case File to retain the documentation received and generated during the amendment or access process. There is no need to establish a Privacy Case File if the individual has not cited the Privacy Act or this part. Privacy Case Files shall not be furnished or disclosed to anyone for use in making any determination about the individual other than determinations made under this part. Only the items listed below may be included in the system of records challenged for amendment or for which access is sought. Do not retain copies of unamended records in the basis record system if the request for amendment is granted.

(1) The following items relating to an amendment request may be included in the disputed record system:

(i) Copies of the amended record.

(ii) Copies of the individual’s statement of disagreement.

(iii) Copies of activity summaries.

(iv) Supporting documentation submitted by the individual.

(2) The following items relating to an access request may be included in the basic records system:

(i) Copies of the request.

(ii) Copies of the activity action granting total access. (Note: A separate Privacy Case File need not be created in such cases.)

(iii) Copies of the activity action denying access.

(iv) Copies of any appeals filed.

(v) Copies of the reply to the appeal.

(6) Fees. An individual may be charged only for the direct cost of copying and reproduction, computed using the appropriate portions of the fee schedule in DLAR §400.14 (32 CFR part 1285) under the provisions of this part. Normally, fees are waived automatically if the direct costs of a given request is less than $30. This fee waiver provision does not apply when a waiver has been granted to the individual before, and later requests appear to be an extension or duplication of that original request. DLA activities may, however, set aside this automatic fee waiver provision when on the basis of good evidence it determines that the waiver of fees is not in the public interest. Decisions to waive or reduce fees that exceed the automatic waiver threshold will be made on a case-by-case basis. Fees may not be charged when:

(1) Copying is performed for the convenience of the Government or is the only means to make the record available to the individual.

(2) The record may be obtained without charge under any other part, directive, or statute.

(3) Providing documents to members of Congress for copying records furnished or when the records are requested under the Privacy Act on behalf of a constituent.

(f) Disclosures of personal information. (1) For the purposes of disclosure and disclosure accounting, the Department of Defense is considered a single agency. Records pertaining to an individual may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to any DoD official who has need for the record in the performance of his or her assigned duties. Do not disclose personal information from a system of records outside the Department of Defense unless the record has been requested by the individual to whom it pertains; the written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains has been obtained for release of the record to the requesting agency, activity, or individual; or the release is for one of the specific nonconsensual purposes set forth in this part or DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285).

(2) Except for releases made in accordance with DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285) before disclosing any personal information to any recipient outside DoD other than a Federal agency or the individual to whom it pertains:

(i) Ensure that the records are accurate, timely, complete, and relevant for agency purposes.

(ii) Contact the individual, if reasonably available, to verify the accuracy, timeliness, completeness, and relevancy of the information, if this cannot be determined from the record.

(iii) If the information is not current and the individual is not reasonably available, advise the recipient that the information is believed accurate as of a specific date and any other known factors bearing on its accuracy and relevancy.

(3) All records must be disclosed if their release is required by the Freedom of Information Act. DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285) requires that records be made available to the public unless exempted from disclosure by one of the nine exemptions found in the Freedom of Information Act. The standard for exempting most personal records, such as personnel records, medical records, and similar records, is found in DLAR 5400.14, section III.G6 (32 CFR 1285.3(f)). Under the exemption, release of personal information can only be denied if it would be a "clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

(i) All disclosures of personal information regarding Federal civilian employees will be made in accordance with the Federal Personnel Manual. Some examples of personal information regarding DoD civilian employees that normally may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy include:

(A) Name.

(B) Present and past position titles.

(C) Present and past grades.

(D) Present and past salaries.

(E) Present and past duty stations.

(F) Office and duty telephone numbers.

(ii) All release of personal information regarding military members shall be made in accordance with the standards established by DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285). While it is not possible to identify categorically information that must be released or withheld from military personnel records in every instance, the following items of personal information regarding military members normally may be disclosed without a clearly unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy:

(A) Full name.

(B) Rank.

(C) Date of rank.

(D) Gross salary.

(E) Past duty assignments.

(F) Present duty assignment.

(G) Future assignments that are officially established.

(H) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(I) Source of commission.

(J) Promotion sequence number.

(K) Awards and decorations.

(L) Attendance at professional military schools.

(M) Duty status at any given time.

(iii) All releases of personal information regarding civilian personnel not subject to the FPM shall be made in accordance with the standards established by DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285). While it is not possible to identify categorically those items of personal information that must be released regarding civilian employees not subject to the FPM, such as nonappropriated fund employees, normally the following items may be released without a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy:

(A) Full name.

(B) Grade or position.

(C) Date of grade.

(D) Gross salary.

(E) Present and past assignments.

(F) Future assignments, if officially established.

(G) Office or duty telephone numbers.

(iii) A request for a home address or telephone number may be referred to the last known address of the individual for a direct reply by him or her to the requester. In such cases the requester will be notified of the referral. The release of home addresses and home telephone numbers normally is considered a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy and is prohibited. However, these may be released without prior specific consent of the individual if:

(i) The individual has indicated previously that he or she has no objection to their release.

(ii) The source of the information to be released is a public document such as commercial telephone directory or other public listing.

(iii) The release is required by Federal law (for example, pursuant to Federally-funded state programs to locate parents who have defaulted on child support payments (42 U.S.C. 653).)

(iv) The release of personal information under the provisions of DLAR 5400.14, (32 CFR part 1285). (5) Records may be disclosed outside DoD without consent of the individual to whom they pertain for an established routine use. Routine uses may be established, discontinued, or amended without the consent of the individuals involved. However, new or changed routine uses must be published in the Federal Register at least 30 days before actually disclosing any records under their provisions. In addition to the routine uses established by the individual system notices, common blanket routine uses for all DLA-maintained systems of records have been established. These blanket routine uses are published in DLAR 5400.1,1 DLA Systems of Records Handbook. Unless a system notice specifically excludes a system from a given blanket routine use, all blanket routine uses apply.

(6) Records in DLA systems of records may be disclosed without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain to the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census survey or related activities.

(7) Records may be disclosed for statistical research and reporting, without the consent of the individuals to whom they pertain. Before such disclosures, the recipient must provide advance written assurance that the records will be used as statistical research records; the records will only be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable; and the records will not be used, in whole or in part, to make any determination about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of specific individuals. A disclosure accounting is not required.

(8) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) if they have historical or other value to warrant continued preservation; or for evaluation by NARA to determine if a record has such historical or other value. Records transferred to a Federal Record Center (FRC) for safekeeping and storage do not fall within this category. These remain under the control of the transferring activity, and the FRC personnel are considered agents of the activity which retain control over the records. No disclosure accounting is required for the transfer of records to FRCs.

(9) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to another agency or an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity, provided the civil or criminal law enforcement activity is authorized by law; the head of the law enforcement activity or a designee has made a written request specifying the particular records desired and the law enforcement purpose (such as criminal investigations, enforcement of civil law, or a similar propose) for which the record is sought; and there is no Federal statute that prohibits the disclosure of the records. Normally, blanket requests for access to any and all records pertaining to an individual are not honored. When a record is released to a law enforcement activity, maintain a disclosure accounting. This disclosure accounting will not be made available to the individual to whom the record pertains if the law enforcement activity requests that the disclosure not be released.

(10) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain if disclosure is made under compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of any individual. The affected individual need not be the subject of the record disclosed. When such a disclosure is made, notify the individual who is the subject of the record. Notification sent to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is sufficient.

(11) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the individual to whom they pertain to either House of Congress or any committee, joint committee or subcommittee of Congress if the release pertains to a matter within the jurisdiction of the committee.

Records may also be disclosed to the General Accounting Office (GAO) in the course of the activities of GAO.

(12) Records may be disclosed without the consent of the person to whom they pertain under a court order signed by a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction. Releases may also be made under the compulsory legal process of Federal or state courts having authority to issue such process.

(i) When a record is disclosed under this provision, make reasonable efforts to notify the individual to whom the record pertains, if the legal process is a matter of public record.

(ii) If the process is not a matter of public record at the time it is issued, seek to be advised when the process is made public and make reasonable efforts to notify the individual at that time.

(iii) Notification sent to the last known address of the individual as reflected in the records is considered reasonable effort to notify. Make a disclosure accounting each time a record is disclosed under a court order or compulsory legal process.

(13) Certain personal information may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies as defined by the Federal Claims Collection Act. Information which may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency includes:

(i) Name, address, taxpayer identification number (SSN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual.

(ii) The amount, status, and history of the claim.

(iii) The agency or program under which the claim arose.

(14) Disclosure accounting. (1) Keep an accurate record of all disclosures made from any system of records except disclosures to DoD personnel for use in the performance of their official duties or under DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285). In all other cases a disclosure accounting is required even if the individual has consented to the disclosure of the information pertaining to him or her.

(2) Use any system of disclosure accounting that will provide the necessary disclosure information. As a minimum, disclosure accounting will contain the date of the disclosure, a description of the information released, the purpose of the disclosure, the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure was made. When numerous similar records are released (such as testimonial of payroll checks to a bank), identify the category of records disclosed and include the data required in some form that can be used to construct an accounting disclosure record for individual records if required. Retain disclosure accounting records for 5 years after the disclosure or the life of the record, whichever is longer.

(3) Make available to the individual to whom the record pertains all disclosure accountings except when the disclosure has been made to a law enforcement activity and the law enforcement activity has requested that disclosure not be made, or the system of records has been exempted from the requirement to furnish the disclosure accounting. If disclosure accountings are not maintained with the record and the individual requests access to the accounting, prepare a listing of all disclosures and provide this to the individual upon request.

(b) Collecting personal information.

(1) Collect to the greatest extent practicable personal information directly from the individual to whom it pertains if the information may be used in making any determination about the rights, privileges, or benefits of the individual under any Federal program.

(2) When an individual is requested to furnish personal information about himself or herself for inclusion in a system of records, a Privacy Act Statement is required regardless of the medium used to collect the information, forms, personal interviews, stylized formats, telephonic interviews, or other methods. The statement enables the individual to make an informed decision whether to provide the information requested. If the personal information solicited is not to be incorporated into a system of records, the statement need not be given. The Privacy Act Statement shall be concise, current, and easily understood. It must include:

(i) The specific Federal statute or Executive Order that authorizes collection of the requested information.

(ii) The principal purpose or purposes for which the information is to be used.

(iii) The routine uses that will be made of the information.
(iv) Whether providing the information is voluntary or mandatory.
(v) The effects on the individual if he or she chooses not to provide the requested information.
(3) The Privacy Act Statement may appear as a public notice (sign or poster), conspicuously displayed in the area where the information is collected, such as at check-cashing facilities or identification photograph facilities. The individual normally is not required to sign the Privacy Act Statement. Provide the individual a written copy of the Privacy Act Statement upon request. This must be done regardless of the method chosen to furnish the initial advisement.
(4) Include in the Privacy Act Statement specifically whether furnishing the requested personal data is mandatory or voluntary. A requirement to furnish personal data is mandatory only when a Federal statute, Executive order, regulation, or other lawful order specifically imposes a duty on the individual to provide the information sought, and the individual is subject to a penalty if he or she fails to provide the requested information. If providing the information is only a condition of a prerequisite to granting a benefit or privilege and the individual has the option of requesting the benefit or privilege, providing the information is always voluntary. However, the loss or denial of the privilege, benefit, or entitlement sought may be listed as a consequence of not furnishing the requested information.
(5) It is unlawful for any Federal, state, or local government agency to deny an individual any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law because the individual refuses to provide his or her social security number (SSN). However, if a Federal statute requires that the SSN be furnished or if the SSN is required to verify the identity of the individual in a system of records that was established and in use before January 1, 1975, and the SSN was required as an identifier by a statute or regulation adopted before that date, this restriction does not apply.
(i) When an individual is requested to provide his or her SSN, he or she must be told:
(A) The uses that will be made of the SSN.
(B) The statute, regulation, or rule authorizing the solicitation of the SSN.
(C) Whether providing the SSN is voluntary or mandatory.
(ii) Include in any systems notice for any system of records that contains SSNs a statement indicating the authority for maintaining the SSN and the source of the SSNs in the system. If the SSN is obtained directly from the individual indicate whether this is voluntary or mandatory.
(iii) Upon entrance into Military Service of civilian employment with DoD, individuals are asked to provide their SSNs. The SSN becomes the service or employment number for the individual and is used to establish personnel, financial, medical, and other official records. After an individual has provided his or her SSN for the purpose of establishing an identity, if thePrivacy Act Privacy Act Statement is not required if the individual is only requested to furnish or verify the SSNs for identification purposes in connection with the normal use of his or her records. However, if the SSN is to be written down and retained for any purpose by the requesting official, the individual must be provided a Privacy Act Statement.
(6) DLAR-76D.1, Forms Management Program, provides guidance on administrative requirements for Privacy Act Statements used with DLAR forms. Forms subject to the Privacy Act issued by other Federal agencies have a Privacy Act Statement attached or included. Always ensure that the statement prepared by the originating agency is adequate for the purpose for which the form will be used by the DoD activity. If the Privacy Act Statement provided is inadequate, the activity concerned will prepare a new statement of a supplement to the existing statement before using the form. Forms issued by agencies not subject to the Privacy Act (state, municipal, and other local agencies) do not contain Privacy Act Statements. Before using a form prepared by such agencies to collect personal data subject to this part, an appropriate Privacy Act Statement must be added.
(i) Systems of records. (1) To be subject to this part, a “system of records” must consist of records retrieved by the name of an individual or some other personal identifier and be under the control of a DLAR activity. Records in a group of records that may be retrieved by a name or personal identifier are not covered by this part. The records must be, in fact, retrieved by name or other personal identifier to become a system of records for the purpose of this part.
(2) Retain in a system of records only that personal information which is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose required by a Federal statute or an Executive Order. The existence of a statute or Executive order mandating that maintenance of a system of records does not abrogate the responsibility to ensure that the information in the system of records is relevant and necessary.
(3) Do not maintain any records describing an individual’s or her rights guaranteed by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution unless expressly authorized by Federal statute or the individual. First Amendment rights include, but are not limited to, freedom of religion, freedom of political beliefs, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right to assemble, and the right to petition.
(4) Maintain all personal information used to make any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to ensure fairness to the individual in making any such determination. Before disseminating any personal information from a system of records to any person outside DoD, other than a Federal agency, make reasonable efforts to ensure that the information to be disclosed is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete for the purpose it is being maintained.
(5) Establish effective administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to ensure that the records in every system of records are protected from unauthorized alteration or disclosure and that their confidentiality is protected. Protect the records against reasonably anticipated threats or hazards. Tailor safeguards specifically to the vulnerabilities of the system and the type of records in the system. The sensitivity of the personal information stored, the storage medium used and, to a degree, the number of records maintained.
(i) Treat all unclassified records that contain personal information that normally would be withheld from the public as if they were designated “For Official Use Only” and safeguard them in accordance with the standards established by DLAR 5400.14 (32 CFR part 1285) even if they are not marked “For Official Use Only.”
(ii) Special, administrative, physical, and technical procedures are required to protect data that are stored or being processed temporarily in an automated data processing (ADP) system or in a word processing activity to protect it against threats unique to those environments (see DLAR 5200.1, ADP Security Manual, and Appendix D of this part).

Privacy Act Rules

(6) Dispose of records containing personal data so as to prevent inadvertent compromise. Disposal methods such as tearing, burning, melting, chemical decomposition, pulping, pulverizing, shredding, or mutilation are considered adequate if the personal data is rendered unrecognizable or beyond reconstruction.

(ii) The transfer of large quantities of records containing personal data (for example, computer cards and printouts) in bulk to a disposal activity, such as the Defense Property Disposal Office, is not a release of personal information under this part. The sheer volume of such transfers makes it difficult or impossible to identify readily specific individual records.

(ii) When disposing of or destroying large quantities of records containing personal information, care must be exercised to ensure that the bulk of the records is maintained so as prevent specific records from being readily identified. If bulk is maintained, no special procedures are required.

(7) When DLA contracts for the operation or maintenance of a system of records or a portion of a system of records by a contractor, the record system or the portion of the record system affected are considered to be maintained by DLA and are subject to this part. The activity concerned is responsible for applying the requirements of this part to the contractor. The contractor and its employees are to be considered employees of DLA for purposes of the sanction provisions of the Privacy Act during the performance of the contract. See the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), section 24.000 (48 CFR chapter 1).

(i) System Notices. (1) A notice of the existence of each system of records must be published in the Federal Register. While system notices are not subject to formal rulemaking procedures, advance public notice must be given before an activity may begin to collect personal information or use a new system of records. The notice procedures require that:

(i) The system notice describes the contents of the record system and the routine uses for which the information in the system may be released.

(ii) The public be given 30 days to comment on any proposed routine uses before implementation.

(iii) The notice contains the date on which the system will become effective.

(2) Appendix A of this part discusses the specific elements required in a system notice. DLAH 5400.1 contains system notices published by DLA.

(3) In addition to system notices, reports are required for new and altered systems of records. The criteria of these reports are outlined in appendixes B and C of this part. No report is required for amendments to existing systems which do not meet the criteria for altered record systems.

(iv) System managers shall evaluate the information to be included in each new system before establishing the system and evaluate periodically the information contained in each existing system of records for relevancy and necessity. Such a review will also occur when a system notice amendment or alteration is prepared. Consider the following:

(i) The relationship of each item of information retained and collected to the purpose for which the system is maintained.

(ii) The specific impact on the purpose or mission of not collecting each category of information contained in the system.

(iii) The possibility of meeting the informational requirements through use of information not individually identifiable or through other techniques, such as sampling.

(iv) The length of time each item of personal information must be retained.

(v) The cost of maintaining the information.

(vi) The necessity and relevancy of the information to the purpose for which it was collected.

(5) Systems notices and reports of new and altered systems will be submitted to DLA-XA as required.

(k) Exemptions. The Director, DLA will designate the DLA records which are to be exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. DLA-XA will publish in the Federal Register information specifying the name of each designated system, the specific provisions of the Privacy Act from which each system is to be exempted, the reasons for each exemption, and the reason for each exemption of the record system.

(1) General exemptions. To qualify for a general exemption, as defined in the Privacy Act, the system of records must be maintained by a system manager who performs as his/her principal function any activity pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws, including police efforts to prevent, control, or reduce crime or to apprehend criminals, and the activities or prosecutors, courts, correctional, probation, pardon, or parole authorities. Such system of records must consist of:

(i) Information compiled for the purpose of identifying individual criminal offenders and alleged offenders and containing only identifying data and notations of arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, and parole, and probation status.

(ii) Information compiled for the purpose of a criminal investigation, including reports of informants and investigators, and associated with an identifiable individual.

(iii) Reports identifiable to an individual compiled at any stage of the process of enforcement of the criminal laws from arrest or indictment through release from supervision.

(2) Specific exemption. To qualify for a specific exemption, as defined by the Privacy Act, the systems of records must be:

(i) Specifically authorized under criteria established by an Executive Order to be kept classified in the interest of national defense or foreign policy and are in fact properly classified pursuant to such Executive Order.

(ii) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material covered under a general exemption. However, an individual will not be denied access to information which has been used to deny him/her a right or privilege unless disclosure would reveal a source who furnished information to the Government under a promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. For investigations made after September 27, 1975, the identity of the source may be treated as confidential only if based on the expressed guarantee that the identity would not be revealed.

(iii) Maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals protected pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056.

(iv) Used only to generate aggregate statistical data or for other similarly evaluative or analytic purposes, and which are not used to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals except for the disclosure of a census record permitted by 13 U.S.C. 8.

(v) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment.

Military Service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to... the Government under an express promise that the source would be held in confidence, or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(vi) Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service, the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or elimination process.

(vii) Evaluation material used to determine potential for promotion in the Military Services, but only the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. System managers will specify those categories of individuals for whom pledges of confidentiality may be made when obtaining information on an individual's suitability for promotion.

(viii) Exemption rules for DLA systems of records are published in appendix H of this part.

1. Matching Program Procedures. The OMB has issued special guidelines to be followed in programs that match the personal records in the computerized data bases of two or more Federal agencies by computer (see appendix E). These guidelines are intended to strike a balance between the interest of the Government in maintaining the integrity of Federal programs and the need to protect individual privacy expectations. They do not authorize matching programs as such and each matching program must be justified individually in accordance with the OMB guidelines.

2. For all requests for matching programs to include necessary routine use amendments and analysis and proposed matching program reports to DLA-XA. Changes to existing matching programs shall be processed in the same manner as a new matching program report.

3. For the purpose of the OMB guidelines, DoD and all DoD Components are considered a single agency. Before initiating a matching program using only the records of two or more DoD activities, notify DLA-XA that the match is to occur. Further information may be requested from the activity proposing the match.

4. System managers shall review annually each system of records to determine if records from the system are being used in matching programs and whether the OMB Guidelines have been complied with.

§ 323.6 Forms and reports.

DLA activities may be required to provide data under reporting requirements established by the Defense Privacy Office and DLA-XA. Any report established shall be assigned Report Control Symbol DD-COMP(A) 1797.

Appendix A—Instructions for Preparation of System Notices

A. System identification. See DLAH 5400.1.

B. System name. The name of the system reasonably identifies the general purpose of the system and, if possible, the general categories of individuals involved. Use acronyms only parenthetically following the title or any portion thereof, such as, “Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS).” Do not use acronyms that are not commonly known unless they are preceded by an explanation. The system name may not exceed 55 character positions including punctuation and spacing.

C. System location 1. For systems maintained in a single location provided the exact office name, organizational identity, and address routing symbol. For geographically or organizationally decentralized systems, specify each level of organization or element that maintains a segment of the system. For automated data systems with central computer facility and input/output terminals at several geographically separated location, list each location by category.

2. When multiple locations are identified by type of organization, the system location may indicate that official mailing addresses are contained in an address directory published as an appendix to DLAH 5400.1. DLA-XA will obtain information concerning format requirements for preparation of an address directory from the 1st Information Systems Group (1ISG), Room 3A-1066, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20330-6345.

3. If no address directory is used or the addresses in the directory are incomplete, the address of each location where a segment of the record system is maintained must appear under the “System Location” caption.

Copies may be obtained, if needed, from the Defense Logistics Agency, ATTN: DLA-XP, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304.

Copies may be obtained, if needed, from the Defense Logistics Agency, ATTN: DLA-XP, Cameron Station, Alexandria, VA 22304.
as "to other Federal agencies as required" and "to any other appropriate Federal agency."

1. Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records. This provision is subdivided into four parts:

a. Storage. Indicate the medium in which the records are maintained. For example, a system may be "automated, maintained on magnetic tapes or disks," "manual, maintained in paper files," or "hybrid, maintained in a combination of paper and automated form." Storage does not refer to the container or facility in which the records are kept.

2. Retrieval. Specify how the records are retrieved by name, number and/or title, and provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the system. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or activity official to obtain access procedures. Do not assume that the system manager will exercise discretion in granting or denying access to an individual. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the system. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or activity official to obtain access procedures. Do not repeat the addresses listed in DLAR 5400.1, but refer the individual to the person to whom they should be directed.

3. Safeguards. List the categories of DLA personnel having immediate access to these records and the safeguards in place that protect the system from unauthorized access. Do not describe safeguards such as storage in safes, vaults, locked cabinets or rooms, use of guards, visitors registers, personnel screening, or computer "fail-safe" systems software. Describe safeguards in such detail in terms of compromise system security.

4. Retention and disposal. Indicate how long the records is retained when appropriate, state the length of time the records are maintained by the activity, when they are transferred to a Federal Records Center, and the type of the system. Describe the procedures used to destroy or dispose of records, and indicate whether these procedures are approved by the Federal Records Center, any other agencies, or the National Archives and Records Administration. DLA references the State Office of Archives and Records Management in determining the appropriate disposition and disposal procedures.

5. System manager or managers and addresses. List the name and address of the official responsible for the management of the system. If the title of the system official is unknown, list the local commander or office head as the system manager. If more than one person is involved, list the title of each category of officials responsible for the system or a segment thereof.

6. Do not include business or duty addresses if they are listed in DLAR 5400.1.

K. Notification proceedings. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(G) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.

2. For all nonexempt systems, describe how an individual may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

3. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(G) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.

b. The specific information required to determine if there is a record of the individual in the system, and provide a description of the procedure under which the individual may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

c. Identification of the offices through which the individual may obtain access. Provide a description of the procedures under which the individual may obtain access to the system.

d. A description of any proof of identity required. Provide a description of the procedures under which the individual will be required to provide proof of identity.

4. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to an activity official who shall provide this data to him or her.

I. Record access procedures. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.

2. For all nonexempt record systems, describe the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the records pertaining to them in the system. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or activity official to obtain access procedures. Do not repeat the addresses listed in DLAR 5400.1, but refer the individual to the person to whom they should be directed.

M. Contesting record procedures. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(H) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.

2. For all nonexempt record systems, describe the procedures under which individuals may obtain access to the record pertaining to them in the system. When appropriate, the individual may be referred to the system manager or activity official to obtain access procedures. Do not repeat the addresses listed in DLAR 5400.1, but refer the individual to the person to whom they should be directed.

N. Record source categories. 1. If the record system has been exempted from subsection (e)(4)(I) of the Privacy Act, so indicate.

2. For all nonexempt systems, list the sources of the information in the system. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

O. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

P. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

Q. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

R. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

S. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

T. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

U. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

V. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

W. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

X. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

Y. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

Z. System exempted from certain provisions of the Privacy Act. 1. If no exemption has been claimed for the system, indicate "None." If there is an exemption claimed, indicate specifically under which subsection of the Privacy Act is claimed. Provide a description of the procedures under which individuals may determine if there is a record of the individual in the system.

Appendix B—Criteria for New and Altered Record Systems

A. Criteria for a new record system. A new system of records is one for which there has been no system notice published in the Federal Register. If a notice for a system of records has been canceled or deleted, before reinstating or resuming the system, a new system notice must be published in the Federal Register.

B. Criteria for an altered record system. A system is considered altered whenever one of the following actions occurs or is proposed:

1. A significant change in the title, system number or type of individuals about whom records are maintained.

a. Only changes that alter significantly the character and purpose of the records system are considered alterations.

b. Increases in numbers of individuals due to normal growth are not considered alterations unless they truly alter the character and purpose of the system.

c. Increases that change significantly the proportion of population covered (for example, expansion of a system of records covering a single group of personnel to include all of DLA enlisted personnel would be considered an alteration.)

d. A reduction in the number of individuals covered is not an alteration, but only an amendment.

e. All changes that add new categories of individuals to system coverage require a change to the "Categories of Records in System" caption of the notice and may require changes to the "Purpose(s)") caption.

2. An expansion in the types or categories of information maintained.

a. The addition of any new category of records not described under the "Categories of Records in System" caption is considered an alteration.

b. Adding a new data element which is clearly within the scope of the categories of records described in the existing notice is an amendment.

c. All changes under this criterion require a change to the "Retrievability" caption of the system notice.

d. If the records are no longer retrieved by name or personal identifier, cancel the system notice.

3. An alteration in the manner in which the records are organized or the manner in which the records are indexed and retrieved.

a. The change must alter the nature of use or scope of the records involved (for example, combining records systems in a reorganization).

b. Any change under this criteria requires a change in the "Retrievability" caption of the system notice.

c. If the records are no longer retrieved by name or personal identifier, cancel the system notice.

4. A change in the purpose for which the information in the system is used.

a. The new purpose must not be compatible with the existing purposes for which the system is maintained or a use which would not reasonably be expected to be an alteration.

b. If the use is compatible and reasonably expected, there is no change in purpose and no alteration occurs.

c. Any change under this criterion requires a change in the "Purpose") caption and may require a change in the "Authority for maintenance of the system" caption.

5. Changes that alter the computer environment (such as changes to equipment configuration, software, or procedures) so as to create the potential for greater or easier access.
a. Increasing the number of offices with direct access is an alteration.
b. Software releases, such as operating systems and system utilities that provide for easier access are considered alterations.
c. The addition of an on-line capability to a previously batch-oriented system is an alteration.
d. The addition of peripheral devices such tape devices, disk devices, card readers, printers, and author devices to an existing ADP system constitute an amendment if system security is preserved.
e. Changes to existing equipment configuration with on-line capability need not be considered alterations to the system if:
(1) The change does not alter the present security posture.
(2) The addition of terminals does not extend the capacity of the current operating system and existing security is preserved.
(3) The connecting of two or more formerly independent automated systems or networks together creating a potential for greater access is an alteration.
g. Any change under this caption requires a change to the "Storage" caption element of the systems notice.
C. Reports of new and altered systems.
Submit a report of a new or altered system to DLA-AX before collecting information and for using a new system or altering an existing system.
D. Time restrictions on the operation of a new or altered system. 1. All time periods begin from the date OSD signs the transmittal letters on the reports to OMB and Congress.
The specific time limits are:
a. Sixty days must elapse before collection forms or formal instructions pertaining to the system may be issued.
b. Sixty days must elapse before the system may become operational.
c. Sixty days must elapse before any public issuance of a Request for Proposal or Invitation to Bid for a new ADP or telecommunication system.
Note—Requests for delegation of proprietary may be submitted to the General Services Administration during the 60 days' waiting period, but these will include language that the Privacy Act reporting criteria have been reviewed and that a system report is required for such procurement.
2. Normally 30 days must elapse before publication in the Federal Register of the notice of a new or altered system and the preamble to the Federal Register notice must reflect the date the transmittal letters to OMB and Congress were signed by OSD.
3. Do not operate a system of records until the waiting periods have expired.
E. Outside review of new and altered systems reports. If no objections are received within 30 days of a submission to the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the Director, OMB, of a new or altered system report; it is presumed that the new or altered systems have been approved as submitted.
I. Waiver of time restrictions. 1. The OMB may authorize a Federal agency to begin operation of a system of records before the expiration of time limits described above.
When seeking such a waiver, include in the letter of transmittal to DLA-AX an explanation why a delay of 60 days in establishing the system of records would not be in the public interest. The transmittal must include:
a. How the public interest will be affected adversely if the established time limits are followed.
b. Why earlier notice was not provided.
2. Under no circumstances will the routine uses for a new or altered system be implemented before 30 days have elapsed after publication of the system notice containing the routine uses in the Federal Register. This period cannot be waived.
Appendix C—Instructions for Preparation of Reports to New or Altered Systems
The report on a new or altered system will consist of a transmittal letter, a narrative statement, and include supporting documentation.
A. Transmittal Letter. The transmittal letter shall include any request for waivers.
The narrative statement will be attached.
B. Narrative Statement. The narrative statement is typed in double space on standard bond paper. The statement includes:
1. System identification and name. This caption sets forth the identification and name of the system.
2. Responsible official. The name, title, address, and telephone number of the official responsible for the report and to whom inquiries and comments about the report may be directed by Congress, the Office of Management and Budget, or Defense Privacy Office.
3. Purpose of the system or nature of the change proposed. Describe the purpose of the new system. For an altered system, describe the nature of the change being proposed.
4. Authority for the system. See enclosure 1 of this part.
5. Number of individuals. The approximate number of individuals about whom records are to be maintained.
6. Information on First Amendment activities. Describe any information to be kept on the individual's First Amendment rights and the basis for maintaining it.
7. Measures to ensure information accuracy. If the system is to be used to make determinations about the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals, describe the measures being established to ensure the accuracy, currency, relevance, and completeness of the information used for these purposes.
8. Other measures to ensure system security. Describe the steps taken to minimize the risk of unauthorized access to the system. A more detailed assessment of security risks and specific administrative, technical, and physical safeguards will be available for review upon request.
9. Relationship to state and local government activities. Describe the relationship of the system to state or local government activities that are the sources, recipients, or users of the information in the system.
C. Supporting Documentation. Item 10 of the narrative is captioned Supporting Documents. A positive statement for this caption is essential for those enclosures that are not required to be enclosed. For example,
"No changes to the existing DLA procedural or exemption rules (32 CFR part 323) are required for this proposed system." List in numerical sequence only those enclosures that are actually furnished. The following are typical enclosures that may be required:
1. For a new system, an advance copy of the system notice which is proposed for publication; for an altered system an advance copy of the notice reflecting the specific changes proposed.
2. An advance copy of any proposed exemption rule if the new or altered system is to be exempted. If there is no exemption, so state in the narrative.
3. Any other supporting documentation that may not be pertinent or helpful in understanding the need for the system or clarifying its intended use. While not required, such documentation, when available, is helpful in evaluating the new or altered system.

and amended at 56 FR 57803, Nov. 14, 1991]
Appendix D—Word Processing Center (WPC)
Safeguards
A. Minimum Standards of Protection. All personal data processed using word processing equipment will be afforded the standards of protection required by this regulation. The special considerations discussed in this enclosure are primarily for Word Processing Centers (WPCs) operating independent of the custodianship of system. However, managers of word processing systems are encouraged to consider and adopt, when appropriate, the special considerations described. WPCs that are not independent of a customer’s function are not required to prepare formal written risk assessments.
B. WPC Information Flow. In analyzing procedures required to safeguard adequately personal information in a WPC, the basic elements of WPC information flow and controls must be considered. These are:
information receipt, information processing, information return, information storage and filing. WPCs do not control information acquisition or its ultimate use by the customers and, therefore, these are not addressed.
C. Safeguarding Information During Receipt. 1. The word processing manager will establish procedures:
(a) That require each customer who requests that information subject to this DLR be processed to identify specifically that information to the WPC personnel. This may be done by:
(1) Providing a check-off type entry on the WPC work requests.
(b) Requiring that the WPC work requests be stamped with a special legend, or that a special notation be made on the work requests.
(c) Predesignating specifically a class of documents as coming within the provisions of this DLR (such as, all officer effectiveness reports, all recall rosters, and all medical protocols).
(d) Using a special cover sheet both to alert the WPC personnel as to the type information, and to protect the document during transmission.

5. Requiring an oral warning on all dictation.

6. Any other procedures that ensure the WPC personnel are alerted to the fact that personal data subject to this DLR is to be processed.

b. To ensure that the operators or other WPC personnel who receive data for processing not identified as being under the provisions of this DLR, but that appear to be personal, promptly call the information to the attention of the WPC supervisor or the customer.

c. To ensure that any request for the processing of personal data which the customer has not identified as being in a system of record, and that appears to meet the criteria set forth in this regulation, is called to the attention of the appropriate supervisory personnel and system manager.

2. The WPC supervisor will ensure that personal information is not inadvertently compromised within the WPC.

D. Safeguarding Information During Processing. 1. Each WPC supervisor will establish internal safeguards that will protect personal data from compromise while it is being processed.

2. Physical safeguards may include:
   a. Controls on individual access to the center.
   b. Machine configurations that reduce external access to the information being processed, or arrangements that alert the operator to the presence of others.
   c. Using certain specific machines to process personal data.
   d. Any other physical safeguards, to include special technical arrangements that will protect the data during processing.

3. Other safeguards may include:
   a. Using only certain selected operators to process personal data.
   b. Processing personal data only at certain times during the day without the WPC manager's specific authorization.
   c. Using only certain tapes or diskettes to process and store personal data.
   d. Using continuous tapes for dictation of personal data.
   e. Requiring all WPC copies of documents to be marked specifically so as to prevent inadvertent compromise.
   f. Returning extra copies and mistakes to the custodian with the product.
   g. Disposing of waste containing personal data in a special manner.
   h. Any other local procedures that provide adequate protection to the data being processed.

E. Safeguarding Information During Return. The WPC shall protect the data until it is returned to the customer or is placed into a formal distribution channel. In conjunction with the appropriate administrative support personnel and the WPC customers, the WPC manager will establish procedures that protect the information from the time word processing is completed until it is returned to the customer. Safeguarding procedures may include:

1. Releasing products only to specifically identified individuals.
2. Using sealed envelopes to transmit products to the customer.
3. Using special cover sheets to protect products similar to the one discussed in above.
4. Hand-carrying products to the customers.
5. Using special messengers to return the products.
6. Any other procedures that adequately protect products from compromise while they are awaiting return or being returned to the customer.

F. Safeguarding During Storage. The WPC manager shall ensure that all personal data retained in the center for any purpose (including samples) are protected properly. Safeguarding procedures may include:

1. Marking will hard copies retained with special legends or designations.
2. Storing media containing personal data in separate files or areas.
3. Marking the storage containers for media containing personal data with special legends or notations.
4. Restricting the reuse of media used to process personal data or erasing the media before reuse.
5. Establishing special criteria for the WPC retention of media used to store and process personal data.
6. Returning the media to the customer for retention with the file copies of the finished products.
7. Discouraging, when practical, the long-term storage of personal data in any form within the WPC.
8. Any other filing or storage procedures that safeguard adequately any personal information retained or filed within the WPC.

G. Risk Assessment for WPCs. 1. Each WPC manager will ensure that a formal, written risk assessment is prepared for each WPC that processes personal information subject to this regulation. The assessment will address the areas discussed in this enclosure, as well as any special risks that the WPC location, configuration, or organization may present to the compromise or alteration of personal data being processed or stored.

2. A risk assessment will be conducted at least every 3 years, or whenever there is a change of equipment, equipment configuration, WPC location, WPC configuration or modification of the WPC facilities that either increases or decreases the likelihood or compromise of personal data.

3. Copies of the risk assessment will be retained by the WPC manager and made available to appropriate inspectors, as well as to personnel studying equipment for facility upgrading of personal data.

H. Special Considerations in WPC Design and Modification. Procedures will be established to ensure that all personnel involved in the design of WPCs or the acquisition of word processing equipment are aware of the special considerations required when processing personal data subject to this DLR.

Appendix E—OMB Guidelines for Matching Programs

A. Purpose. These guidelines supplement and will be used in conjunction with OMB Guidelines on the Administration of the Privacy Act of 1974, issued on July 1, 1976, and supplemented on November 21, 1975. They replace earlier guidance on conducting computerized matched programs issued on March 30, 1979. They are intended to help agencies relate the procedural requirements of the Privacy Act to the requirements of computerized matching. They are designed to address the concern expressed by the Congress in the Privacy Act of 1974 that "the increasing use of computers and sophisticated information technology, while essential to the efficient operation of the Government, has greatly magnified the harm to individual privacy that can occur from any collection, maintenance, use, or dissemination of personal information." These guidelines do not authorize activities that are not permitted by law, nor do they prohibit activities expressly required to be performed by law. Complying with these guidelines, however, does not relieve a Federal agency of the obligation to comply with the provisions of the Privacy Act, including any provisions not cited in these guidelines.

B. Scope. These guidelines apply to all agencies subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a) and to all matching programs: 1. Performed by a Federal agency, whether the personal records used in the match are Federal or nonfederal.

2. For which a Federal agency discloses any personal records for use in a matching program performed by any other Federal agency or any nonfederal organization.

C. Effective Date. These guidelines were effective on May 11, 1982.

D. Definitions. For the purpose of the Guidelines, all the terms defined in the Privacy Act of 1974 apply.

1. Personal Record. Any information pertaining to an individual that is stored in an automated system of records; for example, a data base which contains information about individuals that is retrieved by name or some other personal identifier.

2. Matching Program. A procedure in which a computer is used to compare two or more automated systems of records or a system of records with a set of nonfederal records to find individuals who are common to more than one system or set. The procedure includes all of the steps associated with the match, including obtaining the records to be matched, actual use of the computer, administrative and investigative action on the hits, and disposition of the personal records maintained in connection with the match. It should be noted that a single matching program may involve several matches among a number of participants. Watching programs do not include the following:

a. Matches which compare a substantial number of records, such as, comparison of the Department of Education's defaulted student loan data base with the Office of Personnel Management's Federal employee data base would be covered; comparison of six individual student loan defaulters with the OPM file would not be covered.

b. Checks on specific individuals to verify data in an application for benefits done reasonably soon after the application is received.
c. Checks on specific individuals based on information which raises questions about an individual’s eligibility for benefits or payments done reasonably soon after the information is received.
d. Matches done to produce aggregate statistical data without any personal identifiers.
e. Matches done to support any research or statistical project when the specific data are not to be used to make decisions about the rights, benefits, or privileges of specific individuals.
f. Matches done by an agency using its own records.

a. Source Agency. The Federal agency which discloses records from a system of records to be used in the match. Note that in some circumstances a source agency may be the instigator and ultimate beneficiary of the matching program, as when an agency lacking complete resources uses another agency to perform the match. The disclosure of records to the matching agency and any later disclosure of "hits" (by either the matching or the source agencies) must be done in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (b) of the Privacy Act.

b. Matching Agency. A source agency or an entity.

5. Hit. The identification, through a matching program, of a specific individual.

E. Guidelines for Agencies Participating in Matching Programs. Agencies should acquire and disclose matching records and conduct matching programs in accordance with the provisions of this section and the Privacy Act.

1. Disclosing Personal Records for Matching Programs.

a. To another Federal agency. Source agencies are responsible for determining whether or not to disclose personal records from their systems and for making sure they meet the necessary Privacy Act disclosure prerequisites when they do. Among the factors source agencies should consider are:
   (1) Legal authority for the match.
   (2) Purpose and description of the match.
   (3) Description of the records to be matched.
   (4) Whether the record subjects have consented to the match; or whether disclosure of records for the match would be compatible with the purpose for which the records were originally collected; that is, whether disclosure under "a routine use" would be appropriate; whether the soliciting agency is seeking the records for a legitimate law enforcement activity—whichever is appropriate: or any other provision of the Privacy Act under which disclosure may be made.
   (5) Description of additional information which may be subsequently disclosed in relation to "hits."
   (6) Subsequent actions expected of the source (for example, verification of the identity of the "hit," or follow-up with individuals who are "hits").
   (7) Safeguards to be afforded the records involved, including disposition.

b. If the agency is satisfied that disclosure of the records would not violate its responsibilities under the Privacy Act, it may proceed to make the disclosure to the matching agency. It should ensure that only the minimum information necessary to conduct the match is disclosed. If disclosure is to be made pursuant to a "routine use" (Section b.3. of the Privacy Act), it should ensure that the system of records contains such a use, or it should publish a routine use notice in the Federal Register. The agency should also be sure to maintain an accounting of the disclosure pursuant to Section (c) of the Privacy Act.

c. To a nonfederal entity. Before disclosing records to a nonfederal entity for a matching program to be carried out by that entity, a source agency should, in addition to all of the considerations in subparagraph a. above, also make reasonable efforts, pursuant to Section (e)(6) of the Privacy Act, to assure that such records are accurate, complete, timely, and relevant for agency purposes.

2. Written Agreements. Before disclosing to either a Federal or non-Federal entity, the source agency should require the matching entity to agree in writing to certain conditions governing the use of the matched records, such as an example, that the matching file will remain the property of the source agency and be returned at the end of the matching program (or destroyed as appropriate); that the file will be used and accessed only to match the file or files previously agreed to; that it will not be used to extract information concerning "non-hit" individuals for any purpose, and that it will not be duplicated or disseminated within or outside the matching agency unless authorized in writing by the source agency.

3. Performing Matching Programs.

a. Matching agencies should maintain reasonable administrative, technical, and physical security safeguards on all files involved in the matching program.

b. Matching agencies should ensure that they have appropriate systems of records including those containing "hits," and that such systems and any routine uses have been appropriately noticed in the Federal Register and reported to the Congress.

4. Disposition of Records—

a. Matching agencies will return or destroy source matching files (by mutual agreement) immediately after the match.

b. Records relating to this will be kept only so long as is necessary, either criminal or administrative, is active, and will be disposed of in accordance with the requirements of the Privacy Act and the Federal Records Act.

5. Publication Requirements—

a. Agencies, before disclosing records outside the agency, will publish appropriate "routine use" notices in the Federal Register, if necessary.

b. If the match program will result in the creation of a new or the substantial alteration of an existing system of records, the agency involved should publish the appropriate Federal Register notice and submit the requisite report to OMB and the Congress pursuant to OMB Circular No. A-108.

b. Reports—

a. As close to the initiation of the matching program as possible, matching agencies will publish in the Federal Register a brief public notice describing the matching program. The notice should be—

1. The legal authority under which the match is being conducted.

2. A description of the matching program including whether the program is one time or continuing, the organizations involved, the purpose or purposes for which the program is being conducted, and the procedures to be used in matching and following up on the "hits."

3. A complete description of the personal records to be matched, including the source or sources, system of records identifying data, date or dates and page number of the most recent Federal Register full text publication when appropriate.

4. The projected start and ending dates of the program.

5. The security safeguards to be used to protect against unauthorized access or disclosure of the personal records.

6. Plans for disposition of the source records and "hits."

7. Agencies should send a copy of this notice to the Congress and to OMB at the same time it is sent to the Federal Register.

a. Agencies should report to OMB on the performance of matching programs. The reports will be solicited by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs and will be focused on the protection of individual privacy and Government's effective use of information technology. Reporting instructions will be disseminated to the agencies as part of either the reports required by paragraph (p) of the Privacy Act, or section 3514 of Pub. L. 96-511.

b. Use of Contractors. Matching programs should, as far as practicable, be conducted "in-house" by Federal agencies using agency personnel, rather than by contract. When contractors are used:

a. The matching agency should, consistent with paragraph (m) of the Privacy Act, cause the requirements of that Privacy Act to be applied to the contractor's performance of the matching program. The contract shall include the Privacy Act clauses required by Federal Personnel Regulation Amendment 155 (41 CFR 1-1337-5).

b. The terms of the contract shall include appropriate privacy and security provisions consistent with policies, regulations, standards, and guidelines issued by OMB, GSA, and the Department of Commerce.

c. The terms of the contract should preclude the contractor from using, disclosing, copying, or retaining records associated with the matching program for the contractor's own use.
d. Contractor personnel involved in the matching program shall be made explicitly aware of their obligations under the Privacy Act and of these guidelines, agency rules, and any special safeguards in relation to each specific match performed.
e. Any disclosures of records by the agency to the contractor should be made pursuant to a "routine use" (5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(3)).

f. Implementation and Oversight. OMB will oversee the implementation of these guidelines and will interpret and advise agency proposals and actions within their is necessary because certain record systems not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein may contain isolated items of information which have been properly classified.

a. ID: S153.10 DLA-I (Specific Exemption)
2. Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the following provisions of title 5, United States Code, section 552a:
(c)(3); (d); and (e)(1).
4. Reasons: The investigative reports are used by appropriate Security Officers and Commanders or other designated officials as a basis for determining a persons eligibility for access to information classified in the interests of national defense.

b. ID: S160.50 DLA-I (Specific Exemption)
2. Exemption: This system of records is exempted from the following provisions of the Title 5, United States Code, section 552a:
(c)(3); (d); and (e)(1).
4. Reasons: Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by this component relating to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with orderly investigations, with the orderly administration of justice, and possibly enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension.
Disclosure of this information could result in the concealment, destruction or fabrication of evidence and jeopardize the safety and well being of informants, witnesses and their families, law enforcement personnel and their families. Disclosure of this information could also reveal and render ineffectual investigative techniques, sources and methods used by this component and could result in the invasion of privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation. Investigatory material is exempt to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished the information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or prior to September 27, 1975 under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. This exemption will protect the identities of certain sources who would be otherwise unwilling to provide information to the Government. The exemption of the individual's right of access to his records and the reasons therefore necessitate the exemptions of this system of records from the requirements of the other cited provisions.

PART 505—THE ARMY PRIVACY PROGRAM

Sec. 505.1 General Information.
Sec. 505.2 Individual rights of access and amendment.
Sec. 505.3 Disclosure of personal information to other agencies and third parties.
Executive Agent, or otherwise has responsibility for providing fiscal, logistical, or administrative support, will adhere to the policies and procedures in this regulation.

(4) Commander, Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES), is responsible for the supervision and execution of the privacy program within that command pursuant to this regulation.

(e) Policy. Army Policy concerning the privacy rights of individuals and the Army’s responsibilities for compliance with operational requirements established by the Privacy Act are as follows:

(1) Protect, as required by the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a), as amended, the privacy of individuals from unwarranted intrusion. Individuals covered by this protection are living citizens of the United States and aliens lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

(2) Collect only the personal information about an individual that is legally authorized and necessary to support Army operations. Disclose this information only as authorized by the Privacy Act and this regulation.

(3) Keep only personal information that is timely, accurate, complete, and relevant to the purpose for which it was collected.

(4) Safeguard personal information to prevent unauthorized use, access, disclosure, alteration, or destruction.

(5) Let individuals know what records the Army keeps on them and let them review or get copies of these records, subject to exemptions authorized by law and approved by the Secretary of the Army. (See § 505.5.)

(6) Permit individuals to amend records about themselves contained in Army systems of records, which they can prove are factually in error, not up-to-date, not complete, or not relevant.

(7) Allow individuals to ask for an administrative review or decisions that deny them access to or the right to amend their records.

(8) Maintain only information about an individual that is relevant and necessary for Army purposes required to be accomplished by statute or Executive Order.

(9) Act on all requests promptly, accurately, and fairly.

(f) Authority. The Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a), as amended, is the statutory basis for the Army Privacy Program. With in the Department of Defense, the Act is implemented by DOD Directive 5400.11 and DOD 5400.11-R. The Act Assigns—

(1) Overall Government-wide responsibilities for implementation to the Office of Management and Budget.

(2) Specific responsibilities to the Office of Personnel Management and the General Services Administration.

(g) Access and Amendment Refusal Authority (AARA). Each Access and Amendment Refusal Authority is responsible for action on requests for access to or amendment of, records referred to them under this regulation. The officials listed below and their designees are the only Access and Amendment Refusal Authorities for records in their authority to an office or subordinate commander. All delegations must be in writing. If an AARA’s delegate denies access or amendment, the delegate must clearly state that he or she is acting on behalf of the AARA and identify the AARA by name and position in the written response to the requester. Denial of access or amendment by an AARA’s delegate must have appropriate legal review. Delegations will not be made below the colonel (06) or GS/GM 15 level. Such delegations must not slow Privacy actions. AARA’s will send the names, offices and telephone numbers of their delegates to the Director of Information Systems for Command, Central, Communications and Computers, HQDA, ATTN: SAI-PDD Washington, DC 20310-0107.

(1) The Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Army is authorized to act for the Secretary of the Army (SA) on requests for all records maintained by the Office of the Secretary of the Army and its serviced activities, as well as those requests requiring the personal attention of the SA.

(2) The Inspector General for IG investigative records.

(3) The President or Executive Secretary of Boards, councils, and similar bodies established by the Department of the Army to consider personnel matters, excluding the Army Board of Correction of Military Records.

(4) The Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel: For records of active and former non-appropriated fund employees (except those in the Army and Air Force Exchange Service); alcohol and drug abuse treatment records; and behavioral science records.

(5) The Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Plans: For military police records and reports and prisoner confinement and correctional records.

(6) Chief of Engineers: For records pertaining to civil works, including litigation; military construction; engineer procurement; other engineering matters not under the purview of another}

AARA; ecology; and contractor qualifications.

(8) Chief of Chaplains: For ecclesiastical records.

(9) The Judge Advocate General: For legal records for which responsible.

(10) Chief, National Guard Bureau: For personnel records of the Army National Guard.

(11) Chief of Army Reserve: For personnel records of army retired, separated and reserve military personnel members.

(12) Commander, US Army Material Command (AMC): For records of army contractor personnel of AMC.

(14) Commander, United States Total Army Personnel Agency: For personnel and personnel related records of Army members on active duty and current Federal appropriated fund civilian employees. (Requests from former civilian employees to amend a record in an OPM system of records such as the Official Personnel Management, Assistant Director for Workforce Information, Compliance and Investigations Group, 1900 E Street, NW, Washington, DC 20415-0001.)

(15) Commander, U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center: For records relating to morale, welfare and recreation activities; community life programs; family action programs; retired activities, club management, Army emergency relief, consumer protection, retiree survival benefits, and records dealing with DA relationships and social security, veterans affairs, United Service Organizations, U.S. Soldiers’ and Airmen’s Home and American Red Cross.

(17) Commander, Army and Air Force Exchange Service: For records pertaining to employees, patrons, and other matters which are the responsibility of the Exchange Service.

(18) Commander, Military Traffic Management Command: For transportation records.

(19) Director of Army Safety: For safety records.

(20) Commander, U. S. Army Information Systems Command: For records which do not fall within the functional area of another AARA.
(h) DA Privacy Review Board. The DA Privacy Review Board acts on behalf of the Secretary of the Army in deciding appeals from refusal of the appropriate Access and Amendment Refusal Authority to amend records. Board membership is comprised of the Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Army, The Assistant Chief of Staff for Information Management, and The Judge Advocate General or their representatives. The AARA may serve as a non-voting member when the Board considers matters in the AARA's area of functional specialization. The Assistant Chief of Staff for Information Management chairs the Board and provides the Recording Secretary.

(i) Privacy Official. (1) Heads of Army Staff agencies and commanders of major Army commands and subordinate commands and activities will designate a privacy official who will serve as a staff adviser on privacy matters. This function may be assigned below battalion level.

(2) The privacy official will ensure that (i) requests are processed promptly and responsibly, (ii) records subject to the Privacy Act in his/her command/agency are described properly by a published system notice, (iii) privacy statements are included on forms and questionnaires that seek personnel information from an individual, and (iv) procedures are in place to meet reporting requirements.

§ 505.2 Individual rights of access and amendment.

(a) Access under the Privacy Act. Upon a written or oral request, an individual or his/her designated agent or legal guardian will be granted access to a record pertaining to that individual, maintained in a system of records, unless the record is subject to an exemption and the system manager has invoked the exemption (see § 505.5), or the record is information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding. The requester does not have to state a reason or otherwise justify the need to gain access. Nor can an individual be denied access solely because he/she refused to provide his/her Social Security Number unless the Social Security Number was required for access by statute or regulation adopted prior to January 1, 1975. The request should be submitted to the custodian of the record.

(b) Notifying the individual. The custodian of the record will acknowledge requests for access within 10 work days of receipt. Records will be provided within 30 days, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays.

(c) Relationship between the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act. A Privacy Act request for access to records should be processed also as a Freedom of Information Act request. If all or any portion of the requested material is to be denied, it must be considered under the substantive provisions of both the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act. Any withholding of information must be justified by asserting a legally applicable exemption in each Act.

(d) Functional requests. If an individual asks for his/her record and does not cite, or reasonably imply, either the Privacy Act or the Freedom of Information Act, and another prescribing directive authorizes release, the records should be released under that directive. Examples of functional requests are military members asking to see their Military Personnel Records Jacket, or civilian employees asking to see their Official Personnel Folder.

(e) Medical records. If it is determined that releasing medical information to the data subject could have an adverse effect on the mental or physical health of that individual, the requester should be asked to name a physician to receive the record. The data subject’s failure to designate a physician is not a denial under the Privacy Act and cannot be appealed.

(f) Third party information. Third party information pertaining to the data subject may not be deleted from a record when the data subject requests access to the record unless there is an established exemption (see § 505.5(d)). However, personal data such as SSN and home address of third parties in the data subject’s record normally do not pertain to the data subject and therefore may be withheld. Information about the relationship between the data subject and the third party would normally be disclosed as pertaining to the data subject.

(g) Referral of records. Requests for access to Army systems of records containing records that originated with other DOD Components or Federal agencies which claimed exemptions for them will be coordinated with or referred to the originator for release determination. The requester will be notified of the referral.

(h) Fees. Requesters will be charged only for the reproduction of requested documents. Normally, there will be no charge for the first copy of a record provided to the individual whose record it is. Thereafter, fees will be computed as set forth in AR 340-17.

(i) Denial of access. (1) The only officials authorized to deny a request from a data subject for records in a system of records pertaining to that individual are the appropriate Access and Amendment Refusal Authorities (see § 505.1(f)), or the Secretary of the Army, acting through the General Counsel. Denial is appropriate only if the record:

(i) Was compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding; or

(ii) Is properly exempted by the Secretary of the Army from the disclosure provisions of the Privacy Act (see § 505.5), there is a legitimate governmental purpose for invoking the exemption, and it is not required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act.

(2) Requests for records recommended to be denied will be forwarded to the appropriate AARA within 5 work days of receipt, together with the request, disputed records, and justification for withholding. The requester will be notified of the referral.

(3) Within the 30 work day period (see § 505.2(b)), the AARA will give the following information to the requester in writing if the decision is to deny the request for access:

(i) Official’s name, position title, and business address;

(ii) Date of the denial;

(iii) Reasons for the denial, including citation of appropriate section(s) of the Privacy Act and this regulation;

(iv) The opportunity for further review of the denial by the General Counsel, Office, Secretary of the Army, The Pentagon, Washington, DC 20310, through the AARA within 60 calendar days. (For denials made by the Army when the record is maintained in one of OPM’s government-wide systems of records, notice for which are described at appendix B, AR 340-21-8, an individual’s request for further review must be addressed to the Assistant Director for Agency Compliance and Evaluation, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street NW, Washington, DC 20415-0001.)

(j) Amendment of records. (1) Individuals may request the amendment of their records. In writing, when such records are believed to be inaccurate as a matter of fact rather than judgment, irrelevant, untimely, or incomplete.

(2) The amendment procedures are not intended to permit challenge to a record that records an event that actually occurred or are they designed to permit collateral attack upon that which has been the subject of a judicial or quasi-judicial action. Consideration of request for an amendment would be appropriate if it can be shown that circumstances leading up to the event that is recorded on the document were challenged through administrative procedures and found to be inaccurately described, that the document is not identical to the individual’s copy, or that the document was not constructed in accordance with the applicable recordkeeping requirements prescribed. For example, the amendment provisions do not allow an individual to challenge the merits of an adverse action. However, if the form that documents the adverse action contains an error on the fact of the record (e.g., the individual’s name is misspelled, an improper date of birth or SSN was recorded), the amendment procedures may be used to request correction of the record.

(3) US Army Criminal Investigations Command reports of investigation (records in system notices A0501.08e Informant Register, A0508.11b Criminal Information Reports and Cross Index Card Files, and A0508.25a Index to Criminal Investigative Case Files) have been exempted from the amendment provisions of the Privacy Act. Requests to amend these reports will be considered under AR 195-2 by the Commander, US Army Criminal Investigations Command, action by the Commander, US Army Criminal Investigation Commander will constitute final action on behalf of the Secretary of the Army under that regulation.

(4) Records accessioned into the National Archives are exempted from the Privacy Act provision allowing individuals to request amendment of records. Most provisions of the Privacy Act apply only to those systems of records which are under the legal control of the originating agency; e.g., an agency’s current operating files or records stored at a Federal records center.

(k) Procedures. (1) Requests to amend a record should be addressed to the custodian or system manager of that record. The request must reasonably describe the record to be amended and the changes sought (i.e., deletion, addition, amendment). The burden of proof rests with the requester; therefore, the alteration of evidence presented to courts, boards, and other official proceedings is not permitted. (An individual acting for the requester must supply a written consent signed by the requester.)

(2) The custodian or system manager will acknowledge the request within 10 work days and make final response within 30 work days.

(3) The record for which amendment is sought must be reviewed by the proper system manager or custodian for accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness so as to assure fairness to the individual in any determination made about that individual on the basis of that record.

(4) If the amendment is proper, the custodian or system manager will physically amend the record by adding or deleting information, or destroying the record in a portion of it, and notify the requester of such action.

(5) If the amendment is not justified, the request and all relevant documents, including the reasons for not amending, will be forwarded to the appropriate AARA within 5 work days and the requester so notified.

(6) The AARA, on the basis of the evidence, either will amend the record and notify the requester and the custodian of that decision, or will deny the request and inform the requester:

(i) Of reasons for not amending; and

(ii) Of his/her right to seek further review by the DA Privacy Review Board (through the AARA).

(7) On receipt of an appeal from a denial to amend, the AARA will append any additional records or background information that substantiates the refusal or renders the case complete and, within 5 work days of receipt, forward the appeal to the DA Privacy Review Board.

(8) The DA Privacy Review Board, on behalf of the Secretary of the Army, will complete action on a request for further review within 30 work days of its receipt by the AARA. The General Counsel may authorize an additional 30 days when unusual circumstances and good cause so warrant. The Board may seek additional information, including the appellant’s official file, if deemed relevant and necessary to deciding the appeal.

(i) If the Board determines that amendment is unjustified, it will amend the record and notify the requester, the AARA, the custodian of the record, and any prior recipients of the record.

(ii) If the Board denies the request, it will obtain the General Counsel’s concurrence. Response to the appellant will include reasons for denial and the appellant’s right to file a statement of disagreement with the Board’s action and to seek judicial review of the Army’s refusal to amend.

(9) Statements of disagreement will be an integral part of the record to which it pertains so the fact that the record is disputed is apparent to anyone who may have access to, use of, or need to disclose from it. The disclosing authority may include a brief summary of the Board’s reasons for not amending the disputed record. The summary will be limited to the reasons stated to the individual by the Board.

(1) Privacy case files. Whenever an individual submits a Privacy Act request, a case file will be established; see system notice A0240.01DAAG. In no instance will the individual’s request and Army actions thereon be included in the individual’s personnel file. The case file will comprise the request for access/amendment, grants, refusals, coordination action, and related papers. This file will not be used to make any determinations about the individuals.

§ 505.3 Disclosure of personal information to other agencies and third parties.

(a) Disclosure without consent. The Army is prohibited from disclosing a record from a system of records without obtaining the prior written consent of the data subject, except when disclosure is:

(1) To those officers and employees of the Department of Defense who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties;

(2) Required under the Freedom of Information Act (see § 505.3(c) for information normally releasable);

(3) Permitted by a routine use that has been published in the Federal Register;

(4) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity pursuant to Title 13 of the United States Code;

(5) To a recipient who has provided the Army with advance adequate written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, and the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable;

(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record that has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the U.S. Government, or for determination of such value by the Administrator of the General Services Administration (GSA), or designee. (Records sent to Federal Records Centers for storage remain under Army control; these transfers are not disclosures and do not therefore need an accounting.)

(7) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the Army element which maintains the record.
The request must specify the particular portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought; (8) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health and safety of an individual. Upon such disclosure, notification will be transmitted to the last known address of such individual; (9) To either House of Congress, or to a committee or subcommittee to the extent that the subject matter falls within the jurisdiction of the committee or subcommittee; (10) To the Comptroller General, or any authorized representative in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office; (11) Pursuant to the order signed by a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction. (Reasonable efforts must be made to notify the individual if the legal process is a matter of public record); or (12) To a consumer reporting agency in accordance with section 3(d) of the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966 (originally codified at 31 U.S.C. 952(d); recodified at 31 U.S.C. 3711(f), the name, address, SSN, other information identifying the individual; amount, status, and history of the claim, and the agency or program under which the case arose may be disclosed in this instance. (b) Blanket routine use disclosures. In addition to the routine uses in each system notice, the following blanket routine uses apply to all records from systems of records maintained by the Army except those which state otherwise. (1) Law enforcement. Relevant records maintained to carry out Army functions may be referred to Federal, State, local, or foreign law enforcement agencies if the record indicates a violation or potential violation of law. The agency to which the records are referred must be the appropriate agency charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting the violation or charges, with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto. (2) Disclosure when requesting information. A record may be disclosed to a Federal, State, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, to obtain information relevant to an Army decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit. (3) Disclosure of requested information. If the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision, a record may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter. (4) Congressional inquiries. Disclosure from a system of records maintained by the Army may be made to a Congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional office made at the request of that individual. (5) Private relief legislation. Relevancy of information in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on before August 22, 1975, will be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination and clearance process. (6) Disclosures required by international agreements. A record may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigatory, or administrative authorities. These disclosures are in compliance with requirements imposed by, or to claim rights conferred in, international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of DOD military and civilian personnel. (7) Disclosure to State and local taxing authorities. Any information normally contained in Internal Revenue Service Form W-2 which is maintained in a record from a system of records of the Army may be disclosed to State and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements under 5 U.S.C., sections 5516, 5517, and 5520 only to those State and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use complies with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual, Sec. 5060. (8) Disclosures to the Office of Personnel Management. A record may be disclosed to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deduction, and any other information necessary for the OPM to carry out its legally authorized government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

(9) Disclosure to National Archives and Records Administration. A record may be disclosed to the National Archives and Records Administration in records management inspections conducted under authority of Title 44 U.S.C., sections 2904 and 2906. (10) Disclosure to the Department of Justice for Litigation. A record may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice, when (i) The agency, or any component thereof; or (ii) Any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (iii) Any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the Department of Justice has agreed to represent the employee; or (iv) The United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the use of such records by the Department of Justice is deemed by the agency to be relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the record to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (11) Disclosure for Agency use in Litigation. A record may be disclosed in a proceeding before a court or adjudicative body before which the agency is authorized to appear, when (i) The agency, or any component thereof; or (ii) Any employee of the agency in his or her official capacity; or (iii) Any employee of the agency in his or her individual capacity where the agency has agreed to represent the employee; or (iv) The United States, where the agency determines that litigation is likely to affect the agency or any of its components, is a party to litigation or has an interest in such litigation, and the agency determines that use of such records is relevant and necessary to the litigation, provided, however, that in each case, the agency determines that disclosure of the records to the Department of Justice is a use of the information contained in the records that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected. (c) Disclosure to third parties. Personal information which may be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act: (1) On military personnel: Name, rank, date of rank, gross salary, present and past duty assignments, future assignments that are officially established, office or duty telephone number, source of commission, promotion sequence number, awards and decorations, military and civilian educational level, duty status at any given time.

(2) On civilian employees: Name, present and past position titles, grades, salaries, duties stations that include office or duty telephone numbers. However, disclosure of this information will not be made where the information requested is a list of present or past position titles, grades, salaries, and/or duty stations and, as such, is:

(i) Selected to constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. For example, the nature of the request calls for a response that would reveal more about the employee than the five enumerated items;

(ii) Would be protected from mandatory disclosure under an exemption of the Freedom of Information Act.

(iii) In addition to the information in § 505.3(d)(2) above, the following information may be made available to a prospective employer of a current or former Army employee: Tenure of employment, civil service status, length of service in the Army and the Government and, date and reason for separation shown on the Notification of Personnel Action, SF 50.

(d) Accounting of disclosure. (1) An accounting of disclosure is required whenever a record from an Army system of records is disclosed to someone other than the data subject, except when that record:

(i) Is disclosed to officials within the Department of Defense who have a need for it in the performance of official business;

(ii) Is required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act.

(2) Since the characteristics of records maintained within the Army vary widely, no uniform method for keeping the disclosure of accounting is prescribed. For most paper records, the accounting may be affixed to the record being disclosed. It must consist of:

(i) Description of the record disclosed;

(ii) Name, position title, and address of the person to whom disclosure was made;

(iii) Date, method, and purpose of the disclosure; and

(iv) Name and position title of the person making the disclosure.

(3) Purpose of the accounting of disclosure is to enable an individual:

(i) To ascertain those persons/agencies that have received information about the individual, and

(ii) To provide a basis for informing recipients of subsequent amendments or statements in notices of dispute concerning the record.

(4) When an individual requests such an accounting, the system manager or designee shall respond within 10 work days and inform the individual of the information in § 505.3(d)(2) above.

(5) The only basis for not furnishing the data subject an accounting of disclosures are if disclosure was made for law enforcement purposes under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(7), or the disclosure was from a system of records for which an exemption from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) has been claimed (see appendix C to this part).

§ 505.4 Recordkeeping requirements under the Privacy Act.

(a) Systems of records. (1) Notices of all Army systems of records are required by the Act to be published in the Federal Register. An example is at appendix A to this part. When new systems are established, or major changes occur in existing systems, which meet the criteria of OMB Guidelines summarized at § 505.4(f)(2), advance notice is required to be published in the Federal Register and the Congress before the system or proposed changes become operational.

(2) Uncirculated personal notes, papers and records which are retained at the author's discretion and over which the Army exercises no control or dominion are not considered Army records within the meaning of the Privacy Act. Individuals who maintain such notes must restrict their use of memory aids. Disclosure from personal notes, either intentional or through carelessness, remove the information from the category of memory aids and the notes then become subject to the provisions of the Act.

(3) Only personal information as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose or mission of the Army, required by Federal statute or Executive Order of the President, will be maintained in Army systems of records. Statutory authority, or regulatory authority to establish and maintain a system of records does not convey unlimited authority to collect and maintain all information which may be useful or convenient. The authority is limited to relevant and necessary information.

(4) Except for statistical records, most records could be used to determine an individual's rights, benefits, or privileges. To ensure accuracy, personal information to be included in a system of records will be collected directly from the individual if possible. Collection of information from third parties should be limited to verifying information for security or employment suitability or obtaining performance data or opinion-type evaluations.

(b) Privacy Act Statement. Whenever personal information is requested from an individual that will become part of system of records retrieved by reference to the individual's name or other personal identifier, the individual will be furnished a Privacy Act Statement. This is to ensure that individuals know why the information is collected so they can make an informed decision on whether or not to furnish it. As a minimum, the Privacy Act Statement will include the following information in language that is explicit and easily understood and not so lengthy as to deter an individual from reading it:

(1) Cite the specific statute or Executive Order, including a brief title or subject, that authorizes the Army to collect the personal information requested. Inform the individual whether or not a response is mandatory or voluntary, and any possible consequences of failing to respond.

(2) Cite the principal purpose(s) for which the information will be used; and

(3) Cite the probable routine uses for which the information may be used.

This may be a summary of information published in the applicable system notice. The above information normally should be printed on the form used to record the information. In certain instances, it may be printed in a public notice in a conspicuous location such as check-cashing facilities; however, if the individual requests a copy of its contents, it must be provided.

(c) Social Security Number (SSN). Executive Order 9397 authorizes the Department of the Army to use the SSN as a system of identifying Army members and employees. Once a military member or civilian employee of the Department of the Army has disclosed his/her SSN for purposes of establishing personnel, financial, or medical records upon entry into Army service or employment, the SSN becomes his/her identification number. No other use of this number is authorized. Therefore, whether the SSN alone is requested from the individual, or the SSN together with other personal information, the Privacy Act Statement must make clear that disclosure of the number is voluntary. If the individual refuses to disclose his/her SSN, the Army activity must be prepared to identify the individual by alternate means.

(d) Safeguarding personal information. (1) The Privacy Act requires establishment of appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to ensure the security and confidentiality of records and to protect against any threats or hazards to the subjects security or integrity which could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness.

(2) At each location, and for each system of records, an official will be designated to safeguard the information in that system. Consideration must be given to sensitivity of the data, need for accuracy and reliability in operations, general security of the area, cost of safeguards, etc. See AR 380–380.

(3) Ordinarily, personal information must be afforded at least the protection required for information designated "For Official Use Only" (see Chapter IV, AR 340–17). Privacy Act data will be afforded reasonable safeguards to prevent inadvertent or unauthorized disclosure of record content during processing, storage, transmission, and disposal.

(4) No comparisons of Army records systems with systems of other Federal or commercial agencies (known as "matching" or "computer matching" programs) will be accomplished without prior approval of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Information Management (DAIM–RMS–S), Alex, VA 22331–0301.

(e) First Amendment rights. No record describing how an individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment will be kept unless expressly authorized by Federal statute, by the individual about whom the record pertains, or unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity. Exercise of these rights includes, but is not limited to, religious and political beliefs, freedom of speech and the press, and the right of assembly and to petition.

(f) System notice. (1) The Army publishes a notice in the Federal Register describing each system of records for which it is responsible. A notice contains:

(i) Name and location(s) of the records;
(ii) Categories of individuals on whom records are maintained;
(iii) Categories of records in the system;
(iv) Authority (statutory or Executive Order) authorizing the system;
(v) Purpose(s) of the system;
(vi) Routine uses of the records, including the categories of users and the purposes of such uses;
(vii) Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of the records;
(viii) Position title and business address of the responsible official;
(ix) Procedures an individual must follow to learn if a system of records contains a record about the individual;
(x) Procedures an individual must follow to gain access to a record about that individual in a system of records, to contest contents, and to appeal initial determinations;
(xi) Categories of sources of records in the system;
(xii) Exemptions from the Privacy Act claimed for the system. (See example notice at appendix A to this part.)

(2) New, or altered, systems which meet the requirements below, require a report to the Congress and the Office of Management and Budget. A new system is one for which no system notice is published in the Federal Register. An altered system is one that:

(i) Increases or changes the number or types of individuals on whom records are kept so that it significantly alters the character and purpose of the system of records.

(ii) Expands the types of categories of information maintained.

(iii) Alters the manner in which records are organized, indexed, or retrieved so as to change the nature or scope of those records.

(iv) Alters the purposes for which the information is used, or adds a routine use that is not compatible with the purpose for which the system is maintained.

(v) Changes the equipment configuration on which the system is operated so as to create potential for either greater or easier access.

(3) Report of a new or altered system must be sent to HQDA (DAIM–RMS–S) at least 120 days before the system or changes become operational, and include a narrative statement and supporting documentation.

(i) The narrative statement must contain the following items:

(A) System identification and name;
(B) Responsible official;
(C) Purpose(s) of the system, or nature of changes proposed (if an altered system);
(D) Authority for the system;
(E) Number (or estimate) of individuals on whom records will be kept;
(F) Information of First Amendment activities;
(G) Measure to assure information accuracy;
(H) Other measures to assure system security; (Automated systems require risk assessment under AR 380–380.)

(i) Relations to State/local government activities. (See example at appendix B to this part.)

(4) Supporting documentation consists of system notice for the proposed new or altered system, and proposed exemption rule, if applicable.

(g) Reporting requirements. (1) The annual report required by the Act, as amended by Pub. L. 97–375, 96 Stat. 1821, focuses on two primary areas:

(i) Information describing the exercise of individuals’ rights of access to and amendment of records.

(ii) Changes in, or additions to, systems of records.

(2) Specific reporting requirements will be disseminated each year by The Assistant Chief of Staff for Information Management (DAIM–RMS–S) in a letter to reporting elements.

(h) Rules of conduct. System managers will ensure that all personnel, including government contractors or their employees, who are involved in the design, development, operation, maintenance, or control of any system of records, are informed of all requirements to protect the privacy of individuals who are subjects of the records.

(i) Judicial sanctions. The Privacy Act has both civil remedies and criminal penalties for violations of its provisions:

(1) Civil remedies: An individual may file a civil suit against the Army if Army personnel fail to comply with the Privacy Act.

(2) Criminal penalties: A member or employee of the Army may be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000 for willfully:

(i) Maintaining a system of records without first meeting the public notice requirements of publishing in the Federal Register;

(ii) Disclosing individually identifiable personal information to one not entitled to have it;

(iii) Asking for or getting another's record under false pretense.

§ 505.5 Exemption

(a) Exempting systems of records. The Secretary of the Army may exempt Army systems of records from certain requirements of the Privacy Act. There are two kinds of exemptions: General and specific. The general exemption relieves systems of records from most requirements of the Act; the specific exemptions from only a few. See appendix C to this part.

(b) General exemptions. Only Army activities actually engaged in the enforcement of criminal laws as their primary function may claim the general exemption. To qualify for this exemption, a system must consist of:

1. Information compiled to identify individual criminals and alleged criminals, which consists only of identifying data and arrest records; type and disposition of charges; sentencing, confinement, and release records; and parole and probation status;

2. Information compiled for the purpose of criminal investigation including efforts to prevent, reduce, or control crime and reports of informants and investigators associated with an identifiable individual; or

3. Records identifiable to an individual, compile at any stage of the process of enforcement of the criminal laws, from arrest or indictment through release from supervision.

(c) Specific exemptions. The Secretary of the Army has exempted all properly classified information and a few systems of records that have the following kinds of information, from certain parts of the Privacy Act. The Privacy Act exemption cite appears in parentheses after each category.

1. Classified information in every Army system of records. This exemption is not limited to the systems listed in § 505.5(d). Before denying as individual access to classified information, the Access and Amendment Refusal Authority must make sure that it was properly classified under the standards of Executive Orders 11852, 12065, or 12356 and that it must remain so in the interest of national defense of foreign policy. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

2. Investigatory data for law enforcement purposes (other than that claimed under the general exemption). However, if this information has been used to deny someone a right, privilege or benefit to which the individual is entitled by Federal law, it must be released, unless doing so would reveal the identity of a confidential source. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

3. Records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals protected pursuant to Title 18 U.S.C., section 3056. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(3).

4. Statistical data required by statute and used only for statistical purposes and not to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or entitlements of individuals, except for census records which may be disclosed under Title 13 U.S.C., section 8. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(4).

5. Data compiled to determine suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information. This information may be withheld only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

6. Testing material used to determine if a person is qualified for appointment or promotion in the Federal service. This information may be withheld only if disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the examination process. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6).

7. Information to determine promotion potential in the Armed Forces. Information may be withheld, but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(7).

(d) Procedures. When a system manager seeks an exemption for a system of records, the following information will be furnished HQDA (DAIM-RMS-S), Alexandria, VA 22331-0001: applicable system notice, exemptions sought, and justification. After appropriate staffing and approval by the Secretary of the Army, a proposed rule will be published in the Federal Register, followed by a final rule 30 days later. No exemption may be invoked until these steps have been completed.

(e) Exempt Army records. The following records are exempt from certain parts of the Privacy Act:

a. ID—A0224.04DAIG.

1. SYSNAME—Inspector General Audit files.

2. EXEMPTION—All portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) or (5) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 5522: (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(5), (e)(9) and (g).

3. AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (5).

4. REASONS—Selected portions and/or records in this system are compiled for the purposes of enforcing civil, criminal, or military law, including Executive Orders or regulations validly adopted pursuant to law. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained in these files could interfere with enforcement proceedings; deprive a person of a right to fair trial or an impartial adjudication or be prejudicial to the conduct of administrative action affecting rights, benefits, or privileges of individuals; constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; disclose the identity of a confidential source; disclose nonroutine investigative techniques and procedures, or endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel; violate statutes which authorize or require certain information, to be withheld from the public such as: Trade or Financial information, technical data, National Security Agency information, or information relating to inventions. Exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from the other requirements.

b. ID—A0224.05DAIG.

1. SYSNAME—Inspector General Action Request/Complaint Files.

2. EXEMPTION—All portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) or (5) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 5522: (c)(3), (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (f).

3. AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (5).

4. REASONS—Selected portions and/or records in this system are compiled for the purposes of enforcing civil, criminal, or military law, including Executive Orders or regulations validly adopted pursuant to law. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained in these files could interfere with enforcement proceedings; deprive a person of a right to fair trial or an impartial adjudication or be prejudicial to the conduct of administrative action affecting rights, benefits, or privileges of individuals; constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; disclose the identity of a confidential source; disclose nonroutine investigative techniques and procedures, or endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel; violate statutes which authorize or require certain information, to be withheld from the public such as: Trade or Financial information, technical data, National Security Agency information, or information relating to inventions. Exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from the other requirements.

1. SYSNAME—Request for Information Files.

2. EXEMPTION—Portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 5522: (c)(3), (d), (e)(4)(C), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(5), (e)(9), and (g).

3. AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (5).

4. REASONS—Selected portions and/or records in this system are compiled for the purposes of enforcing civil, criminal, or military law, including Executive Orders or regulations validly adopted pursuant to law. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained in these files could interfere with enforcement proceedings; deprive a person of a right to fair trial or an impartial adjudication or be prejudicial to the conduct of administrative action affecting rights, benefits, or privileges of individuals; constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy; disclose the identity of a confidential source; disclose nonroutine investigative techniques and procedures, or endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel; violate statutes which authorize or require certain information, to be withheld from the public such as: Trade or Financial information, technical data, National Security Agency information, or information relating to inventions. (1) SYSNAME—Privacy Act Cast Files.

(2) EXEMPTION—Portions of this system which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 552a: c(1), (5), (6), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (f), (g), (f), and (j).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) and (k)(7).

(4) REASONS—This system of records is maintained solely for the purpose of administering the Privacy Act of 1974. To ensure the completeness and accuracy of the file on an individual case, it is sometimes necessary to include copies of records which have been the subject of a Privacy Act request. This situation applies principally to cases in which an individual has denied access and/or amendment of personal records under an exemption authorized by Title 5 U.S.C. section 552a. The justifiction for the original denial would apply to a denial of access and/or amendment of copies maintained in the Privacy Act Case File. It should be emphasized that the majority of records in this system are available on request to the individual and that all records are used solely to administer Privacy Act requests. This file is not used to make any other determination on the rights, benefits or privileges of individuals.

(1) SYSNAME—HQDA Correspondence and Control/Center File System.

(2) EXEMPTION—Portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 552a: c(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (f).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) through (k)(7).

(4) REASONS—Documents are generated by other elements of the Army or are received from other agencies and individuals. Because of the broad scope of the contents of this system and since the introduction of documents is largely unregulated, specific portions or documents that may require an exemption cannot be predetermined. Therefore, and to the extent that such material is received and maintained, selected individual documents may be exempted from disclosure under any of the provisions of sections (k)(1) through (k)(7) of Title 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(1) SYSNAME—General Legal Files.

(2) EXEMPTION—Those portions of this system of records falling within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), (5), (6), and (7) may be exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 552a: c(3), (d), (e)(1), and (f).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (5), (6), and (7).

(4) REASONS—Various records from other exempted systems of records are sometimes submitted for legal review or other action. A copy of such records may be permanently incorporated into the General Legal Files system of records as evidence of the facts upon which a legal opinion or review was based. Exemption of the General Legal Files system of records is necessary in order to ensure that such records continue to receive the same protection afforded them by exemptions granted to the systems of records in which they were originally filed.

h. ID-A0404.02DAJA.

(1) SYSNAME—Courts-Martial Files.

(2) EXEMPTION—All portions of this system which fall under Title 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. 552a: (d)(2), (d)(4), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(H), and (d).

(3) AUTHORITY—Title 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(4) REASONS—Courts-martial files are exempt because a large body of existing criminal law governs trials by court-martial to the exclusion of the Privacy Act. The Congress recognized the judicial nature of court-martial proceedings and exempted them from the Administrative Procedure Act by specifically excluding them from the definition of the term “agency” (Title 5 U.S.C. 551(1)(f)). Substantive and procedural law applicable in trials by court-martial is set forth in the Constitution, the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), and the decisions of the U.S. Court of Military Appeals and Courts of Military Review. The right of the accused not to be compelled to be a witness against himself and the need to obtain accurate and reliable information with regard to criminal misconduct necessitate the collection of information from sources other than the individual accused.

(a) Advising the accused or any other witness of the authority for the collection of the information, the purpose for which it is to be used, whether disclosure is voluntary or mandatory, and the effects on the individual of not providing the information would unnecessarily disrupt and confuse court-martial proceedings. It is the responsibility of the investigating officer or military judge to determine what information will be considered as evidence. In making the determination, the individual’s rights are weighed against the accused’s right to fair trial. The determination is final for Courts-Martial, United States, 1969 (Revised edition), and the decisions of the U.S. Court of Military Appeals and Courts of Military Review. The right of the accused not to be compelled to be a witness against himself and the need to obtain accurate and reliable information with regard to criminal misconduct necessitate the collection of information from sources other than the individual accused.

(b) In a trial by court-martial, the accused has a unique opportunity to assure that the record is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete as it is made. He has the right to be present and the trial, to be represented by counsel at general and special courts-martial, and to consult with counsel in summary courts-martial, to review and challenge all information before it is introduced into evidence, to cross-examine all witnesses against him, to present evidence in his behalf and in general and special courts-martial, to review and comment upon the record for trial before it is authenticated. Procedures for correction of the record and controlled by paragraphs 82, 86, and 95, Manual for Courts-Martial, 1969 (Revised edition). After completion of appellate review, the record may not be amended. Article 76 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (10 U.S.C. 876) provides that the proceedings, findings and sentences of courts-martial as approved, reviewed or affirmed are final and conclusive and binding upon all departments, courts, agencies, and of the United States subject only to action upon a petition for new trial (Article 73, UCMJ), action by the Secretary concerned (Article 74, UCMJ), and the authority of the President.

(1) SYSNAME—Informant Register.

(2) EXCEPTION—All portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C., section 552a: (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(5), (e)(6), (f), and (g).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(4) REASONS—(a) from subsection (c)(3) because release of accounting of disclosures would provide the informant with significant information concerning the nature of a particular investigation, the internal methods and techniques involved in criminal investigation, and the investigative agencies (state, local or foreign) involved in a particular case resulting in a serious compromise of the criminal law enforcement processes.

(b) From subsection (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (f), and (g) because disclosure of portions of the information in this system of records would seriously impair the prudent and efficient handling of these uniquely functioning individuals; hamper the inclusion of comments and evaluations concerning the performance qualification, character, identity, and propriety of the informant; and prematurely compromise criminal investigations which either concern the conduct of the informant himself or investigations wherein he/she is integrally or only peripherally involved. Additionally, the exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from amendment, certain agency requirements relating to access and amendment of records and civil liability predicated upon agency compliance with specific provisions of the Privacy Act.

(c) From subsection (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (f) are also necessary to protect the security of information properly classified in the interest of national defense and foreign policy.

(d) From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the criminal investigative function creates unique problems in prescribing what information concerning informants is relevant or necessary. Due to close liaison and existing relationships with other Federal, state, local and foreign law enforcement agencies, information about informants may be received which may relate to a case then under the investigative jurisdiction of another Government agency but it is necessary to maintain this information in order to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of both the USAIDC and other agencies.

Additionally, the failure to maintain all known information about informants could affect the effective utilization of the individual and substantially increase the operational hazards incumbent in the employment of an informant in very compromising and sensitive situations.

(e) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information from the informant would thwart both the criminal investigative process and the required management control over these individuals by appraising the informant of investigations or management actions concerning his involvement in criminal activity or with USAIDC personnel.

(f) From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an informant with a form containing the information specified could result in the informant, and render ineffective investigative techniques and methods utilized by USAIDC in the performance of its criminal law enforcement duties.

(e) From subsection (e)(5) because this requirement would unduly hamper the criminal investigative process due to type of records maintained an necessity for rapid information retrieval and dissemination. Also, in the collection of information about informants, it is impossible to determine what information is then accurate, relevant, timely and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation or contact brings new details to light. In the criminal investigative process, accuracy and relevance of information concerning informants can only be determined by a court of law. The restrictions imposed by subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of trained investigators to exercise their judgment in reporting information relating to informant's actions and would impede the development of criminal intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(h) From subsection (e)(6) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to criminal law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and the existence of confidential investigations.

(1) SYSNAME—Counterintelligence Research File System (CIRFS).

(2) EXCEPTION—All portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), or (3) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I), and (f).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), and (5).

(4) REASON—Information in the files is obtained from overt and sensitive intelligence sources, and contains information classified in the interest of national security under the provisions of EO 12356 and predecessor orders. The system contains investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes as well as for determining the suitability for employment or military service and thus will also require the protection of confidential sources. Information may reflect the efforts of hostile intelligence services in the collection effort against the US Army.

Additionally, the following factors are at issue in disclosure of data from this system of records: Release of exempted information would endanger the safety of sources involved in intelligence programs; release would invade the privacy of those individuals involved in intelligence programs; release would be contrary to the interests of the nation; and the system contains specialized techniques used to support intelligence programs and release would interfere with and negate the orderly conduct of intelligence operations. Exemption from the remaining provisions is predicated upon the exemption from disclosure or upon the need for conducting complete and proper investigations.

(2) EXCEPTION—All portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2) or (5) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C., section 552a: (c)(3), (d)(e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(4)(I), and (f).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), and (5).

(4) REASONS—Executive Order 12356 and predecessor orders provide for the protection of some official information and material which, because it bears directly on the effectiveness of our national defense and the conduct of our foreign relations, must be subject to some constraints for the security of our Nation, and the safety of our people and our Allies. To protect against actions hostile to the United States, of both overt and covert nature, it is essential that such official information and material be given only limited dissemination. This exemption is also essential to protect the privacy and personal safety of the sources involved. It is vital to the conduct of secure operations under Director, Central Intelligence Directives 4 and 5 and Defense Intelligence Agency Manual 58-11.

Additionally, the disclosure of data within this system of records is exempt to the extent the disclosure of such data would reveal the identity of sources who furnished information to the Government under an express or implied promise that source identities would be held in confidence. These assurances are essential to the frank and candid disclosure of information which is essential to the investigative purpose. Confidence in the integrity of government assurances must be maintained or the investigative process will be severely damaged. Exemption from the other requirements is premised on and follows from the rationale which requires exemption from access.

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), and (5).

(4) REASONS—The material contained in this record system contains data concerning sensitive sources and operational methods whose dissemination must be strictly controlled because of national security intelligence considerations. (3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2), (5), and (7).

(4) REASONS—From subsections (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), and (f) because disclosure of portions of the information in this system of records would seriously impair the selection and management of these uniquely functioning individuals; hamper the inclusion of comments, reports and evaluations concerning the performance, qualifications, character, action and propensities of the agent; and prematurely compromise investigations with either concern the conduct of the agent himself or investigations wherein he or she is directly or peripherally involved. (2) EXEMPTION—All portions of this system of records which fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of Title 5 U.S.C. section 552a: (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(1), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (e)(5), (e)(6), (f), and (g).

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(4) REASONS—(a) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosures would place the subject of an investigation on notice that he is under investigation and provide him with significant information concerning coordinated investigative efforts and techniques and the nature of the investigation, resulting in a serious impediment to criminal law enforcement activities or the compromise of properly classified material.

(b) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4)(C), (e)(4)(H), (f), and (g) because access might compromise on-going investigations, reveal classified information, investigative techniques or the identity of confidential informants, or invade the privacy of persons who provide information in connection with a particular investigation. The exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from amendment, certain agency requirements relating to access and amendment of records, and civil liability predicated upon agency compliance with those specific provisions of the Privacy Act. The exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from other requirements.

(c) From subsection (e)(1) because the nature of the investigative function creates unique problems in prescribed specific perimeters in a particular case as to what is significant or necessary. Also, due to close liaisons and working relationships with other Federal, state, local, and foreign law enforcement agencies, information may be received which may relate to a case then under the investigative jurisdiction of another Government agency but it is necessary to maintain this information in order to provide leads for appropriate law enforcement purposes and to establish patterns of activity which may relate to the jurisdiction of both the USACIDC and other agencies.

(d) From subsection (e)(2) because collecting information from the subject of criminal investigations would thwart the investigative process by placing the subject of the investigation on notice thereof.

(e) From subsection (e)(3) because supplying an individual with a form containing the information specified could result in the bias of an investigation, tend to inhibit the cooperation of the individual queried, and render ineffectual investigational techniques and methods utilized by USACIDC in the performance of their criminal law enforcement duties.

(f) From subsection (e)(5) because this requirement would unduly hamper the criminal investigative process due to the great volume of records maintained and the necessity for rapid information retrieval and dissemination. Also, in the collection of information for law enforcement purposes, it is impossible to determine what information is then accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. With the passage of time, seemingly irrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as further investigation brings new details to light. In the criminal investigative process, accuracy and relevance of information can only be determined in a court of law. The restrictions imposed by subsection (e)(5) would restrict the ability of trained investigators to exercise their judgment in reporting on investigations and impede the development of criminal intelligence necessary for effective law enforcement.

(g) From subsection (e)(6) because the notice requirements of this provision could present a serious impediment to criminal law enforcement purposes by revealing investigative techniques, procedures, and the existence of confidential investigations.

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

(4) REASONS—(a) From subsection (c)(3) because the release of accounting of disclosures would place the subject of an investigation on notice that he is under investigation and provide him with significant information concerning coordinated investigative efforts and techniques and the nature of the investigation, resulting in a serious impediment to criminal law enforcement activities or the compromise of properly classified material.

(b) From subsections (c)(4), (d), (e)(4)(G), (e)(4)(H), (f), and (g) because access might compromise on-going investigations, reveal investigatory techniques and the identity of confidential informants, or invade the privacy of persons who provide information in connection with a particular investigation. The exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from amendment, certain agency requirements relating to access and amendment of records, and civil liability predicated upon agency compliance with those specific provisions of the Privacy Act. The exemption from access necessarily includes exemption from other requirements.

(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).
(4) REASONS—Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by this component relating to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with the orderly administration of justice. Disclosure of this information could jeopardize the safety and well-being of information sources, correctional supervisors and other confinement facility administrators. Disclosure of this information could also result in the invasion of privacy of persons who provide information used in developing individual treatment programs. Further, disclosure could result in a deterioration of a prisoner's self-image and adversely affect meaningful relationships between a prisoner and his counselor or supervisor. These factors are, or course, essential to the rehabilitative process.

Exemption from the remaining provisions is predicated upon the exemption from disclosure or upon the need for proper functioning of correctional programs.

(4) REASONS—Exemptions are needed in order to encourage persons having knowledge of abusive or neglectful acts toward children to report such information and to protect such sources from embarrassment or retributions as well as to protect their right to privacy. It is essential that the identities of all individuals who furnish information under an express promise of confidentiality be protected. In the case of spouse abuse, it is important to protect the privacy of spouses seeking treatment. Additionally, granting individuals access to information relating to criminal and civil law enforcement could interfere with on-going investigations and the orderly administration of justice in that it could result in the concealment, alteration, destruction, or fabrication of information, could hamper the identification of offenders or alleged offenders, and the disposition of charges, and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of parents, children, and abused spouses.

are exempt from subsection (d) of Title 5 U.S.C., section 552a.
(3) AUTHORITY—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) and (7).

(4) REASONS—It is imperative that the confidential nature of evaluation material on individuals, furnished to the United States Military and other agencies of the Federal Government, and the importance of maintaining the confidentiality of personnel records, within the United States Military and other agencies of the Federal Government, be maintained to ensure the candor and effective presentation of information necessary in determining involving admission to or retention at the United States Military Academy and for other purposes.

The Office of Personnel Management systems of records apply to Army employees, except for nonappropriated fund employees. These systems, the specific exemptions determined to be necessary and proper, the records exempted, provisions of the Privacy Act from which exempted, and justification are set forth below:

(1) Personnel Investigations Records (OPM/CENTRAL—I). All material and information in these records that meets the criteria stated in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), (3), (5), and (6) is exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (d). These provisions of the Privacy Act relate to making accountings of disclosures available to the data subject and access to and amendment of records.

The specific applicability of the exemptions to this system and the reasons for the exemptions are as follows:

(i) Personnel investigations may obtain from another Federal agency properly classified information which pertains to national defense and foreign policy. Application of exemption (k)(1) may be necessary to preclude the data subject's access to and amendment of such classified information under 5 U.S.C. 552a(d).

(ii) Personnel investigations may obtain investigative material compiled for law enforcement purposes other than material which the agency may obtain from other Federal agencies under the Privacy Act, e.g., investigations into the administration of the merit system. Application of exemption (k)(2) may be necessary to preclude the data subject's access to or amendment of such records, under 552a(c)(3) and (d).

(iii) Personnel investigations may obtain from another Federal agency information that relates to providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals pursuant to section 3056 of title 18. Application of exemption (k)(3) may be necessary to preclude the data subject's access to and amendment of such records under 5 U.S.C. 552a(d).

(iv) All information about individuals in these records that meets the criteria stated in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) is exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (4). These provisions of the Privacy Act relate to making accountings of disclosures available to the data subject, and access to and amendment of records.

These exemptions are claimed because this system contains investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, and qualifications for Federal civilian employment. To the extent that the disclosure of material would reveal the identity of source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of such source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, the application of exemption (k)(5) will be required to honor such a promise should the data subject request access to or amendment of the record, or access to the accounting of disclosures of the record.

(v) All material and information in these records that meets the criteria stated in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) is exempt from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), relating to access to and amendment of records by the data subject. This exemption is claimed because portions of this system relate to testing or examination materials used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service. Access to or amendment of this information by the data subject would compromise the objectivity and fairness of the testing or examination process.

b. Application for waiver of erroneous payments or for remission of indebtedness with supporting documents, including, but not limited to statements of financial status (personal income and expenses), statements of commanders or other authorized finance officers, correspondence with members and employees;

c. Claims of individuals requesting additional payments for service rendered with supporting documents including, but not limited to, time and attendance reports, leave and earnings statements, travel orders and/or vouchers, and correspondence with members and employees;

d. Delinquent accounts receivable from field accounting and finance officers including, but not limited to, returned checks, medical services billings, collection records, and summaries of the Army Criminal Investigations Command and/or Federal Bureau of Investigation reports;

e. Reports from probate courts regarding estates of deceased debtors;

f. Reports from bankruptcy courts regarding claims of the United States against debtors.

Authority for maintenance of the system:
Purpose:
To process, monitor, and post-audit accounts receivable, to administer the Federal Claims Collection Act, and to answer inquiries pertaining thereto.

Routine users of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses:

Information may be disclosed to:
US Department of Justice/US Attorneys:
For legal action and/or final disposition of the debt claims. The litigation briefs (comprehensive and/or referral recommendations) will restructure the entire scope of the collection cases.

Internal Revenue Service: To obtain locator status for delinquent accounts receivables; [Automated controls exist to preclude redisclosure of solicited IRS address data]; and/or to report write-offs amount as taxable income as pertains to amounts compromised and accounts barred from litigation due to age.

Private Collection Agencies: For collection action when the Army has exhausted its internal collection efforts.

Disclosure to Consumer Reporting Agencies:
Disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(12) may be made to "consumer reporting agencies" as defined in the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681f) or the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966 (31 U.S.C. 3701(a)(3)) when an individual is responsible for a debt to the US Army, provided the debt has been validated, is overdue, and the debtor has been advised of the disclosure and his rights to dispute, appeal or review the claim; and/or whenever a financial status report is requested for use in the administration of the Federal Claims Collection Act. Claims of the United States may be compromised, terminated or suspended when warranted by information collected.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage:
Paper records in collection file folders and bulk storage; card files, computer magnetic tapes and printouts; microfiche.

Retrieveability:
By Social Security Number, name, and substantiating document number; conventional indexing is used to retrieve data.

Safeguards:
The US Army Finance and Accounting Center employs security guards. An employee badge and visitor registration system is in effect. Hard copy records are maintained in areas accessible only to authorized personnel who are properly screened, cleared and trained. Computerized records are accessed by custodian of the records system by persons responsible for servicing the record system in the performance of their official duties. Certifying finance and accounting officers of debts have access to debt information to confirm if the debt is valid and collection action is to be continued. Computer equipment and files are located in a separate secured area.

Retirement and disposal:
Individual military pay records and accounts receivables are converted to microfiche and retained for 6 years. Destruction is by shredding. Retention periods for other records vary-according to category, but total retention does not exceed 56 years; these records are sent to the Federal Records Center, General Services Administration at Dayton, Ohio; destruction is by burning or salvage as waste paper.

System manager(s) and address:
Commander, US Army Finance and Accounting Center, Indianapolis, IN 46229.

Notification procedure:
Individuals desiring to know whether this system of records contains information about them should contact the System Manager, ATTN: FINCP-F, furnishing full name, Social Security Number, and military status or other information verifiable from the record itself.

Record access procedures:
Individuals seeking access to records in this system pertaining to them should submit a written request as indicated in "Notification procedure" and furnish information required therein.

Contesting record procedures:
The Army's rules for access to records and for contesting and appealing initial determinations are contained in Army Regulation 340-21 (32 CFR part 505).

Record source categories:
Information is received from Department of Defense staff and field installations, Social Security Administration, Treasury Department, financial organizations, and automated system interface.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act:
None.

Appendix B—Example of Report for New System of Records

Narrative Statement:
1. System Identification and Name: A0404.02DAJ. Courts-Martial Files.
2. Responsible Official: Mr. James D. Kemper, US Army Legal Services Agency, Office of The Judge Advocate General, Room 204B, Nassif Building, Falls Church, VA 22041.
3. Purpose of the System: Records of trial by court-martial are necessary for the purpose of legal review and final action in court-martial cases. After completion of appellate review, they protect each accused against a subsequent trial for the same offense(s).
4. Authority for the System: Title 10 U.S.C., Chapter 47, Section 885 states that, in the case of a general court-martial or when sentence that includes a bad conduct discharge is approved by the convening authority in a special court-martial, the record will be sent to The Judge Advocate General. All other special and summary court-martial records will be reviewed by a Judge Advocate.
5. Number (or estimate) of individuals on whom records will be maintained: Approximately 7,000,000.
6. Information on First Amendment Activities: The system contains no information on First Amendment activities per se; however, the system may include records of trial in which the charged misconduct was an activity arguably protected by the First Amendment.
7. Measures to Assure Information Accuracy: In a trial by court-martial, the accused has a unique opportunity to assure that his record is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete as it is made. He has the right to be present at trial, to be represented by counsel in general and special courts-martial and to consult with counsel prior to a summary court-martial to review and challenge all information before it is introduced into evidence, to cross-examine all witnesses against him, to present evidence in his behalf, and in general and special courts-martial, to review and comment upon the record of trial before the convening authority's action.
8. Other Measures to Assure System Security: As courts-martial records reflect criminal proceedings ordinarily open to the public, copies are normally releasable to the public pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act. However, access to the original records is limited to authorized individuals. Security measures consist of standard physical security devices and civilian and military guards.
9. Relationship to State/Local Government Activities: None.
10. Supporting Documentation: Proposed system notice and proposed exemption rule are at Encl 1 and 2 respectively.

Terms

Access
The review of a record or obtaining a copy of a record or parts thereof in a system of records.

Agency
The DOD is a single agency for the purpose of disclosing records subject to The Privacy Act of 1974. For other purposes, including access, amendment, appeals from denials of access or amendment, exempting systems of records, and record-keeping for release to non-DOD agencies, the DA is an agency.

Access and Amendment Refusal Authority
The Army Staff agency head or major Army commander designated sole authority by this regulation to deny access to, or refuse amendment of, records in his or her assigned area or functional specialization.

Confidential source
A person or organization that has furnished information to the Federal Government under an express promise that its identity would be withheld, or under an implied promise of such confidentiality if this implied promise was made before September 27, 1975.

Data subject
The individual about whom the Army is maintaining information in a system of records.

Disclosure
The furnishing of information about an individual by any means, to an organization, Government agency, or to an individual who is not the subject of the record, the subject’s designated agent or legal guardian. Within the context of the Privacy Act and this regulation, this term applies only to personal information that is a part of a system of records.

Individual
A living citizen of the United States or an alien admitted for permanent residence. The Privacy Act rights of an individual may be exercised by the parent or legal guardian of a minor or an incompetent. (The Privacy Act confers no rights on deceased persons, nor may their next-of-kin exercise any rights for them.)

Maintain
Collect, use, maintain, or disseminate.

Official use
Any action by a member or employee of DOD that is prescribed or authorized by law or a regulation and is intended to perform a mission or function of the Department.

Personal information
Information about an individual that is intimate or private to the individual, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual’s official functions or public life.

Privacy Act request
A request from an individual for information about the existence of, or for access to or amendment of, a record about him or her that is in a system of records. The request must cite or implicitly refer to the Privacy Act.

Record
Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that—

a. Is kept by the Government including, but not limited to, an individual’s home address, home telephone number, SSN, education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history.

b. Contains an individual’s name, identifying number, symbol, or other individual identifier such as a finger, voice print, or a photograph.

Routine use
Disclosure of a record outside DOD without the consent of the subject individual for a use that is compatible with the purpose for which the information was collected and maintained by DA. The routine use must be included in the published system notice for the system of records involved.

Statistical record
A record maintained only for statistical research or reporting purposes and not used in whole or in part in making determinations about specific individuals.

System manager
The official responsible for policies and procedures for operating and safeguarding a system or records. This official is located normally at Headquarters, DA.

System of records
A group of records under the control of DA from which information is retrieved by the individual’s name or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. System notices for all systems of records must be published in the Federal Register. (A grouping or files series of records arranged chronologically or subjectively that is not retrieved by individual identifier is not a system of records, even though individual information could be retrieved by such an identifier, such as through a paper-by-paper search.)

Subpart F—Personal Privacy and Rights of individuals Regarding Their Personal Records

Source: 52 FR 11052, Apr. 7, 1987, unless otherwise noted.

§ 701.100 Purpose.

32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G delineate revised policies, conditions, and procedures that govern collecting, personal information, and safeguarding, maintaining, using, accessing, amending, and disseminating personal information kept by the Department of the Navy in systems of records. They implement 5 U.S.C. 552a (the Privacy Act of 1974), and the Department of Defense Directive 5400.11 series, Personal Privacy and Rights of Individuals Regarding Their Personal Records (DOD Dir. 5400.11) (32 CFR part 310), and prescribe:

(a) Procedures whereby individuals can be notified if any system of records contain a record pertaining to them.

(b) Requirements for verifying the identity of individuals who request their records before the records are made available to them.

(c) Procedures for granting access to individuals upon request for their records.

(d) Procedures for reviewing a request from individuals to amend their records, for making determinations on requests, and for appealing adverse determinations.

(e) Procedures for notifying the public of the existence and character of each system of records.

(f) Procedures for disclosing personal information to third parties.

(g) Procedures for exempting systems of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(h) Procedures for safeguarding personal information.

(i) Rules of conduct for the Department of the Navy personnel, who will be subject to criminal penalties for noncompliance with 5 U.S.C. 552a. See § 701.115.

§ 701.101 Scope and effect.

(a) Applicability. 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G apply throughout the Department of the Navy, and to any contractor maintaining a system of records to accomplish a Department of the Navy mission. For the purposes of any criminal liabilities adjudged, any contractor and any employee of such contractor shall be considered to be an employee of the Navy Department. Additionally, all requests by individuals for records (located in a system of records) pertaining to themselves which specify either the Freedom of Information Act or the Privacy Act (but not both) shall be treated under the procedures established under the Act specified in the request. When the request specifies, that it be processed under both the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act, Privacy Act procedures should be employed. The individual should be advised that, while the Department of the Navy has elected to process his/her request in accordance with Privacy Act procedures, he/she can be assured that he/she will be provided with all the information that can be released under either the Privacy Act or the Freedom of Information Act.

Requests may fall, however, within the scope of other applicable directives as follows:
(1) Requests from an individual about another individual are governed by the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 (Freedom of Information Act) and the SECNAVINST 5720.42 series (32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D).

(2) Requests by the General Accounting Office for information or records pertaining to individuals, except with respect to the requirements for disclosure accounting as provided in § 701.107(c) are governed by the SECNAVINST 5740.26 series, Relations with the General Accounting Office.

(3) Official and third party requests for information from systems of records controlled by the Office of Personnel Management shall be governed by 5 CFR part 297 and the Federal Personnel Manual.

(b) Other directives. In case of a conflict, 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, take precedence over any existing Navy directive that deals with the personal privacy and rights of individuals regarding their personal records, except for disclosure of personal information required by 5 U.S.C. 552 (Freedom of Information Act) and implemented by the SECNAVINST 5720.42 series (32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D).

§ 701.102 Policy, responsibilities and authority.

(a) Policy. Subject to the provisions of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, it is the policy of the Department of the Navy to:

(1) Ensure that all its personnel at all echelons of command or authority comply fully with 5 U.S.C. 552a to protect the privacy of individuals from unwarranted invasions. Individuals covered by this protection are living citizens of the United States or aliens lawfully admitted for permanent residence. A legal guardian of an individual or parent of a minor has the same rights as the individual or minor and may act on the individual’s or minor’s behalf. (A member of the Armed Forces is not a minor for the purposes of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G).

(2) Collect, maintain, and use only that personal information needed to support a Navy function or program as authorized by law or Executive order, and disclose this information only as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 552a and 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G. In assessing need, consideration shall be given to alternatives, such as use of information not individually identifiable or use of sampling of certain data for certain individuals, only. Additionally, consideration is to be given to the length of time information is needed, and the cost of maintaining the information and for implementing and administering a Privacy Act program in accordance with the provisions of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G. Each addressee shall designate an official to be Privacy Act coordinator to:

(i) Serve as the principal point of contact on all Privacy Act matters.

(iii) Issue implementing instruction.

(iv) Review internal directives, practices, and procedures, including those for forms and records, for conformity with 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, when applicable.

(v) Compile and submit input for the annual report and record systems notices.

(vi) Maintain liaison with record management officials as appropriate (e.g., maintenance and disposal procedures and standards, forms, and reports).

(4) The systems managers are responsible for (with regard to systems of records under their cognizance):

(i) Ensuring that all personnel who in any way have access to the system or who are engaged in the development of procedures or handling records be informed of the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a and any unique safeguarding or maintenance procedures peculiar to that system.

(ii) Determining the content of and setting rules for operating the system.

(iii) Ensuring that the system has been published in the Federal Register and that any additions or significant changes are prepubished in the Federal Register.

(iv) Answering requests for information from individuals.

(v) Keeping accountability records of disclosures.

(vi) Evaluating information proposed for each system for relevance and necessity during the developmental phase of a new system or when an amendment to an existing system is proposed; in addition, annually comparing the system with the records system notice published in the Federal Register and considering:

(A) Relationship of each item of information to the statutory or regulatory purpose for which the system is maintained.

(B) Specific adverse consequences of not collecting each category of information.

(C) Possibility of meeting the information requirement through use of information not individually identifiable or through sampling techniques.

(D) Length of time the information is needed.
(E) Cost of maintaining the data compared to the risk or adverse consequences of not maintaining it.
(F) Necessity and relevance of the information to the mission of the command.
(vii) Keeping the Privacy Act coordinator informed of non-routine Privacy Act requests.
(5) Each employee of the Department of the Navy has certain responsibilities for safeguarding the rights of others. Employees shall:
(i) Not disclose any information contained in a system of records by any means of communication to any person, or agency, except as authorized in 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G.
(ii) Not maintain unpublished official files which would fall under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a.
(iii) Safeguard the privacy of individuals and the confidentiality of personal information contained in a system of records.
(iv) Familiarize themselves with the Rules of Conduct. See § 701.115.
(c) Denial authority. Only the following chief officials, their respective vice commanders, deputies, and those principal assistants specifically designated by the chief official are authorized to deny requests for notification, access, and amendment made under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, when the records relate to matters within their respective areas of command, technical, or administrative responsibility, as appropriate.
(1) For the Navy Department. The Civilian Executive Assistants; the Chief of Naval Operations; the Commandant of the Marine Corps; the Chief of Naval Personnel; the Commanders of Naval Systems Commands; the Commanders of the Naval Intelligence Command, Naval Security Group Command, and Naval Telecommunications Command; the Commander, Naval Medical Command; the Auditor General of the Navy; the Naval Inspector General; the Assistant Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Civilian Personnel/Equal Employment Opportunity); the Chief of Naval Education and Training; the Chief of Naval Reserve; the Chief of Naval Research; the Commander, Naval Oceanography Command; the Director, Naval Civilian Personnel Command; the head of Department of the Navy Staff Offices, Boards, and Councils; the Assistant Judge Advocate General (Civil Law); and the Assistant Judge Advocate General (Military Law).
(2) For the Shore Establishment. (i) All officers authorized pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 822, or designated as empowered in Section 0103d, JAGINST 5800.7 series, Manual of the Judge Advocate General, to convene general courts martial.
(ii) The Director, Naval Security and Investigative Command and the Assistant Commander (Management and Operations), Naval Legal Service Command.
(3) In the Operating Forces. (i) All officers authorized pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 822, or designated as empowered in Section 0103d, JAGINST 5800.7 series, Manual of the Judge Advocate General, to convene general courts martial.
(d) Review authority. (1) The Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs), as the Secretary's designee, shall act upon requests for administrative review of initial denials of requests for amendment of records related to fitness reports and performance evaluations of military personnel.
(2) The Judge Advocate General and the General Counsel, as the Secretary's designee, shall act upon requests for notification, access, or amendment of records, as set forth in § 701.104 (b), (c), and (d), other than as indicated in paragraph (d)(1) of this section, and other than initial denials of requests for notification, access, or amendment of records from civilian Official Personnel Folders or records contained on any other Office of Personnel Management (OPM) forms, which will be reviewed by OPM.
(e) The authority of the Secretary of the Navy, as the head of an agency, to request records subject to the 5 U.S.C. 552a from an agency external to the Department of Defense for civil or criminal law enforcement purposes, pursuant to subsection (b)(2) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, is delegated to the Commandant of the Marine Corps, the Director of Naval Intelligence, the Judge Advocate General, and the General Counsel.
§ 701.103 Definitions.
For the purposes of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, the following meanings apply:
(a) Access. Reviewing or obtaining copies by individuals of records that pertain to themselves, or by agents designated by the individuals, or by their individual's legal guardians, that are a part of a system of records.
(b) Agency. For purposes of disclosing records, the Department of Defense is an "agency". For all other purposes, to include applications for access and amendment, denial of access and amendment, appeals from denials, and recordkeeping about release to non-DOD agencies, each DOD component is considered a separate "agency".
(c) Confidential source. Any individual or organization that has given information to the Federal government under: (1) An express promise that the identity of the source would be withheld, or (2) an implied promise to withhold the identity of the source made before September 27, 1975.
(d) Disclosure. The conveyance of information about an individual, by any means of communication, to an organization or to an individual who is not the subject of the record. In the context of the 5 U.S.C. 552a and 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, this term only applies to personal information that is part of a system of records.
(e) Individual. A living citizen of the United States, or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence; or a member of the United States naval service, including a minor. Additionally, the legal guardian of an individual or a parent of a minor has the same rights as the individual, and may act on behalf of the individual concerning under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G. Members of the naval service, once properly accepted, are not minors for purposes of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G. The use of the term “individual” does not, however, vest rights in the representatives of decedents to act on behalf of the decedent under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G (except as specified in § 701.105(b)), nor does the term embrace individuals acting in an entrepreneurial capacity (e.g., sole proprietorships and partnerships).
(f) Maintain. When used in the context of records on individuals, includes collect, file or store, preserve, retrieve, update or change, use, or disseminate.
(g) Official use. Within the context of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, this term encompasses those instances in which officials and employees of the Department of the Navy have a demonstrated need for use of any record to complete a mission or function of the Department, or which is prescribed or authorized by a directive.
(h) Personal information. Information about an individual that is intimate or private to the individual, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual's official function or public life.
(i) Privacy Act request. A request from an individual for information about himself/herself concerning the existence of, access to, or amendment of records that are located in a system of records. (The request must cite or reasonably imply that it is pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a).
(j) Record. Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by or for the Department of the Navy or by an element of the Navy Department, operating forces, or shore establishment, including, but not limited to, the individual's education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history, and that contains his/her name, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph.

(k) Risk assessment. An analysis which considers information sensitivity, vulnerability, and cost to a computer facility or word processing center in safeguarding personal information processed or stored in the facility or center.

(l) Routine use. The disclosure of a record outside the Department of Defense for a use that is compatible with the purpose for which the records were collected and maintained by the Department of Defense. The routine use must be included in the published system notice for the system of records involved.

(m) Statistical record. A record maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only, which may not be used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual.

(n) System of records. A group of records from which information "is", as opposed to "can be", retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. The capability to retrieve information by personal identifiers alone does not subject a system of records to 5 U.S.C. 552a and 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G.

(o) System manager. That official who has overall responsibility for records within a particular system. He/she may serve at any level in the Department of the Navy. Systems managers are indicated in the published record system notices. If more than one official is indicated as a system manager, initial responsibility resides with the manager at the appropriate level (e.g., for local records, at the local activity).

(p) Working day. All days excluding Saturday, Sunday, and legal holidays.

§ 701.104 Notification, access, and amendment procedures.

(a) General—(1) Summary of requirements. (i) Notification procedures are provided under subsection (e)(4) of 5 U.S.C. 552a to enable an individual to ascertain from the appropriate system manager whether or not a particular system of records contains information pertaining to him/her. If the system does contain such a record, the individual may request access to the record, pursuant to subsection (d)(1) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, to ascertain the contents. Amendment procedures are provided under subsections (d)(2) and (3) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, to enable the individual to seek correction or deletion of information about himself/herself in the record which he/she considers to be erroneous. If a request for amendment is denied after a final determination, the individual may file a "statement of dispute," to be noted in the pertinent records and to be shown in connection with disclosures of such records. Individuals have a statutory right to obtain administrative review of denials of requests for amendment, and by 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, are accorded the right to obtain similar review of denials of requests for notification and access.

(ii) The provisions of this section apply to requests by individuals, or their authorized representatives, for records pertaining to themselves that are contained in systems of records. 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G does not, however, require that an individual be given notification or access to a record that is not retrieved by name or other individual identifier. Requests for amendment of records contained in a system of records will normally be processed in accordance with 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, unless: (A) they are routine requests for administrative corrections not specifying that they are made under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G or 5 U.S.C. 552a, or (B) they are requests addressed to the Board for Correction of Naval Records, which is governed by another authority.

(2) System managers. Systems managers are responsible for ensuring that, for each system of records maintained, a records system notice is published in the Federal Register, stating the procedures by which an individual may be notified whether the system contains records pertaining to him/her. Additionally, systems managers are responsible for establishing, and making available to individuals upon request, rules applicable to requests for access or amendment of records within each system. Such rules must conform to the requirements of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, and to matters indicated in §§ 701.113 and 701.114. In addition, they should contain the following:

(i) A statement of custodial officials other than the system manager, if any, authorized to grant requests for notification or access;

(ii) The minimum formal requirements for requests, including applicable requirements for requests to be reduced to writing; and, in the case of a request to provide the requester's records directly to an authorized representative who is other than the parent of a minor, or other legal guardian—an authorization signed within the last 45 days specifying the records to be released and the recipient of the records (notarized authorizations may be required if the sensitivity of the information in the records warrants);

(iii) The information which should be provided by the individual to assist in identifying relevant systems of records and the individual identifiers (e.g., full name, social security number, etc.) needed to locate records in the particular system; and,

(iv) The requirements for verifying the requester's identity, to which the following policies apply:

(A) Prior to being given notification or access to personal information, an individual is required to provide reasonable verification of his/her identity. No verification of identity, however, shall be required of an individual seeking notification or access to records which are otherwise available to any member of the public under 32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D.

(B) In the case of an individual who seeks notification, access, or amendment in person, verification of identity will normally be made from those documents that an individual is likely to have readily available, such as an employee or military identification card, driver's license, or medical card.

(C) When notification, access, or amendment is requested by mail, verification of identity may be obtained by requiring the individual to provide certain minimum identifying data, such as date of birth and some item of information in the record that only the concerned individual would likely know. If the sensitivity of the information in the record warrants, a signed and notarized statement of identity may be required.

(D) When a record has already been identified, an individual shall not be denied notification or access solely for refusing to disclose his/her social security number.

(3) Responsibilities for action on initial requests. (i) Subject to the provisions of this section and the applicable system manager's rules, requests for notification and access may be granted by officials having custody of the records, even if they are not systems managers or denial authorities. Requests for amendment may be granted by the cognizant system manager. Denials of initial requests for notification, access, or amendment of records under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, however, may be made only by those officials designated as denial authorities under § 701.102(c).

(ii) Investigative/non-investigative records. (A) Copies of investigative records that are compiled by an investigative organization, but are in the temporary custody of another organization, which is holding the record for disciplinary, administrative, judicial, investigative, or other purposes, are the records of the originating investigative organization. Upon completion of the official action, the investigative reports are required to be destroyed or returned, in accordance with the instructions of the originating investigative activity. Individuals seeking notification or access, or making other requests under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, concerning such records, shall be directed to the originating investigative organization. For example, a request for notification or access to a Naval Investigative Service report in the temporary custody of another activity should be forwarded directly to the Commander, Naval Security and Investigative Command.

(B) Copies of non-investigative records (including medical and/or personnel) located in the files of another agency must be referred for release determination. The originating agency may either authorize the records’ release by the agency that located them or request that they be referred for processing. The individual requesting his/her records will be notified of records referred for processing.

(4) Blanket requests not honored. Requests seeking notification and/or access concerning all systems of records within the Department of the Navy, or a component thereof, shall not be honored. Individuals making such requests shall be notified that:

(i) Requests for notification and/or access must be directed to the appropriate system manager for the particular record system, as indicated in the current Federal Register systems notices (a citation should be provided), and (ii) requests must either designate the particular system of records to be searched, or provide sufficient information for the system manager to ascertain the appropriate system.

Individuals should also be provided with any other information needed for obtaining consideration of their requests.

(5) Criteria for determinations. (i) As further explained in § 701.106, portions of designated records systems (indicated in subpart G of this part) are exempt, in certain circumstances, from the requirement to provide notification, access, and/or amendment. Only denial authorities (and the designated review authority) may exercise an exemption and deny a request, and then only in those cases where there is specifically determined to be a significant and legitimate governmental purpose served by denying the request. A request for notification may be denied only when an applicable exemption has been exercised by a denial or review authority. A request for access may be denied by a denial or review authority, in whole or in part, on the basis of the exercise of an applicable exemption or for the reasons set forth in paragraph (a)(3)(ii) or (iii) of this section.

(ii) Where a record has been compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding, a denial authority (or the designated review authority) may deny an individual’s request for access to that record pursuant to subsection (d)(5) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, provided that there is specifically determined to be a significant and legitimate governmental purpose to be served by denying the request. Consultation with the Office of the Judge Advocate General, Office of General Counsel, or other originator, as appropriate, is required prior to granting or denying access to attorney-advice material. This includes, but is not limited to, legal opinions.

(iii) As indicated in § 701.103(e), where a record pertains to an individual who is a minor, the minor’s parent or legal guardian is normally entitled to obtain notification concerning, and access to, the minor’s record, pursuant to the provisions of this section. When, however, an applicable law or regulation prohibits notification to, or access by, a parent or legal guardian with respect to a particular record, or portions of a record, pertaining to a minor, the provisions of the governing law or regulation and § 701.106, shall govern disclosures of the existence or contents of such records to the minor’s parent or legal guardian. (Members of the naval service, once properly accepted, are not minors for the purposes of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G.)

(iv) Subject to the provisions of this section, a medical record shall be made available to the individual to whom it pertains unless, in the judgment of a physician, access to such record could have an adverse effect upon the individual’s physical or mental health. When it has been determined that granting access to medical information could have an adverse effect upon the individual to whom it pertains, the individual may be asked to name a physician to whom the information shall then be transmitted. This shall not be deemed a denial of a request for access.

(6) Time requirements for making acknowledgments and determinations. (i) A request for notification, access, or amendment of a record shall be acknowledged in writing within 10 working days (Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays excluded) of receipt by the proper office. The acknowledgement shall clearly identify the request and advise the individual when he/she may expect to be advised of action taken on the request. No separate acknowledgement of receipt is necessary if a request for notification or access can be acted upon, and the individual advised of such action, within the 10 working day period. If a request for amendment is presented by a person, written acknowledgement may be provided at the time the request is presented.

(ii) Determinations and required action on initial requests for notification, access or amendment of records shall be completed, if reasonably possible, within 30 working days of receipt by the cognizant office.

(b) Notification procedures — (1) Action upon receipt of request. Subject to the provisions of this section, upon receipt of an individual’s initial request for notification, the system manager or the other appropriate custodial official shall acknowledge the request as required by paragraph (a)(6)(i) of this section, and take one of the following actions:

(i) If consideration cannot be given to the request, because:

(A) The individual’s identity is not satisfactorily verified;

(B) The record system is not adequately identified, or the individual has not furnished the information needed to locate a record within the system; or

(C) The request is erroneously addressed to an official having no responsibility for the record or system of records in question;

inform the individual of the correct means, or additional information needed, for obtaining consideration of his/her request for notification.

(ii) Notify the individual, in writing, whether the system of records contains a record pertaining to him/her (a notification that a system of records contains no records pertaining to the individual shall not be deemed a denial);

(iii) If it is determined that notification should be denied under an available exemption and the official is not a denial authority, forward the request to the cognizant denial authority, with a copy of the requested record, and comments and recommendations concerning disposition; or
(iv) If the official is a denial authority, take the appropriate action prescribed in paragraph (b)(2) of this section.

(2) Action by denial authority. (i) If the denial authority determines that no exemption is available or that an available exemption should not be exercised, he/she shall provide the requested notification, or direct the system manager or appropriate custodial official to do so.

(ii) If the denial authority determines that an exemption is applicable and that denial of the notification would serve a significant and legitimate governmental purpose (e.g., avoid interfering with an on-going law enforcement investigation), he/she shall promptly send the requesting individual an original and one copy of a letter stating that no records from the systems of records specified in the request are available to the individual under 5 U.S.C. 552a. The letter shall also inform the individual that he/she may request further administrative review of the matter within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter, by letter to the: Judge Advocate General (Code 14), Department of the Navy, 200 Stoval Street, Alexandria, VA 22332

The individual shall be further informed that a letter requesting such review shall contain the enclosed copy of the denial letter and a statement of the individual’s reasons for requesting the review.

(iii) A copy of the letter denoting notification shall be forwarded directly to the Chief of Naval Operations (OP-09B30) or the Commandant of the Marine Corps (Code M), as appropriate. These officials shall maintain copies of all denial letters in a form suitable for rapid retrieval, periodic statistical compilation, and management and evaluation.

(3) Action by reviewing authority.

Upon receipt of a request for review of a determination denying an individual’s initial request for notification, the Judge Advocate General shall obtain a copy of the case file from the denial authority, review the matter, and make a final administrative determination. That official is designated to perform such acts as may be required by or on behalf of the Secretary of the Navy to accomplish a thorough review and to effectuate the determination. Within 30 working days of receipt of the request for review, whenever practicable, the Judge Advocate General shall inform the requesting individual, in writing, of the final determination and the action thereon. If the final determination is to grant notification, the Judge Advocate General may either provide the notification or direct the system manager to do so. If the final determination is to deny notification, the individual shall be informed that it has been determined upon review that there are no records in the specified systems of records that are available to him/her under 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(c) Access procedures—(1) Fees. When a copy of a record is furnished to an individual in response to a request for access, he/she will normally be charged duplication fees only. When duplication costs for a Privacy Act request total less than $30, fees may be waived automatically. Normally, only one copy of any record or document will be provided.

(i) Use the following fee schedule:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Request</th>
<th>Fee</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Office copy (per page)</td>
<td>$1.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Microfiche (per fiche)</td>
<td>$.25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(ii) Checks or money orders to defray fees/charges should be made payable to the Treasurer of the United States and deposited to the miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury account maintained at the finance office servicing the activity.

(iii) Do not charge fees for:

(A) Performing record searches.

(B) Reproducing a document for the convenience of the Navy.

(C) Reproducing a record in order to let a requester review it if it is the only means by which the record can be shown to him/her (e.g., when a copy must be made in order to delete information).

(D) Copying a record when it is the only means available for review.

(2) Action upon receipt of request. Subject to the provisions of this section, upon receipt of an individual’s initial request for access, the system manager or other appropriate custodial official shall acknowledge the request as required by paragraph (a)(6)(i) of this section, and take one of the following actions:

(i) If consideration cannot be given to the request because—

(A) The individual’s identity is not satisfactorily verified;

(B) The record system is not adequately identified or the individual has not furnished the information needed to locate a record within a system; or

(C) The request is erroneously addressed to an official not having responsibility for granting access to the record or system of record in question;

inform the individual of the correct means, or additional information needed, for obtaining consideration of his/her request for access.

(ii) If it is determined that the individual should be granted access to the entire record requested, the official shall inform the individual, in writing, that access is granted, and shall either:

(A) Inform the individual that he/she may review the record at a specified place and at specified times, that he/she may be accompanied by a person of his/her own choosing to review the record (in which event he/she may be asked to furnish written authorization for the record to be discussed in the accompanying person’s presence), and that he/she may further obtain a copy of the record upon agreement to pay a duplication fee; or

(B) Furnish a copy of the record, if the individual requested that a copy be sent and agreed in advance to pay duplication fees unless such fees are waived.

(iii) If it is necessary to deny the individual access to all or part of the requested record, and,

(A) The official is not a denial authority—forward the request to the cognizant denial authority, with a copy of the requested record, and comments and recommendations concerning disposition; or

(B) The official is a denial authority—take the action prescribed in paragraph (c)(3)(ii) or (iii) of this section.

(3) Action by denial authority. (i) If the denial authority determines that access should be granted to the entire record, he/she shall promptly make it available to the requester in the manner prescribed in paragraph (c)(2)(ii) of this section, or direct the system manager to do so.

(ii) If the denial authority determines that access to the entire record should be denied under the criteria specified in paragraph (a)(5) (i), (ii), or (iii) of this section, he/she shall promptly send the requesting individual an original and one copy of a letter informing the individual of the denial of access and the reasons therefor, including citation of any applicable exemptions and a brief discussion of the significant and legitimate governmental purpose(s) served by the denial of access. The denial letter shall also inform the individual that he/she may request further administrative review of the matter within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter, by letter:

(A) If the record is from a civilian Official Personnel Folder or is contained on any other OPM form, to—
The individual shall be further informed that a letter requesting such review should contain the enclosed copy of the denial letter and a statement of the individual's reasons for seeking review of the initial determination.

(iii) A copy of the denial letter shall be forwarded directly to the Chief of Naval Operations (OP-09830) or the Commandant of the Marine Corps (Code M), as provided in paragraph (b)(2)(iii) of this section.

(iv) If the denial authority determines that access to portions of the record should be denied under the criteria specified in paragraph (a)(6)(i), (ii), (iii) of this section, he/she shall promptly make an expurgated copy of the record available to the requesting individual and issue a denial letter as to the portions of the record that are required to be deleted.

(a) Action by reviewing authority.

Upon receipt of a request for review of a determination denying an individual's initial request for access, the Judge Advocate General or the General Counsel shall obtain a copy of the case file from the denial authority, review the matter, and make a final administrative determination. He/she is designated to perform such acts as may be required by or on behalf of the Secretary of the Navy to accomplish a thorough review and to effectuate the determination.

(i) Within 30 working days of receipt of the request for review, if practicable, the Judge Advocate General or the General Counsel shall inform the requesting individual, in writing, of the final determination and the action thereon.

(ii) If such a determination has the effect of granting a request for access, in whole or in part, the Judge Advocate General or the General Counsel may, either provide access in accordance with paragraphs (c)(2)(ii) (A) or (B) of this section, or direct the system manager to do so.

(iii) If the final determination has the effect of denying a request for access, in whole or part, the individual shall be informed of the reason(s) and statutory basis for the denial—including regulatory citations for any exemption exercised and an explanation of the significant and legitimate governmental purpose served by exercising the exemption—and his/her rights to seek judicial review.

(iv) If the determination is based, in whole or part, on a security classification, the individual shall be apprised of the matters set forth in §701.9(d)(4)(ii) of this part relating to declassification review and appeal.

(d) Amendment procedures—(1) Criteria for determinations on requests for amendment.

(i) As further explained in §701.108, many of the systems of records listed in subpart G of this part, are exempt, in part, from amendment requirements. Such exemptions, where applicable, may be exercised only by denial authorities (and by the designated review authorities upon requests for review of initial denials), and then only in cases where there is specifically determined to be a significant and legitimate governmental purpose to be served by exercising the exemption.

(ii) If an available exemption is not exercised, an individual's request for amendment of a record pertaining to himself/herself shall be granted if it is determined, on the basis of the information presented by the requester and all other reasonably available related records, that the requested amendment is warranted in order to make the record sufficiently accurate, relevant, timely, and complete as to ensure fairness in any determination which may be made by the individual on the basis of the record. If the requested amendment would involve the deletion of particular information from the record, the information shall be deleted unless it is determined that in addition to being accurate, relevant to the individual, timely, and complete—the information is irrelevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose or function required to be performed by the Department of the Navy pursuant to a statute or Executive order.

(iii) The foregoing is not intended to permit the alteration of evidence presented in the course of judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Any changes in such records should be made only through the procedures established for changing such records. These provisions are not designed to permit collateral attack upon which has already been the subject of a judicial or quasi-judicial action. For example, an individual would not be permitted to challenge a courts-martial conviction under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, but the individual would be able to challenge the accuracy with which a conviction has been recorded in a record.

(iv) The procedures in paragraph (d) of this section may be applied to requests for amendment of records contained in a system of records, provided they can be identified and located.

(2) Action upon receipt of request.

Subject to the provisions of this section, upon receipt of an individual's initial request to amend a record, the system manager (or official occupying a comparable position with respect to a record not contained in a system of records) shall acknowledge the request in the manner prescribed by paragraph (a)(6)(i) of this section, and, within 30 days, if reasonably possible, take one of the following actions:

(i) If consideration cannot be given to the request because—

(A) The individual's identity is not satisfactorily verified;

(B) The individual has not furnished the information needed to locate the record;

(C) The individual has not provided adequate information as to how or why the record should be amended; or

(D) The request is erroneously addressed to an official having no responsibility for the record or systems of records in question;

inform the individual of the correct means or additional information needed for obtaining consideration of his/her request for amendment (a request may not be rejected, nor may the individual be required to resubmit his/her request, unless this is essential for processing the request).

(ii) If the system manager determines that the individual's request to amend a record is warranted under the criteria in paragraph (d)(1) of this section, he/she shall promptly amend the record and advise the individual, in writing, of that action and its effect. (The system manager also should attempt to identify other records under his/her responsibility affected by the requested amendment, and should make other necessary amendments, accordingly.) Amendments to records should be made in accordance with existing directives and established procedures for changing records, if applicable and consistent with 32 CFR part 701, subpart F. The system manager shall advise previous recipients of the record from whom a disclosure accounting has been made that the record has been amended, and of the substance of the correction.

(iii) If the system manager is a denial authority, and denial of the request for amendment, in whole or part, is warranted, take the appropriate action prescribed in paragraph (d)(3) (ii) or (iii) of this section; or
(iv) If the system manager is not a denial authority, but denial of the request for amendment, in whole or part, appears to be warranted, forward the request to the cognizant denial authority with a copy of the disputed record, and comments and recommendations concerning disposition.

(3) Action by denial authority. (i) If the denial authority determines that amendment of the record is warranted under the criteria in paragraph (d)(1) of this section, he/she shall direct the system manager to take the action prescribed in paragraph (d)(2)(i) of this section.

(ii) If the denial authority determines that amendment of the record is not warranted under the criteria in paragraph (d)(1) of this section, he/she shall promptly send the requesting individual an original and one copy of a letter informing him/her of the denial of the request and the reason(s) for the denial, including a citation of any exemption exercised and a brief discussion of the significant and legitimate governmental purpose(s) served by exercising the exemption. The denial letter shall inform the individual that he/she may request further administrative review of the matter, as follows:

(A) If the record is a fitness report or performance evaluation (including proficiency and conduct marks) from a military personnel file—by letter, within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter, to:
Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs), Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20350; or
(B) If the record is from a civilian Official Personnel Folder or is contained in any other Office of Personnel Management form—by letter, within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter, to:
Director, Bureau of Manpower Information Systems, Office of Personnel Management, 1900 E Street, NW., Washington, DC 20415; or
(C) If the record pertains to the employment of a present or former Navy civilian employee, such as Navy civilian personnel records or an employee’s grievance or appeal file—by letter, within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter, to:
General Counsel, Department of the Navy, Washington, DC 20360

(D) For any other record—by letter, within 60 calendar days from the date of the denial letter, to:
Judge Advocate General (Code 14), Department of the Navy, 220 Stovall Street, Alexandria, VA 22332.

The individual shall be further informed that a letter requesting such review should contain the enclosed copy of the denial letter and a statement of the reasons for seeking review of the initial determination denying the request for amendment. A copy of the denial letter shall be forwarded to the Chief of Naval Operations or the Commandant of the Marine Corps, as provided in paragraph (b)(2)(ii) of this section.

(iii) If the denial authority determines that a request for amendment of a record should be granted in part and denied in part, he/she shall take the action prescribed in paragraph (d)(3)(ii) of this section with respect to the portion of the request which is denied.

(4) Action by reviewing authority. Upon receipt of a request for review for a determination denying an individual’s initial request for amendment of a record, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs), the General Counsel, or the Judge Advocate General, as appropriate, shall obtain a copy of the case file from the denial authority, review the matter, and make a final administrative determination, either granting or denying amendment, in whole or in part. Those officials are designated to perform such acts as may be required by or on behalf of the Secretary of the Navy to accomplish a thorough review and effectuate the determination.

(i) Within 30 working days of receipt of the request for review, the designated reviewing official shall inform the requesting individual, in writing, of the final determination and the action thereon, except that the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Manpower and Reserve Affairs) may authorize an extension of the time limit where warranted because a fair and equitable review cannot be completed within the prescribed period of time, or for other good cause. If an extension is granted, the requesting individual shall be informed, in writing, of the reason for the delay, and the approximate date on which the review will be completed and the final determination made.

(ii) If, upon completion of review, the reviewing official determines that denial of the request of amendment is warranted under the criteria in paragraph (d)(1) of this section, the individual shall be informed, in writing:

(A) Of the final denial of the request for amendment of the record, and the reason(s) therefor;

(B) Of the right to file with the appropriate system manager a concise statement of the individual’s reason(s) for disagreeing with the decision of the agency, and that such statement of dispute must be received by the system manager within 60 calendar days following the date of the reviewing authority’s final determination;

(C) Of other procedures for filing such statement of dispute, and that a properly filed statement of dispute will be made available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed, together with, if deemed appropriate, a brief statement summarizing the reason(s) why the Department of the Navy refused the request to amend the record;

(D) That prior recipients of the disputed record, to the extent that they can be ascertained from the prescribed disclosure accounting, will be provided a copy of the statement of dispute and, if deemed appropriate, a brief statement summarizing the reason(s) why the Department of the Navy refused the request to amend the record; and

(E) Of his/her right to seek judicial review of the reviewing authority’s refusal to amend a record.

(iii) If the reviewing official determines upon review that the request for amendment of the record should be granted, he/she shall inform the requesting individual of the determination, in writing, and he/she shall direct the system manager to amend the record accordingly, and to inform previous recipients of the record for whom disclosure accounting has been made that the record has been amended and the substance of the correction.

(5) Statement of dispute. When an individual properly files a statement of dispute under the provisions of paragraphs (d)(4)(ii) (B) and (C) of this section, the system manager shall clearly annotate the record so that the dispute is apparent to anyone who may subsequently access, use, or disclose it. The notation itself should be integral to the record. For automated systems of records, the notation may consist of a special indicator on the entire record or on the specific part of the record in dispute. The system manager shall advise previous recipients of the record for whom accounting disclosure has been made that the record has been disputed, if the statement of dispute is germane to the information disclosed, and shall provide a copy of the individual’s statement, together with, if deemed appropriate, a brief statement summarizing the reason(s) why the Department of the Navy refused the request to amend the record.

(ii) The individual’s statement of dispute need not be filed as an integral part of the record to which it pertains. Provided the record is integrally annotated as required above. It shall, however, be maintained in such a manner to permit ready retrieval whenever the disputed portion of the record is to be disclosed. When information which is the subject of a statement of dispute is subsequently disclosed, the system manager shall note that the information is disputed, and provide a copy of the individual’s statement of dispute.

(iii) The system manager may include a brief summary of the reasons for not making an amendment when disclosing disputed information. Summaries normally will be limited to the reasons stated to the individual. Although these summaries may be treated as part of the individual’s record, they will not be subject to the amendment procedures of this section.

§ 701.105 Disclosure to others and disclosure accounting.

(a) Summary of requirements.

Subsection (b) of 5 U.S.C. 552a prohibits an agency from disclosing any record contained in a system of records to any person or agency, except pursuant to the written request or consent of the individual to whom the record pertains, unless the disclosure is authorized under one or more of the 11 exceptions noted in paragraph (b) of this section.

Subsection (i) of 5 U.S.C. 552a outlines criminal penalties (as prescribed in 32 CFR 701.110) for personnel who knowingly and willfully make unauthorized disclosures of information about individuals from an agency’s records. Subsection (c) of 5 U.S.C. 552a requires accurate accounting of records. The record of the section, in connection with most disclosures of a record pertaining to an individual (including disclosures made pursuant to the individual’s request or consent). This is to permit the individual to determine what agencies or persons have been provided information from the record, enable the agency to advise prior recipients of the record of any subsequent amendments or statements of dispute concerning the record, and provide an audit trail for review of the agency’s compliance with 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(b) Conditions of disclosure. No record contained in a system of records shall be disclosed, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the record pertains, unless disclosure of the record falls within one of the exceptions. Where the record subject is mentally incompetent, insane, or deceased, no medical record shall be disclosed except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written request of, the record subject’s next of kin or legal representative, unless disclosure of the record falls within one of the exceptions. Disclosure to third parties on the basis of the written consent or request of the individual is permitted, but not required, by 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G.

(1) Intra-agency. Disclosure may be made to personnel of the Department of the Navy or other components of the Department of Defense (DOD) (including private contractor personnel who are engaged to perform services needed in connection with the operation of a system of records for a DOD component) who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties, provided this use is compatible with the purpose for which the record is maintained. This provision is based on the “need to know” concept.

(i) This may include, for example, disclosure to personnel managers, review boards, discipline officers, courts-martial personnel, medical officers, investigating officers, and representatives of the Judge Advocate General, Auditor General, Naval Inspector General, or the Naval Investigative Service, who require the information in order to discharge their official duties. Examples of personnel outside the Navy who may be included are: Personnel of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Armed Forces Reserve and Examining Stations, Defense Investigative Service, or the other military departments, who require the information in order to discharge an official duty.

(ii) It may also include the transfer of records between Naval components and non-DOD agencies in connection with the Personnel Exchange Program (PEP) and interagency support agreements. Disclosure accounting is not required for intraagency disclosure and disclosures made in connection with interagency support agreements or the PEP. Although some disclosures authorized by paragraph (b) of this section might also meet the criteria for disclosure under other exceptions specified in paragraphs (b)(2) through (b)(12) of this section, they should be treated under paragraph (b)(1) of this section for disclosure accounting purposes.

(2) Freedom of Information Act. Disclosure may be made of those records, or information obtained from records, required to be released under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552 and 32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D. Disclosure accounting is not required when information is disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act. That act has the general effect of requiring the release of any record which does not fall within one of the nine exemptions specified in subpart A, § 701.5(b)(4)(ii), including an exemption for records which, if disclosed, would result in a clearly unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of an individual. The phrase “clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy” states a policy which balances the interest of individuals in protecting their personal affairs from public scrutiny against the interest of the public having available information relating to the affairs of government. The interests of the recipient or of society must be weighed against the degree of the invasion of privacy. Numerous factors must be considered such as: The nature of the information to be disclosed (i.e., Do individuals normally have an expectation of privacy in the type of information to be disclosed?); importance of the public interest served by the disclosure and probability of further disclosure which may result in an unwarranted invasion of privacy; relationship of the requestor to the public interest being served; newsworthiness of the individual to whom the information pertains (e.g., high ranking officer, public figure); degree of sensitivity of the information from the standpoint of the individual or the individual’s family, and its potential for being misused to the harm, embarrassment, or inconvenience of the individual or the individual’s family, the passage of time since the event which is the topic of the record (e.g., to disclose that an individual has been arrested and is being held for trial by court-martial is normally permitted, while to disclose an arrest which did not result in conviction might not be permitted after the passage of time); and the degree to which the information is already in the public domain or is already known by the particular requester. Examples of information pertaining to civilian personnel, which are normally released without an unwarranted invasion of privacy are: Name, present and past grades, present and past position titles, present and past salaries, present and past duty stations, and office or duty telephone numbers. Disclosure of other personal information pertaining to civilian employees shall be made in accordance with 5 CFR part 297, and the Federal Personnel Manual. Determinations as to disclosure of personal information regarding military personnel shall be made using the same balancing test as explained above. The following are examples of information concerning military personnel, which can normally be released without the consent of the individual upon request, as they are a matter of public record: Name, rank, date of rank, gross salary, present and past duty assignments, future assignments which are officially established, office or duty telephone numbers, source of commission, promotion sequence number, awards and decorations, attendance at professional military schools (major area of study, school, year of education, and degree), and duty status at any given time. When the information sought relates to a list of members who are attached to a unit located in foreign territory, routinely deployable, or engaged in sensitive operations, the policy set forth in paragraph (b)(2)(vi) of this section shall be applied. In instances where the duty address or phone number of a specifically named member who is attached to such a unit is sought, the concerns underlying the policy involved when releasing such information as to a list of members should be weighed along with the other considerations required in the case of all other members.

(i) Disclosure of home addresses and home telephone numbers without permission shall normally be considered a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Accordingly, disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 is normally prohibited. Requests for home addresses (includes barracks and Government-provided quarters) may be referred to the last known address of the individual for reply at the person's discretion. In such cases, requesters will be notified accordingly.

(ii) Disclosure is permitted pursuant to the balancing test when circumstances of a case weigh in favor of disclosure. Disclosure of home address to individuals for the purpose of initiating court proceedings for the collection of alimony or child support, and to state and local tax authorities for the purpose of enforcing tax laws, are examples of circumstances where disclosure could be appropriate. However, care must be taken prior to release to ensure that a written record is prepared to document the reasons for the release determination.

(iii) Lists or compilations of names and home addresses, or single home addresses will not be disclosed without the consent of the individual involved, to the public including, but not limited to, individual Members of Congress, creditors, and commercial and financial institutions. Requests for home addresses may be referred to the last known address of the individual for reply at the individual's discretion and the requester will be notified accordingly. This prohibition may be waived when circumstances of a case indicate compelling and overriding interests of the individual involved.

(iv) An individual shall be given the opportunity to elect not to have his/her home address and telephone number listed in a Navy activity telephone directory. The individual shall also be excused from paying additional costs that may be involved in maintaining an unlisted number for Government-owned telephone service if the individual complies with regulations providing for such unlisted numbers. However, the exclusion of a home address and telephone number from a Navy activity telephone directory does not apply to the mandatory listing of such information on a command's recall roster.

(v) Information regarding nonjudicial punishment normally will not be released in response to Freedom of Information Act requests. However, the usual balancing of interests must be done. It is possible that in a particular case, information regarding nonjudicial punishment should be disclosed pursuant to an FOIA request, i.e., the facts leading to a nonjudicial punishment are particularly newsworthy or the case involves a senior official abusing the public trust through office-related misconduct, such as embezzlement. (Note: Announcement of nonjudicial punishment dispositions under JAGMAN, subsection 0107, is a proper exercise of command authority and not a release of information under 32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D or 32 CFR Part 702, subparts F and G.)

(vi) Unclassified information about service members may be withheld when disclosure "would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" under 5 U.S.C. 552 (exemption (b)(6) applies). Disclosure of lists of names and duty addresses or duty telephone numbers of members assigned to units that are stationed in foreign territories, routinely deployable, or sensitive can constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Disclosure of such information poses a security threat to those service members because it reveals information about their degree of involvement in military actions in support of national policy, the type of naval unit to which they are attached, and their presence or absence from their households. Release of such information aids the targeting of service members and their families by terrorists or other persons opposed to implementation of national policy. Only an extraordinary public interest in disclosure of this information can outweigh the need and responsibility of the Navy to protect the tranquility and safety of service members and their families who repeatedly have been subjected to harassment, threats and physical injury. Units covered by this policy are:

(A) Those located outside the 50 states, District of Columbia, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, U.S. Virgin Islands and American Samoa.

(B) Routinely deployable units. Those units forming the core of the operating forces, i.e., organized, equipped and specifically tasked to participate directly in strategic or tactical operations. As such, they normally deploy from home port or permanent station on a periodic or rotating basis to meet operational requirements or participate in scheduled exercises. For the Marine Corps, this includes all Fleet Marine Forces. For the Navy, this includes routinely deployable ships, aviation squadrons and operational staffs. It does not include ships undergoing yard work or whose primary mission is support or training, e.g., yard craft and auxiliary aircraft landing training ships.

(C) Units engaged in sensitive operations. Those primarily involved in the conduct of covert, clandestine or classified missions, including units primarily involved in collecting, handling, disposing or storing of classified information and materials. This also includes units engaged in training or advising foreign personnel. Examples of units covered by this exemption are SEAL Teams, Security Group Commands, Weapons Stations, and Communication Stations.

Exception to this policy must be coordinated with the Chief of Naval Operations (OP-09B30) or the Commandant of the Marine Corps (MP-60) prior to responding to requesters, including all requests for this type of information from Members of Congress. See paragraph (b)(2) of this section regarding requests for duty telephone numbers or addresses of named service members with overseas, routinely deployable, or sensitive units.

(vii) Disclosure of addresses of Navy civilian employees is governed by Office of Personnel Management regulations.
and listed as a routine use in the applicable record system notice published in the Federal Register. Routine use encompasses the specific ways or processes in which the information is used, including the persons or organizations to whom the record may be disclosed, even if such use occurs infrequently. In addition to the routine uses established by the Department of the Navy for each system of records, common blanket routine uses, applicable to all record systems maintained within the Department of the Navy, have been established. See §701.116. In the interest of simplicity and economy, these blanket routine uses are published only once at the beginning of the Department of the Navy's Federal Register compilation of record systems notices rather than in each system notice. Disclosure accountings are required for all disclosures made pursuant to a routine use. Disclosures from a record maintained by the Navy to officers and employees of Department of Defense who have a need for information, and disclosure from such records made pursuant to a Freedom of Information Act request, are not "routine use" disclosures, and no disclosure accountings need be made for them.

(4) Bureau of the Census. Disclosure may be made to the Bureau of the Census for purpose of planning or carrying out a census of survey or related activity authorized by law. Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures made to the Bureau of the Census.

(5) Statistical research or reporting. Disclosure may be made to a recipient who has provided adequate written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, provided the record is transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable (i.e., the identity of the individual cannot be deduced by tabulation or other methodology). The written request must state the purpose of the request, and will be made a part of the activity's accounting for the disclosure. When activities publish gross statistics concerning a population in a system of records (e.g., statistics on employer turnover rates, military enlistment rates, and sick leave usage rates), these are not considered disclosures of records and accountings are not required.

(6) National Archives. Disclosure may be made to the National Archives when the record has sufficient historical or other value to warrant continued preservation by the U.S. Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his/her designee to determine whether the record has such value. (Records transferred to a federal records center for storage or safekeeping do not fall under this provision. Such transfers are not considered disclosures under this Act, since the records remain under the control of the transferring element. Therefore, disclosure accounting is not required for transfers of records to federal records centers.) Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures made to the National Archives.

(7) Civil or criminal law enforcement activity. Disclosure may be made to another agency or instrumentality of any government jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States, for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity, if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the activity which maintains the record, specifying the particular record desired and the law enforcement purpose for which the record is sought. The head of the agency or instrumentality may have delegated authority to request records to other officials. Requests by these designated officials shall be honored if they provide satisfactory evidence of their authorization to request records. Blanket requests for all records pertaining to an individual shall not be honored. A record may also be disclosed to a law enforcement activity, provided that such disclosure has been established as a "routine use" in the published record system notice. Disclosure to foreign law enforcement agencies is not governed by the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a and this section, but may be made only pursuant to established "blanket routine uses" contained in §701.116, pursuant to an established "routine use", published in the individual record system notice, or pursuant to other governing authority. Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures to civil or criminal law enforcement agencies, and also for disclosures pursuant to a routine use, but need not be disclosed to the individual if the law enforcement agency has requested in writing that it not be.

(8) Emergency conditions. Disclosure may be made under emergency conditions involving compelling circumstances affecting the health and safety of a person, provided that notification of the disclosure is transmitted to the last known address of the individual to whom the record pertains. For example, an activity may disclose records when the time required to obtain the consent of the individual to whom the record pertains might result in a delay which could impair the health or safety of a person. The individual about whom the records are disclosed need not necessarily be the individual whose health or safety is in peril (e.g., release of dental charts on several individuals in order to identify a person injured in an accident). In instances where information under alleged emergency conditions is requested by telephone, an attempt will be made to verify the inquirer's and medical facility's identities and the caller's telephone number. The requested information, if then considered appropriate and of an emergency nature, may be provided by return call. Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures made under emergency conditions.

(9) Congress and Members of Congress. Disclosure may be made to either House of Congress or, to the extent of matters within its jurisdiction, to any committee or subcommittee thereof, or to any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee thereof. Disclosure may not be made, however, to a member of Congress requesting in his/her individual capacity or on behalf of a constituent, except in accordance with the following rules:

(i) Upon receipt of an oral or written request from a Member of Congress on his/her staff, inquiry should be made as to the identity of the originator of the request. If the request was prompted by a request for assistance by the individual to whom the record pertains, the requested information may be disclosed to the requesting Congressional office.

(ii) If the request was originated by a person other than the individual to whom the record pertains, the Congressional office must be informed that the requested information cannot be disclosed without the written consent of the individual to whom the record pertains. If the Congressional office subsequently states that it has received a request for assistance from the individual or has obtained the individual's written consent for disclosure to that office, the requested information may be disclosed.

(iii) If the Congressional office requests the Department of the Navy to obtain the consent of the individual to whom the record pertains, that office should be informed that it is the policy of the Department not to interfere in the relationship of a Member of Congress and his/her constituent, and that the Department therefore does not contact an individual who is the subject of a congressional inquiry.
(iv) If the Congressional office insists on Department of the Navy cooperation, an effort should be made to contact, through his/her command, the individual to whom the records pertain and ascertain whether the individual consents to the disclosure. If neither the Congressional office nor the Department of the Navy obtains the individual's written consent, only information required to be released under 5 U.S.C. 552 and 32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D should be disclosed. Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures made to Congress or Members of Congress, except nonconsensual disclosures pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 provided for in paragraph (b)(9)(iv) of this section.

(10) Comptroller General. Disclosure may be made by the Comptroller General of the United States, or to any of his/her authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office. See § 701.101(a)(2) and the SECNAVINST 5740.25 series. Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures to the Comptroller General or General Accounting Office.

(11) Court of competent jurisdiction. Disclosure may be made in response to an order from a court of competent jurisdiction (signed by a state or Federal court judge), subject to the following provisions:

(i) When a record is disclosed under compulsory legal process, and the issuance of that order is made public by the court which issued it, activities shall make reasonable efforts to notify the individual to whom the record pertains of the disclosure and the nature of the information provided. This requirement may be satisfied by notifying the individual by mail at the last known address contained in the activity records. Disclosure accountings are required for disclosures made pursuant to court orders.

(ii) Upon being served with an order which is not a matter of public record, an activity shall seek to be advised as to when it will become public. An accounting for the disclosure shall be made at the time the activity complies with the order, but neither the identity of the party to whom the disclosure was made nor the purpose of the disclosure shall be made available to the concerned individual unless the court order has become a matter of public record.

(12) Consumer reporting agencies. Certain personal information may be disclosed to consumer reporting agencies as defined by the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966. Under the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1986, the following information may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency:

(i) Name, address, taxpayer identification number (SSN), and other information necessary to establish the identity of the individual.

(ii) The amount, status and history of the claim.

(iii) The agency or program under which the claim arose.

The Federal Claims Collection Act of 1986 specifically requires that the system notice for the systems of records from which the information will be disclosed indicates that the information may be disclosed to a consumer reporting agency.

(c) Disclosure accountings—(1) Responsibilities. With respect to a disclosure of a record which it maintains in a system of records, each activity is responsible for keeping an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of the disclosure, and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. When disclosure is made by an activity other than the activity that is responsible for maintaining the record, the activity making the disclosure is responsible for giving written notification of the above information to the activity responsible for maintaining the record, to enable the latter activity to keep the required disclosure accounting.

(2) Disclosure for which accountings are required. A disclosure accounting is required for all disclosures of records maintained in a system of records, except: Intra-agency disclosures pursuant to paragraph (b)(1) of this section; Freedom of Information Act disclosures pursuant to paragraph (b)(2) of this section; and disclosures for statistical research or reporting purposes pursuant to paragraph (b)(5) of this section. A disclosure accounting is required for a disclosure made to another person or agency pursuant to the request or consent of the individual to whom the record pertains. There is no requirement for keeping an accounting for disclosures of disclosure accountings.

(3) Accounting method. Since the characteristics of various records maintained within the Department of the Navy vary widely, no uniform method for keeping disclosure accountings is prescribed. For most paper records, it may be suitable to maintain the accounting on a record-by-record basis, physically affixed to the records. The primary criteria are that the selected method be one which will:

(i) Enable an individual to ascertain what persons or agencies have received disclosures pertaining to him/her;

(ii) Provide a basis for informing recipients of subsequent amendments or statements of dispute concerning the record; and

(iii) Provide a means to prove, if necessary, that the activity has complied with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a and this subpart.

(4) Retention of accounting record. A disclosure accounting, if one is required, shall be maintained for the life of the record to which the disclosure pertains, or for at least five years after the date of the disclosure for which the accounting is made, whichever is longer. Nothing in 5 U.S.C. 552a or 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G requires retaining the disclosed record itself longer than for the period of time provided for in the SECNAVINST 5212.5 series, but the disclosure accounting must be retained for at least five years.

(5) Accounting to the individual. Unless an applicable exemption has been exercised, systems managers or other appropriate custodial officials shall provide all information in the disclosure accounting to an individual requesting such information concerning his/her records, except entries pertaining to disclosures made pursuant to paragraph (b)(11)(iii) of this section and disclosures made at the written request of the head of another agency or government instrumentality for law enforcement purposes under paragraph (b)(7) of this section. Activities should maintain the accounting of the latter two types of disclosures in such a manner that the notations are readily segeable, to preclude improper release to the individual. The process of making the accounting available may also require transformation of the data in order to make it comprehensible to the individual. Requests for disclosure accountings otherwise available to the individual may not be denied unless a denial authority for the designated review authority has exercised an applicable exemption and denied the request, and then only when it has been determined that denial of the request would serve a significant and legitimate Government purpose (e.g., avoid interfering with an ongoing law enforcement investigation). Appropriate procedures prescribed in § 701.104(b), for exercising an exemption, denying a request and reviewing a denial apply also to disclosure accounting to the individual.

(d) Accuracy requirements. Prior to disclosing any record about an individual to any person other than to
PRIVACY ACT RULES

§ 701.106 Collection of personal information from individuals.

(a) Collection directly from the individual. Personal information shall be collected, to the greatest extent practicable, directly from the individual when the information may adversely affect an individual's rights, benefits, and privileges under Federal programs. The collection of information from third parties shall be minimized. Exceptions to this policy may be made when warranted. The following are examples, not necessarily exhaustive, of situations which may warrant exceptions:

1. There is need to ensure the accuracy of information supplied by an individual by verifying it through a third party, e.g., verifying information for a security clearance;

2. The nature of the information is such that it can be obtained only from a third party, such as supervisor's assessment of an employee's performance in a previous job or assignment; or

3. Obtaining the information from the individual would present exceptional practical difficulties or would result in unreasonable cost.

(b) Informing individuals from whom personal information is requested. (1) Individuals who are asked to supply personal information about themselves for a system of records must be advised of:

(i) The authority (statute or Executive order) which authorizes the solicitation;

(ii) All major purposes for which the Department of the Navy uses the information (e.g., pay entitlement, retirement eligibility, or security clearance);

(iii) A brief summary of those routine uses to be made of the information as published in the Federal Register and distributed by current OPNAVNOTE 5211, and

(iv) Whether disclosure is mandatory or voluntary, and the possible consequences for failing to respond.

(2) This statement, which is referred to as a "Privacy Act statement," must be given regardless of the medium used in requesting the information, e.g., a blank sheet, preprinted form with a control number, format, questionnaire, survey sheet, or interview. It may be provided on the form used to collect the information and on a separate form or sheet, a copy of which may be retained by the individual. There is no requirement that the individual sign the statement.

3. When the Privacy Act statement is to be attached or provided with the form, the statement will be assigned the same identifying number as the form used in collecting the information, and the suffix, "Privacy Act Statement." For example, a DD Form 398 would be identified as "DD Form 398—Privacy Act Statement." For unnumbered formats, such as questionnaires and survey report forms, the Privacy Act statement will bear the report control symbol, if one applies, or the OMB number, i.e., "OMP Approval No. 21-R0208, Privacy Act Statement." The statement will be positioned in such a manner that individuals from whom the information is being collected will be informed about the act before they begin to furnish any of the information requested.

4. For the purpose of determining whether a Privacy Act statement is required, "personal information" should be considered to be information about an individual that is intimate or private to the individual, as distinguished from information related solely to the individual's official functions. See § 701.105(b)(2). Ordinarily it does not include such information as the time, place, and manner of, or reasons or authority for, an individual's execution or omission of acts directly related to the duties of his/her Federal employment or military assignment.

5. The head of the proponent activity (i.e., the initiating or sponsoring activity) is responsible for determining whether a Privacy Act statement is required, and for ensuring that it is prepared and available as an attachment or as a part of the form, etc.

§ 701.107 Safeguarding personal information.

(a) Legislative requirement. The Privacy Act requires establishment of appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to ensure the security and confidentiality of records, and to protect against any anticipated threats or hazards to their security or integrity which could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to any individual on whom information is required.

(b) Responsibilities. At each location, and for each system of records, an official shall be designated as having responsible for safeguarding the information therein. Specific safeguards for individual systems must be tailored to the existing circumstances, with consideration given to sensitivity of the data, need for continuity of operations, need for accuracy and reliability in operations, general security of the area, cost of safeguards, etc.

(c) Minimum safeguards. Ordinarily, personal information should be afforded at least the protection required for information designated as "For Official Use Only". For privacy, the guideline is to provide reasonable safeguards to prevent inadvertent or unauthorized disclosures of record content, during processing, storage, transmission, and disposal.

(d) Automatic data processing. The Chief of Naval Operations [Code Op-945] is responsible for determining and formulating policies and procedures, as necessary, to ensure that ADF systems containing personal information contain adequate safeguards to protect personnel privacy, and are in accordance with the OPNAVINST 5239.1 series.

(e) Disposal—(1) General. Reasonable care must be taken to ensure that personal information is not subject to unauthorized disclosure during records disposal. Records which contain personal information pertaining to individuals should be disposed of in such a manner as to preclude recognition or reconstruction of information contained therein, such as by pulping, tearing, shredding, macerating or burning. Records recorded on magnetic tapes or other magnetic media may be disposed of by degaussing or erasing. If contractors are hired to haul trash containing personal information, contract provisions as specified in § 701.109(a) should be incorporated into the contract. If paper trash containing personal information is sold for recycling, legal assistance should be obtained to insert in the sale contract clauses that will make the buyer a Government contractor subject to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(2) Massive computer cards and printouts. (i) The transfer of large quantities of computer cards and printouts in bulk to a disposal activity, such as the Defense Property Disposal Office, is not a release of personal information under 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G. The volume of such data when turned over in bulk transfers makes it difficult, if not impossible, to identify a specific individual record.

Therefore, there are no special procedures required when disposing of large numbers of punch cards, computer printouts or other large detailed listings and normal document disposal procedures may be followed.

(ii) If the systems manager believes that the data to be transferred in bulk for disposal is in a form where it is individually recognizable or is not of a sufficient quantity to preclude compromise, the records should be disposed of in accordance with this section.

§ 701.106 Exemptions.

(a) Summary. Subsections (j) and (k) of 5 U.S.C. 552a authorize the Secretary of the Navy to adopt rules designating eligible systems of records as exempt from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. In accordance with 32 CFR part 701, subpart E, publication of a general notice of a proposed rule concerning exemptions for systems of records is required to appear in the Federal Register at least 30 days prior to the effective date, in order to afford interested persons an opportunity to comment. 32 CFR part 701, subpart C indicates the systems designated as exempt, the type of exemption claimed, the authority and reasons for invoking the exemption, and the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which each system has been exempted. The two categories of exemptions are general and specific. No system of records, however, is automatically exempt from all provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(b) General exemption. To be eligible for a general exemption under the authority of subsection (j)(2), 5 U.S.C. 552a, the system of records must be maintained by an activity whose principal function involves the enforcement of criminal laws and must consist of:

(1) Data, compiled to identify individual criminals and alleged criminals which consists only of identifying data and arrest records and type and disposition of charges; sentencing, confinement, and release records; and parole and probation status;

(2) Data that supports criminal investigations (including efforts to prevent, reduce, or control crime) and reports of informants and investigators that identify an individual; or

(3) Reports on a person, compiled at any state of the process of law enforcement, from arrest or indictment through release from supervision.

(c) Specific exemptions. To be eligible for a specific exemption under the authority of subsection (k) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the pertinent records within a designated system must contain one or more of the following:

(1) Information specifically authorized to be classified. Before denying a person access to classified information, the denial authority must make sure that it is properly classified under the criteria of E.O. 12356, and that it must remain so in the interest of national defense or foreign policy (k)(1) exemption.

(2) Investigative records compiled for law enforcement purposes (other than that claimed under the general exemption). If this information has been used to deny someone a right, however, the Department of the Navy must release it unless doing so would reveal the identity of a confidential source (k)(2) exemption.

(3) Records maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals protected pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056 (k)(3) exemption.

(4) Records used only for statistical, research, or other evaluation purposes, and which are not used to make decisions on the rights, benefits, or privileges of individuals, except as permitted by 13 U.S.C. 8 [Use of census data] (k)(4) exemption.

(5) Data compiled to determine suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information. This information may be withheld only if disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source (k)(5) exemption.

(6) Test or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service, the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process (k)(6) exemption.

(7) Information to determine promotion potential in the Armed Forces. This information may be withheld only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source (k)(7) exemption.

(d) Limitations on denying notification, access, and/or amendment on the basis of an exemption.—(1) Classified information. Prior to denying a request for notification, access or amendment concerning a classified record on the basis of a subsection (k)(1) exemption, denial authorities having classification jurisdiction over the classified matters in the record shall review the record to determine if the classification is proper under the criteria of the OPNAVINST 5510.1 series. If the denial authority does not have classification jurisdiction, immediate coordination shall be effected with the official having classification jurisdiction, in order to obtain a review of the propriety of the classification. If it is determined upon review that the classification is proper, consideration shall also be given to the appropriateness of permitting the requester to view the record in classified form, provided that he/she has or can be given the requisite security clearance.

(2) Law enforcement records.

Requests for notification or access shall not be denied on the basis of a subsection (k)(2) exemption if the requested record has been used as a basis for denying the individual a right, benefit, or privilege to which he/she would be entitled in the absence of the record, except that access may be limited to the extent necessary to protect the identity of a confidential source, as defined in paragraph (e) of this section. Additionally, neither a subsection (j)(2) nor a subsection (k)(2) exemption shall be the basis for a denial of a request for notification or access concerning a record, or a portion thereof, unless granting the request is in accordance with the exemptions specified in 5 U.S.C. 552a, and would:

(i) Interfere with enforcement proceedings;

(ii) Deprive a person of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication;

(iii) Constiitude an unwarranted invasion of privacy; or

(iv) Disclose the identity of a confidential source or disclose confidential information furnished only by a confidential source in the course of a criminal investigation or in the course of a lawful national security intelligence investigation;

(v) Disclose investigatory techniques and procedures not already in the public domain and requiring protection from public disclosure to ensure their effectiveness;

(vi) Endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel; or

(vii) Otherwise be deemed not releasable under 5 U.S.C. 552 and 32 CFR part 701, subparts A through D.

(e) Confidential sources. For the purposes of subsection (k) exemptions, a "confidential source" is a person who has furnished information to the Federal government under:

(1) An express promise that his/her identity would be held in confidence, or

(2) An implied promise made prior to September 27, 1975, that his/her identity would be held in confidence.

(f) Promises of confidentiality. Express promise of confidentiality shall be granted on a selective basis, and only when such promises are needed and are in the interest of the service. Officials exercising denial authority shall establish appropriate procedures and standards governing the granting of confidentiality for records systems under their cognizance.

§ 701.109 Contractors.

(a) Contracts to maintain records. Any unit, activity, or official letting a contract that involves the maintenance of a system of records to accomplish a Department of the Navy purpose shall include in that contract such terms as are necessary to incorporate the relevant provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a in accordance with the Federal Acquisition Regulation Part 24.1, “Protection of Individual Privacy,” April 1, 1984.

(b) Contracting officers. Contracting officers shall review all requirements for service contracts to determine if the requirements may result in the design, development, or operation of a system of records on individuals. If it is determined that such is involved, the solicitation to meet the requirement shall contain notice similar to the following:

Warning

This procurement action requires the contractor to do one or more of the following: Operate, use or maintain a system of records on individuals to accomplish an agency function. The Privacy Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93-509, 5 U.S.C. 552a) imposes requirements on how these records are collected, maintained, used, and disclosed. Violations of the Privacy Act may result in termination of any contract resulting from this solicitation as well as imposition of criminal or civil penalties.

§ 701.110 Judicial sanctions.

(a) Subsection (i)(1) of 5 U.S.C. 552a prescribes criminal penalties for violation of its provisions. Any member or employee of the Department of the Navy may be found guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000 for willfully:

(1) Maintaining a system of records without first meeting the public notice requirements.

(2) Disclosing information protected under the Privacy Act to any unauthorized person/agency.

(3) Obtaining or disclosing information about an individual under false pretenses.

§ 701.111 Government contractors.

(a) Applicability to government contractors. (1) When a naval activity contracts for the operation or maintenance of a system of records or a portion of a system of records by a contractor, the record system or the portion of the record system affected are considered to be maintained by the naval activity and are subject to 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G. The naval activity is responsible for applying the requirements of 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G to the contractor. The contractor and its employees are to be considered employees of the Navy for purposes of the sanction provisions of the Privacy Act during the performance of the contract. Consistent with the Federal Acquisition Regulation Part 24.1, Protection of Individual Privacy, contractors requiring the maintenance of a system of records or the portion of a system of records shall identify specifically the record system and the work to be performed and shall include in the solicitation and resulting contract such terms as are prescribed by the Federal Acquisition Regulation Part 24.1.

(2) If the contractor must use or have access to individually identifiable information subject to 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G to perform any part of a contract, and the information would have been collected and maintained by the Naval activity but for the award of the contract, these contractor activities are subject to 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G.

(3) The restriction in § 701.111(a) (1) and (2) do not apply to records:

(i) Established and maintained to assist in making internal contractor management decisions, such as records maintained by the contractor for use in managing the contract.

(ii) Maintained as internal contractor employee records even when used in conjunction with providing goods and services to the Department of Defense; or

(iii) Maintained as training records by an educational organization contracted by the Department of the Navy to provide training when the records of the contract students are similar to and comingle with training records of other students (e.g., admissions forms, transcripts, academic counseling and similar records).

(iv) Maintained by a consumer reporting agency to which records have been disclosed under contract in accordance with the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966.

(b) Disclosure of records to contractors. The disclosure of records required by the contractor for the operation, use or maintenance of a system of records in the performance of a government contract shall not require the consent of the individual to whom the record pertains or the maintenance of a disclosure accounting record since systems of records operated under contract to accomplish a Navy function, are, in effect, maintained by the Department of the Navy. Disclosure of personal information between the Department of the Navy and the contractor is considered to be the same as between those officers and employees of the Department of the Navy who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties.

§ 701.112 Matching program procedures.

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has issued special guidelines to be followed in programs that match the personal records in the computerized data bases of two or more federal agencies by computer. These guidelines are intended to strike a balance between the interest of the government in maintaining the integrity of federal programs and the need to protect individual privacy expectations. They do not authorize matching programs as such and each matching program must be justified individually in accordance with the OMB guidance.

§ 701.113 Rules of access to agency records.

§ U.S.C. 552a, as implemented in 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, provides for individuals to have access to agency records, pertaining to themselves, with certain limited exceptions. The following rules of access are in effect:

(a) Requests for access must be submitted in writing to (name or organizational title of record custodian).

(b) Individuals desiring to review records pertaining to themselves are urged to submit their requests by mail or in person, 10 days before the desired review date. Every effort will be made to expedite access when necessary, but records ordinarily cannot be made available for review on the day of the request. In the case of a request to provide records directly to an authorized representative who is other than the parent of a minor or other legal guardian, an authorization signed within the preceding 45 days, by the individual to whom the records pertain, specifying the records to be released, will be required. Notarized authorizations may be required if the sensitivity of the information in the records warrants.

(c) Information should be provided by the individual to assist in identifying relevant systems of records and individual identifiers should also be furnished (e.g., full name, social security number, etc.) to locate records in the particular system.

(d) Review of the record may be accomplished between the hours of _______ and _______ of building _______.

(e) When the individual reviews records in person, the custodian will require the presentation of identification before permitting access to the record. Acceptable forms of identification include military identification card, base or building pass, driver's license, or similar document. When the individual requests access to information by mail, verification of identity may be obtained by requiring him/her to provide certain minimum identifying data such as date of birth and any other item in the record that only the concerned individual would likely know.

(f) Individuals may be accompanied by a person of their own choosing when reviewing the record. The custodian will not, however, discuss the record in the presence of the third person without the written authorization of the individual to whom the record pertains.

(g) On request, copies of the record will be provided at a cost specified. Fees will not be assessed if the cost is less than $30.

(h) A medical record will not be released to the individual if, in the judgment of a physician, the information contained therein could have an adverse affect on the individual's physical or mental well-being. In such circumstances, the individual will be asked to provide to the record custodian the name of a personal physician along with written authorization for release of the record to that physician. The record will then be provided to the named physician.

(i) Questions concerning these Rules of Access, or, information contained in the record, should be addressed to (title or official of organizational title), room _______, building _______, telephone number _______.

§ 701.114 Rules for amendment requests.

5 U.S.C. 552a, as implemented by 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, provides for individuals to request amendment of their personal records when the individuals believe the records are inaccurate, irrelevant, un timely, or incomplete. The following rules for amendment requests are in effect:

(a) Requests must be in writing and must indicate that they are being made under the Privacy Act (5 U.S.C. 552a), 32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G, or the SECNAVINST 5211.5 series. Requests should contain sufficient information to locate and identify the particular record which the requester is seeking to amend (e.g., full name, social security number, date of birth, etc.). A request should also contain a statement of the changes desired to be made to the record, the reasons for requesting amendment, and any available information the requester can provide in support of the request, including pertinent documents and related records.

(b) Requests for amendment must be submitted to the appropriate system manager designated in the published record system notice.

(c) A letter indicating receipt will be sent to the requester within 10 working days after the request has been received by the appropriate system manager. The letter will contain details as to when the requester may expect to be advised of action taken on the request. The requester may also be asked to provide additional verification of his/her identity. This is to protect the privacy of other individuals by ensuring that the requester is seeking to amend his/her own records and not, inadvertently or intentionally, the records of another individual.

(d) A letter indicating whether or not the request for amendment has been granted will be sent to the requester as soon as a decision has been reached by the appropriate authority. If it is determined that the requested amendment is warranted, the requester will be advised of the action taken and of the effect of that action. If it is determined that the requested amendment is not warranted, the requester will be advised of the reasons for the refusal and of the procedures and time limits within which the requester can seek further review of the refusal.

§ 701.115 Rules of conduct under the Privacy Act.

(a) Maintaining personal records. It is unlawful to maintain systems of records about individuals without prior announcement in the Federal Register. Anyone who does is subject to criminal penalties up to $5,000. Even with such notice, care shall be taken to keep only such personal information as is necessary to do what law and the President, by Executive order, require. The information is to be used only for the purposes described in the Federal Register.

(b) Disclosure. Information about an individual shall not be disclosed to any unauthorized individual. Anyone who makes an unauthorized disclosure on purpose may be fined up to $5,000. Every member or employee of the Department of the Navy who maintains records about individuals has an obligation to do his/her part in protecting personal information from unauthorized disclosure. 32 CFR part 701, subpart F and G describes when disclosures are authorized.

(c) Individual access. Every individual, with certain exceptions, has the right to look at any record the Department of the Navy keeps on him/her, to copy it, and to request to have it corrected if he/she considers it wrong. The individual attempting to exercise these right shall be given courteous and considerate assistance.

(d) Ensuring accuracy. The Department of the Navy has an obligation to use only accurate, timely, relevant, and complete information when making decisions about individuals. Every member, official, and employee involved in keeping records on individuals shall assist in the discharge of this obligation.

§ 701.116 Blanket routine uses.

(a) Routine use—Law enforcement. In the event that a system of records maintained by this component to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

(b) Routine use—Disclosure when requesting information. A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to a federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information, relevant to a component decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

(c) Routine use—Disclosure of requested information. A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency’s decision on the matter.

(d) Routine use—Congressional inquiries. Disclosure from a system of records maintained by this component may be made to a congressional office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of that individual.

(e) Routine use—Disclosure to the Department of Justice for litigation. A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed as a routine use to any component of the Department of Justice for the purpose of representing the DOD, or any officer, employee, or member of the Department in pending or potential litigation to which the record is pertinent.

(f) Routine use—Private relief legislation. Relevant information contained in all systems of records of the Department of Defense published on or before August 22, 1975, will be disclosed to the Office of Management and Budget in connection with the review of private relief legislation as set forth in OMB Circular A-19 at any stage of the legislative coordination, and clearance process as set forth in that Circular.

(g) Routine use—Disclosures required by international agreements. A record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to foreign law enforcement, security, investigative, or administrative authorities in order to comply with requirements imposed by, or to comply with rights conferred in international agreements and arrangements including those regulating the stationing and status in foreign countries of Department of Defense military and civilian personnel.

(h) Routine use—Disclosure to state and local taxing authorities. Any information normally contained in IRS Form W-2, which is maintained in a record from a system of records maintained by this component may be disclosed to state and local taxing authorities with which the Secretary of the Treasury has entered into agreements pursuant to Title 5, U.S.C., Sections 5516, 5517, 5520, and only to those state and local taxing authorities for which an employee or military member is or was subject to tax regardless of whether tax is or was withheld. This routine use is in accordance with Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletin Nr. 76-07.

(i) Routine use—Disclosure to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). A record from a system of records subject to the Privacy Act and maintained by this component may be disclosed to the OPM concerning information on pay and leave, benefits, retirement deductions, and any other information necessary for OPM to carry out its legally authorized Government-wide personnel management functions and studies.

Subpart G—Privacy Act Exemptions

Authority: 5 U.S.C. 552a, 32 CFR part 310.

§ 701.117 Purpose.

32 CFR part 701, subparts F and G contains rules promulgated by the Secretary of the Navy, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k), and subpart F. § 701.108, to exempt certain systems of Department of the Navy records from specified provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

§ 701.118 Exemption for classified records.

All systems of records maintained by the Department of the Navy and its components shall be exempted from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), to the extent that the system contains any information properly classified under E.O. 12356 and that is required by that Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. This exemption is applicable to parts of all systems of records including those not otherwise specifically designated for exemptions herein which contain isolated items of properly classified information.

§ 701.119 Exempt Navy record systems.

(a) [Reserved]

(b) Bureau of Naval Personnel.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G) through (l), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (1), (2), (5) and (7).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained in this system of records could interfere with orderly investigations; result in the disclosure of classified material; jeopardize the safety of informants, witnesses, and their families; disclose investigatory techniques; and result in the invasion of privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation. Material will be screened to permit access to unclassified information that will not disclose the identity of sources who provide information to the Government under an express or implied promise of confidentiality.

2) [Reserved]

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) (G) through (l), and (f).
Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) [1], and (5).

Reasons. Granting access to information in this system of records could result in the disclosure of classified material, or reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express or implied promise of confidentiality. Material will be screened to permit access to uncalled material and to information that will not disclose the identity of a confidential source.

(4) ID—N01420-1.
Sysname. Office Promotion System.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [d], [e][1], [e][4] (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) [1], (5), (6), and (7).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to this system of records could result in the disclosure of classified material, or the identification of sources who provided information to the Government under an express or implied promise of confidentiality. Material will be screened to permit access to uncalled material and to information that does not disclose the identity of a confidential source.

(5) ID—N01070-9.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [d], [e][1], [e][4] (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) [1] and (5).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to certain portions of the information collected and maintained in this system of records could result in the unauthorized disclosure of classified material. Material will be screened in order to provide access to uncalled information that does not disclose the identity of a source who provided information under an express or implied promise of confidentiality.

(6) ID—N01840-1.
Sysname. Individual Correctional Records.

Exemption. Portions of this system are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [c][4], [d], [e][2], [e][3], [e][4] (G) through (I), [e][5], [e][6], [e][7], and (g).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a[j][1].

Reasons. Granting individuals access to portions of these records pertaining to or consisting of, but not limited to, disciplinary reports, criminal investigations, and related statements of witnesses, and such other related matter in conjunction with the enforcement of criminal laws, could interfere with orderly investigations, with the orderly administration of justice, and possibly enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension. Disclosure of this information could result in the concealment, destruction, or fabrication of evidence, and jeopardize the safety and well-being of informants, witnesses and their families, and law enforcement personnel and their families. Disclosure of this information could also reveal and render ineffective investigative techniques, sources, and methods used by these components and could result in the invasion of the privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation. The exemption of the individual's right of access to portions of these records, and the reasons therefor, necessitate the exemption of this system of records from the requirement of the other cited provisions.

ID—N01754-3.
Sysname. Navy Child Development Services Program.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of Title 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (d).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)[2].

Reasons. Exemptions is needed in order to encourage persons having knowledge of abusive or neglected acts toward children to report such information, and to protect such sources from embarrassment or repressions, as well as to protect their right to privacy. It is essential that the identities of all individuals who furnish information under an express promise of confidentiality be protected. Additionally, granting individuals access to information relating to criminal and civil law enforcement, as well as the release of certain disclosure accountings, could interfere with ongoing investigations and the orderly administration of justice, in that it could result in the concealment, alteration, destruction, or fabrication of information; could hamper the identification of offenders and the disposition of charges; and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of parents and their children.

(c) Navy Recruiting Command.

(1) ID—N01131-1.
Sysname. Officer Selection and Appointment System.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [c][4], [d], [e][2], and [3], [e][4] (G) through (I), (e), (f), (e)[5], (e), (e)[8], (e)(f) and (g).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552ak, (5), (6), and (7).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to portions of this system of records could result in the disclosure of classified material, or the identification of sources who provided information to the Government under an express or implied promise of confidentiality. Material will be screened to permit access to uncalled material and to information that does not disclose the identity of a confidential source.

(2) ID—N01132-2.
Sysname. Recruiting Enlisted Selection System.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [d], [e][1], [e][4] (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) [1], (5), (6), and (7).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to portions of this system of records could result in the disclosure of classified material, or the identification of sources who provided information to the Government under an express or implied promise of confidentiality. Material will be screened to permit access to uncalled material and to information that does not disclose the identity of a confidential source.

(d) Naval Security Group Command.

(1) ID—N018527-4.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [d], [e][1], [e][4] (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) [1] through (5).

Reasons. Exempted portions of this system contain information that has been properly classified under E.O. 12356, and that is required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. Exempted portions of this system also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualification, eligibility or suitability for access to classified special intelligence information, and that was obtained by providing an express or implied promise to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record.

(e) Naval Investigative Service.

(1) ID—N018520-4.
Sysname. NIS Investigative Files System.

Exemption (1). Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: [c][3], [c][4], [d], [e][2], and [3], [e][4] (G) through (I), (e), (f), (e)[5], (e)[8], (f) and (g).

Authority (1). 5 U.S.C. 552a[j][2].

Reasons (1). Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by this component relating to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with orderly investigations, with the orderly administration of justice, and possibly... enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension. Disclosure of this information could result in the concealment, destruction, or fabrication of evidence and jeopardize the safety and well-being of informants, witnesses and their families, and law enforcement personnel and their families. Disclosure of this information could also reveal and render ineffectual investigative techniques, sources, and methods used by this Component and could result in the invasion of the privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation. The exemption of the individual's right of access to his/her records, and the reasons therefore, necessitate the exemption of this system of records from the requirements of the other cited provisions.

Exemption (2). Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1)., (k)(4), (k)(5), and (k)(6).

Reasons (2). The release of disclosure accounting would permit the subject of an investigation to obtain valuable information concerning the nature of that investigation, and the information contained, or the identity of witnesses or informants, and would therefore present a serious impediment to law enforcement. In addition, disclosure of the amount of time to notice to the individual of the existence of a record. Access to the records contained in this system would inform the subject of the existence of material compiled for law enforcement purposes, the premature release of which could prevent the successful completion of investigation, and lead to the improper influencing of witnesses, the destruction of records, or the fabrication of testimony.

Exempt portions of this system also contain information that has been properly classified under E.O. 12356, and that is required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy.

Exempt portions of this system also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, and was obtained by providing an express or implied assurance to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record. The notice for this system of records published in the Federal Register sets forth the basic statutory or related authority for maintenance of the system.

The categories of sources of records in this system have been published in the Federal Register in broad generic terms. The identity of specific sources, however, must be withheld in order to protect the confidentiality of the source, of criminal and other law enforcement information. This exemption is further necessary to protect the privacy and physical safety of witnesses and informants.

This system of record is exempted from procedures for notice to an individual as to the existence of records pertaining to him/her dealing with an actual or potential civil or regulatory investigation, because such notice to an individual would be detrimental to the successful conduct and/or completion of an investigation, pending or future. Mere notice of the fact of an investigation could inform the subject or others that their activities are under, or may become the subject of, an investigation. This could encourage the subjects to avoid detection, to influence witnesses improperly, to destroy records, or to fabricate testimony.

Exempt portions of this system contain screening board reports. Screening board reports set forth the results of oral examination of applicants for a position as a special agent with the Naval Investigative Service. Disclosure of these records could reveal the areas pursued in the course of the examination and thus adversely affect the result of the selection process. Equally important, the records contain the candid views of the members composing the board. Release of the records could affect the willingness of the members to provide candid opinions and thus diminish the effectiveness of a program which is essential to maintaining the high standard of the Special Agent Corps, i.e., those records constituting examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment in the Federal Service.

(f) Naval Intelligence Command. (1) ID—N03834-1.

Sysname. Special Intelligence Personnel Access File.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3)., (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1) and (5).

Reasons. Exempt portions of this system contain information that has been properly classified under E.O. 12356, and that is required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. Exempted portions of this system also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for access to classified information and was obtained by providing an express or implied assurance to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record.

(g) Naval Inspector General. (1) ID—N04385-1.

Sysname. IG Investigatory System.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(2), (e)(3), (e)(4) (G) through (I), (e)(5), (e)(8), (f), and (g).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by the IG in the course of an investigation, including reports of informants and investigators. Such investigations may be associated with identifiable individuals. Disclosure of files in this system would interfere with orderly investigations, and possibly result in the concealment, destruction, or fabrication of evidence, and possibly jeopardize the safety and well-being of informants, witnesses and their families. Such disclosures could also reveal and render ineffectual investigatory techniques and methods and sources of information and could further result in the invasion of the personal privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation. Depending on the nature of the complaint, records may contain information that is currently and properly classified pursuant to executive order and must be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, is confidentially provided information located in investigatory records compiled for the purposes of enforcement of non-criminal law, relates to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for Federal employment, is test or examination material used to determine qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service, is confidentially provided information used to determine potential for promotion in the armed services.

(h) Naval Resale System Office.

(1) ID—N12830-1.

Sysname. Industrial Relations Personnel Records.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (d), (e)(4), (f), (f)(2), (3), and (4).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to records maintained by this Board could interfere with internal processes by which Board personnel are able to formulate judgements and policies with regard to clemency and parole in cases involving naval prisoners and other persons under the jurisdiction of the Board. Material will be screened to permit access to all material except such records or documents as reflect items of opinion, conclusion, or recommendation expressed by individual board members or by the board as a whole.

The exemption of the individual's right of access to portions of these records, and the reasons therefore, necessitate the partial exemption of this system of records from the requirements of the other cited provisions.

(k) Office of the Secretary.

(1) ID—N01070-9.

Sysname. White House Support Program.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (d), (e)(1), (e)(4), (g) through (j), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), (3), and (5).

Reasons. Exempted portions of this system contain information which has been properly classified under E.O. 12356, and which is required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. Exempted portions of this system may also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for access to classified information, and which was obtained by providing an express or implied promise to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record. Exempted portions of this system also contain test or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service, the disclosure of which would comprise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(l) Navy and Marine Corps Exchanges and Commissaries.

(1) ID—N04060-1.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4), (g) through (j), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by these activities relating to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with ordered investigations, with orderly administration of justice, and possibly enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension. Disclosure of this information could result in the concealment, destruction, or fabrication of evidence, and could also reveal and render ineffective investigative techniques, sources, and methods used by these activities.

(m) Naval Clemency and Parole Board.

(1) ID—N05819-3.

Sysname. Naval Clemency and Parole Board Files.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(4), (d), (e)(4), (g), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to records maintained by this Board could interfere with internal processes by which Board personnel are able to formulate judgements and policies with regard to clemency and parole in cases involving naval prisoners and other persons under the jurisdiction of the Board. Material will be screened to permit access to all material except such records or documents as reflect items of opinion, conclusion, or recommendation expressed by individual board members or by the board as a whole.

The exemption of the individual's right of access to portions of these records, and the reasons therefore, necessitate the partial exemption of this system of records from the requirements of the other cited provisions.

(n) Office of the Secretary.

(1) ID—N04070-9.

Sysname. White House Support Program.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4), (g) through (j), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), (3), and (5).

Reasons. Exempted portions of this system contain information which has been properly classified under E.O. 12356, and which is required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy. Exempted portions of this system may also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for access to classified information, and which was obtained by providing an express or implied promise to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record. Exempted portions of this system may also contain information collected and maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President and other individuals protected pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056. Exempted portions of this system may also contain investigative records compiled for law enforcement purposes, the disclosure of which could reveal the identity of sources who provide information under an express or implied promise of confidentiality, compromise investigative techniques and procedures, jeopardize the life or physical safety of law-enforcement personnel, or otherwise interfere with enforcement proceedings or adjudications.

(2) ID—N05809-1.

Sysname. Legal Office Litigation/Correspondence Files.

Exemption. Portions of this record system may be exempted from subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a (d), (e)(1), and (f)(2), (3) and (4).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1), (2), (5), (6), and (7).

Reasons. Subsection (d) because granting individuals access to information relating to the preparation and conduct of litigation would impair the development and implementation of legal strategy. Accordingly, such records are exempt under the attorney-client privilege. Disclosure might also compromise on-going investigations and reveal confidential informants.

Additionally, granting access to the record subject would seriously impair the Navy's ability to negotiate settlements or pursue other civil remedies. Amendment is inappropriate because the litigation files contain official records including transcripts, court orders, investigatory materials, evidentiary materials such as exhibits, decisional memorandum and other case-related papers. Administrative due process could not be achieved by the "ex parte" correction of such materials.

Subsection (e)(1) because it is not possible in all instances to determine relevancy or necessity of specific information in the early stages of case development. What appeared relevant and necessary when collected, ultimately may be deemed unnecessary upon assessment in the context of devising legal strategy. Information collected during civil litigation investigations which is not used during the subject case is often retained to provide leads in other cases or to establish patterns of activity.

Subsection (f)(2), (3), and (4) because this record system is exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

(1) Security Operations Activities.

(1) ID—N05527-1.

Sysname. Security Incident System.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (c)(4), (d), (e)(2) and (3) and (e)(4) (g) through (j), (e)(5), (e)(6), (f) and (g).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by this component is pertinent to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with orderly administration of justice, and possibly enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension. Disclosure of this information could result in concealment, destruction, or fabrication of evidence, and jeopardize the safety and well-being of informants, witnesses and their families, and law enforcement personnel and their families. Disclosure of this information could also reveal and render ineffectual investigative techniques, sources, and methods used by this component, and could result in the invasion of privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation.

(m) Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—(1) ID—N05320—Sysname. Family Advocacy Program System.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3) and (d).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

Reasons. Exemption is needed in order to encourage persons having knowledge of abusive or neglectful acts toward children to report such information, and to protect such sources from embarrassment or retribution, as well as to protect their right to privacy. It is essential that the identities of all individuals who furnish information under an express promise of confidentiality be protected. Additionally, granting individuals access to information relating to criminal and law enforcement, as well as the release of certain disclosure accounting, could interfere with ongoing investigations and the orderly administration of justice, in that it could result in the concealment, alteration, destruction, or fabrication of information; could hamper the identification of offenders or alleged offenders and the disposition of charges; and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of parents and their children.

Exempted portions of this system also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for Federal employment and Federal contracts, and that was obtained by providing an express or implied promise to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record.

(n) Naval Postgraduate School—(1) ID—N05300—Sysname. Faculty Professional Files.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following portions of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(4) and (H), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

Reasons. Exempted portions of this system contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for Federal employment, and was obtained by providing an express or implied promise to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record.

§ 701.120 Exemptions for specific Marine Corps record systems.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (e)(4), (d), (e)(2) and (3), (e)(4) (G) through (I), (e)(5), (e)(6), (f), and (g).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

Reasons. Granting individuals access to information collected and maintained by these activities relating to the enforcement of criminal laws could interfere with orderly investigations, with the orderly administration of justice, and might enable suspects to avoid detection or apprehension.

Disclosure of this information could result in the concealment, destruction, or fabrication of evidence, and jeopardize the safety and well-being of informants, witnesses and their families, and law enforcement personnel and their families. Disclosure of this information could also reveal and render ineffectual investigative techniques, sources, and methods used by this component, and could result in the invasion of the privacy of individuals only incidentally related to an investigation.

Exemption. The individual's right of access to his/her records, and the reasons therefor, necessitate the exemption of this system of records from the requirements of other cited provisions.

Exemption. Portions of this system of records are exempt from the following subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a: (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G) through (I), and (f).

Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), (3), and (5) as applicable.

Reasons. Exempted portions of this system contain information that has been properly classified under E.O. 12356, and that is required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy.

Exempt portions of this system also contain information considered relevant and necessary to make a determination as to qualifications, eligibility, or suitability for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified, compartmented, or otherwise sensitive information, and was obtained by providing an express or implied assurance to the source that his/her identity would not be revealed to the subject of the record.

Exempted portions of this system further contain information that identifies sources whose confidentiality must be protected to ensure that the privacy and physical safety of these witnesses and informants are protected.

§ 806b.0 Purpose.

This part sets policies and outlines procedures that govern collecting, safeguarding, maintaining, using, accessing, amending, and disseminating personal information kept by the Department of the Air Force in systems of records. This part applies to all Air Force activities, including the Reserve Components, except for the Office of the Chief, National Guard Bureau; Air National Guard technicians; and Army-Air Force Exchange Service activities, including Motion Picture Service activities. It does not apply to civilian employee records maintained by Air Force activities which are covered by the Office of Personnel Management systems of records. Such records are subject to parts 293, 294, and 297 of Office of Personnel Management.

Subpart A—The Privacy Act Program

§ 806b.1 Air Force policy.

Air Force policy is to:

(a) Protect personal privacy as required by the Privacy Act of 1974. The Privacy Act and this part apply only to information in systems of records on living U.S. citizens and aliens admitted as permanent residents of the United States.

(b) Collect, maintain, and use information in such systems only to support programs authorized by law or Executive order.

(c) Ensure that records in these systems are timely, accurate, complete, and relevant, amending or deleting any record which does not meet these requirements.

(d) Let individuals know about and see or get copies of their own records in systems unless the Secretary of the Air Force (SAF) has approved an exemption, or the records were created in anticipation of civil action or proceeding.

(e) Safeguard records in systems.

(f) Provide a review of decisions that deny individuals access to or amendment of their records.

(g) Keep records the minimum time required to protect the rights and provide for the needs of the individual and the U.S. Government.

§ 806b.2 Terms defined:

(a) Access. The process of letting individuals see or get copies of their records from a system of records.

(b) Agency. The Department of Defense (DOD) for disclosures from systems of records. Any record may be disclosed to any component for a use compatible with the purpose for which the record was created. The Air Force is an agency for all other actions under the Privacy Act including access and amendment requests and appeals.

(c) Confidential source. Any person or organization that has given information under an:

1. Expressed promise to withhold their identity; or
2. Implied promise of confidentiality made before September 27, 1975.

(d) Confidentiality. A promise to withhold the identity of a source or the information provided. The information must be for use in an exempt system. This promise must be expressed and recorded.

(e) Disclosure. Giving information from a system, by any means, to anyone other than the subject.

(f) Individual. A living U.S. citizen or a permanent resident alien. The deceased, non-resident aliens, businesses, and third parties have no right under the Privacy Act. However, a parent or guardian may exercise Privacy Act rights for a minor or incompetent person.

(g) Maintain. To collect, keep, use, or disseminate records.

(h) Minor. Anyone under the age of majority according to the law of the state where the records are located. If there is no state law, a minor is anyone under the age of 18. Military members and married persons are not minors.

(i) Official use. Any action by a Department of Defense member or employee to perform a mission or function prescribed or authorized by law or regulation.

(j) Personal information. All information about an individual except for matters of public record. Some examples of personal information are all medical files, financial records except for gross pay, criminal records except the findings of a court-martial, and details on a person’s private life. Information about an individual’s official duties is normally not personal.

(k) Privacy Act request. A request by an individual about the existence of, access to, or amendment of, a record about him or her that is in a system of records. The request must show dependence on the Privacy Act.

(l) Record. Any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual.

(m) Routine use. Any disclosure outside of Department of Defense from a system for a use that is compatible with the purpose for which the record was created. Routine uses must be shown in the systems notice. These notices are published in the Federal Register and AFP 12–36, Privacy Act Systems of Records.

(n) Statistical records. A record kept only for statistical or reporting purposes. It is not used for making judgments about persons. Individual identity must not be discoverable using routine statistical or data manipulation methods.

(o) System manager. The official who initiates a system of records and issues policies and procedures for operating and safeguarding a system. Local systems managers operate such systems or are responsible for a segment of a decentralized system.

(p) System of records. Any group of records from which personal information is retrieved by name or personal identifier (See paragraph (l) of this section.) A record in a system of records must contain two elements, a personal identifier and at least one item of personal information. This identifier is some name, number, or symbol which is unique to the individual. The most often used personal identifiers in the Air Force are name and Social Security number (SSN). If a retrieval is possible but not actually done, or if it depends on memory, the group is not a system of records. However, creating a retrieval or cross index, arranged by personal identifier for randomly filed records, makes that collection a system.

(q) Workday or day. A duty day, not including Saturdays, Sundays, and Federal holidays.

§ 806b.3 Access authorities.

The system manager, or individual or position designated in the system notice to receive requests is the access authority.

§ 806b.4 Judicial sanctions.

The Privacy Act has both civil remedies and criminal penalties for violations.

(a) Civil remedies. An individual can file a civil suit against the Air Force for failing to comply with the Privacy Act.

(b) Criminal penalties. Personnel may be found guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000 for willfully:

1. Maintaining a system without meeting the public notice requirements.

2. Disclosing information from a system to someone who is not entitled to have it knowing that disclosure is prohibited.

3. Obtaining another’s record from a system under false pretenses.

Subpart B—Collecting Personal Information

§ 806b.5 Privacy Act Statements (PAS).

Give PASs to individuals you ask to provide information about themselves which will go into a system of records. Do this regardless of how you collect or record the answers. You may read the statement or display a sign in area where people are often asked for the same type of information. However, a printed copy must be given out if the subject asks for one. A PAS is not required if the information will not go into a system of records or if it will go into a SAF exempted criminal investigative system. A PAS must show:

(a) The citation and title of the law or Executive Order that authorizes the program the system supports and the Air Force or lower level standard publications which covers the system. All systems of records must be governed by a standard publication.
(b) The principal purposes for the system. The reasons why the Air Force needs the information.

(c) The routine uses of the information. What disclosures, if any, will be made outside of DOD.

(d) Whether furnishing the information is mandatory or voluntary. An answer is mandatory only if the information is essential to an Air Force mission, and if failure to answer could make the person liable to some specific penalty.

(e) What will happen to an individual who does not respond. PAs are not to be signed and the language in them must be nonthreatening. These statements may be printed in simple paragraph form without separation of the five parts.

Subpart C—Maintaining Systems of Records

§ 806b.6 Air Force standards.

Records on individuals must be as accurate, relevant, timely, and complete as is reasonably necessary to make fair and informed decisions about them. Systems of records must be:

(a) Authorized by law or Executive Order.

(b) Controlled by an Air Force or lower echelon directive.

(c) Needed to carry out an Air Force mission or function.

(d) Described in a notice published in the Federal Register.

§ 806b.7 Personal notes.

Personal notes which are maintained on individuals as memory aids in the performance of supervisory or other official functions are not subject to the notice, access, or amendment provisions of the Privacy Act if both of the following conditions are met:

(a) The notes remain under the control of the originator and are never made available to any other person in the course of official business.

(b) The notes are not required by any Air Force directive, and they may be retained or disposed of as the originator sees fit.

Subpart D—Providing Information

§ 806b.8 Access by subjects of records.

Individuals may ask if the Air Force has any records on them. The Privacy Act gives rights of access and amendment for records in a system of records.

(a) Privacy Act requests. To be considered under the Privacy Act, a request must:

(1) Come from the subject of a record in a system of records, or from a designated agent or guardian. The subject must be a U.S. citizen or permanent resident alien.

(2) Cite the Privacy Act or at least show an awareness of the law and its requirement to provide an individual access to his or her records. For example it could be addressed to the Privacy Act officer or the system manager or cite the Privacy Act.

(3) Reasonably describe the records sought. The request does not have to name the system, but it should be fairly specific. Do not accept blanket requests for “all records about me.” Instead, refer the individual to AFP 12-36 or the Federal Register and ask the requester to identify at least the types of records sought.

Note: Privacy Act requests are personal and not official business. Requests received on official letterhead, except for those from an area defense counsel, should be returned. No one may be penalized or harassed for exercising their rights under the Privacy Act. The Air Force will provide all reasonable aid to individuals exercising their rights.

(4) Requests which do not cite or refer to the Privacy Act, or are for information which is not in a system of records, are not processed under this part.

(b) FOIA requests. Request made under the FOIA or part 806 of this chapter are processed as FOIA requests. Privacy Act exemptions must not be used to deny records under the FOIA. FOIA exemptions cannot be used to deny anyone any record which would be available under the Privacy Act. No person will be denied access to a record for failure to cite the proper act. FOIA requests must not be listed on the annual Privacy Act report.

(c) Privacy Act requests for investigative records. Requests for investigative records subject to the (j)(2) general exemption will be processed under both acts. Tell the individual in writing what records are exempt under the Privacy Act and that you are providing records, if any, which would be available under the FOIA. Clearly explain the reasons for this action in your reply.

(d) Access requests that cite both the Privacy Act and the FOIA. Use the act that gives the most information. This may mean processing part of the request under one act and part under another. Explain in your reply which act you are using in each case and why.

(e) Functional requests. Other directives give individuals access to records. If a person asks for his or her records and does not cite, or reasonably imply, the Privacy Act or the FOIA, and another directive authorizes the release of the records, use that directive as the releasing authority. Apply the fee schedule in part 813 of this chapter.

(f) Processing access requests—(1) Verifying identity. Local system managers must verify the identity of all requests unless the record sought is available to anyone under the FOIA. Individuals do not have to state a reason for the request, nor can the request be denied if that person does not give his or her SSN, unless disclosure of the SSN is required by Federal Statute or by a regulation adopted before January 1, 1975.

(2) Notifying the requester. Once the requester’s identity is verified:

(i) Tell the individual if there is a record in a system of records about him or her, and when and where it may be reviewed. If possible, this should be done within 10 workdays from the date the request was received.

(ii) Let the subject see the record, or obtain one copy, unless the system is exempt and listed in § 806b.13. Usually this should be done within 30 workdays from the date the request was received.

(A) If the requester wants to bring another person, the local system manager may ask for written consent for the other individual to be present during any review of the record.

(B) Do not create a new record simply to fulfill a request. The record must exist at the time of the request. However, do not deny a record just because it is not readily available in a convenient form. Information on magnetic or computer tape should be given in a format the requester can understand.

(iii) If you cannot answer the request in 10 workdays, tell the requester why in a letter and give an approximate completion date. That date should be no more than 20 workdays after the first Air Force office received the request. Send a copy of this letter to HQ USAF/DAQD through Privacy Act channels.

(3) Fees. When providing copies of records under the Privacy Act, charge only for the direct cost for reproduction.

(i) Use the following fee schedule:

   Office copy (per page), 10 cents.
   Microform media (paper copy) (per image), 25 cents.
   Microfiche (per fiche), 95 cents.

(ii) Do not charge fees for:

   (A) Searching records.
   (B) Reproducing a document for the convenience of the Air Force.
   (C) Reproducing a record only in order to let a requester review it. If he or she wants a personal copy, use the fees in paragraph (f)(3)(i) of this section.

(iii) Waive the fee, if the total amount is less than $30. Do not waive the fee when a previous waiver has been... granted and subsequent requests appear to be an extension or duplication of the original request.

(iv) Locally determine fees for reproducing photographs or nonpaper material other than microform.

(4) Denying access. If the record should not be released, the local system manager sends a copy of the request, a copy of the record (or records), and the reasons for recommending denial (including the exemption being applied) to the denial authority through the local Privacy Act officer and the MAJCOM or SOA Privacy Act officer. Staff Judge Advocate (SJA) coordination is required. This should be done within 5 workdays from the date the request was received.

(i) Record evaluation. A record may not be withheld just because it is in an exempt system. Before recommending denial, the local system manager must determine that:

(A) The system is covered by an exemption approved by SAF and listed in § 806b.13.

(B) Each document is covered by the exemption, because all parts of a system are not automatically exempt.

(C) No nonexempt parts can be reasonably segregated.

(ii) Medical records. If a practitioner believes that access to a medical record by the subject could harm that person’s mental or physical health, ask the requester to name a practitioner to receive the record. If this requirement poses a hardship on the individual, offer the service of a military practitioner other than the one who provided treatment. If the individual refuses to name a recipient, the record will not be released. This is not a denial under the Privacy Act and is not appealable.

(iii) Third party information. Third party information may not be deleted from a record when the subject requests access to the record unless there is an established exemption published in § 806b.13. This is because all information in a file must be presumed to pertain to the subject of the file. However, personal data such as SSNs and home addresses of third parties usually do not pertain to the subject of the record and, therefore, need not be released. This is not a denial under the Privacy Act and cannot be appealed.

(iv) Information compiled for litigation. Records in a system compiled in connection with a civil action or other proceeding may be withheld. This includes any action where judicial or administrative adjudicatory proceedings may reasonably be anticipated. Attorney work products prepared in support of such proceedings are not usually released under the Privacy Act at any point before, during, or after termination of the action or proceeding.

(v) Denial authority action. (A) The MAJCOM or SOA Privacy Act officer reviews the proposed denial, asks for written advice from the servicing SJA and the office responsible for the program under which the record was created, and makes a recommendation to the denial authority.

(B) The denial authority sends the requester a letter stating whether or not access will be granted. If the denial authority decides to grant access, he or she instructs the local system manager to release the record. If the denial authority denies access, he or she must tell the requester why, and that the decision may be appealed to SAF not later than 60 calendar days after receipt of the denial letter. Tell the requester to resubmit the original request and send any supporting material to the denial authority for forwarding to HQ USAF/DAQD for processing. The requester should be cautioned that failure to follow this procedure may delay the appeal.

(g) Amendment requests. Individuals may ask the Air Force to amend records about them that are in a system of records. The request must seek to change, delete, or add material to make a record accurate, timely, relevant, or complete. Requests for amendment of a record that is subjective, or involves a matter of opinion or interpretation will not be processed under this part. Return such a request and tell the individual to submit it either to the Air Force Board for the Correction of Military Records according to part 865, subpart A of this chapter, to follow grievance procedures in AFR 40–771: Coordinate these returns with the director of personnel. Record correction requests which have been denied by the Air Force Board for the Correction of Military Records, acting for the Secretary of the Air Force, are not subject to further consideration under this part.

(1) Requests for minor corrections may be made orally. All others must be written.

(2) Local system managers routinely correct any record if the requester can show it is factually wrong. After verifying identity, the local system manager makes the change, notifies all known recipients of the record, and informs the individual when the correction is made.

(3) If the local system manager decides not to amend or partially amend the record, he or she sends a copy of the request, a copy of the record (or records), and the reasons for this action to the denial authority through the base and the MAJCOM or SOA Privacy Act officers. SJA coordination is required. This must be done within 5 workdays from receipt of the request.

(i) The MAJCOM or SOA Privacy Act officer reviews the proposed denial, asks for written advice from the servicing SJA and the office responsible for the program under which the record was created and makes recommendation to the denial authority.

(ii) The denial authority sends the requester a letter stating whether or not the amendment or partial amendment will be granted. If the denial authority decides to amend or partially amend the record, he or she tells the local system manager to amend the record and notify all subsequent recipients of the change. If the denial authority denies the amendment request, he or she must tell the requester why, and that the decision may be appealed to SAF not later than 60 calendar days after receipt of the denial letter. The requester is told to resubmit the original request and to send any supporting material to the denial authority for forwarding to HQ USAF/DAQD for processing. The requester should be cautioned that failure to follow this procedure may delay the appeal.

(h) Appeals of denials to grant access or to amend records—(1) Request for Secretarial review. An individual may request a review of the denial by writing to SAF not later than 60 calendar days after the denial is received. The request should be addressed to SAF/AA, and sent back to the denial for forwarding to HQ USAF/DAQD for processing. The denial sends a complete file arranged as follows:

(i) The request for review.

(ii) The original request for access or amendment.

(iii) The original denial.

(iv) A copy of the record or portions in question.

(v) Any internal records or coordination actions that relate to the denial.

(vi) Denial authority comments on the appellant’s arguments.

(vii) A legal review prepared by the SJA servicing the denial authority.

(2) Responsibilities for Review. (i) HQ USAF/DAQD reviews the denial and makes a recommendation to the Office of the Vice Chief of Staff (HQ USAF/CV), HQ USAF/DAE coordination is required.

(ii) HQ USAF/CV decides whether to direct the denial authority to grant access or to amend the record. If HQ USAF/CV decides to uphold a denial, this recommendation is passed to SAF/AA through the Office of the General Counsel (SAF/GC) for final action.
(iii) SAF/AA considers the recommendation to uphold a denial, decides to grant or deny the appeal; and notifies both the individual and the denial authority of the decision. If SAF/AA upholds a denial to amend a record, the individual must be told of his or her right to send a statement of disagreement to the system manager.

(3) Requests for Secretarial Review. These requests must be completed within 30 workdays after the date HQ USAF/DAQD received the appeal.

Note: Appeals for denial of access to law enforcement records subject to the (i)(2) exemption are processed under this part and part 806 of this chapter since the original action should have been taken under both.

(i) Statements of Disagreement. If an individual submits a statement of disagreement with a SAF/AA decision not to amend his or her record, the local system manager:

(1) Flags the record so that the disagreement may be seen by anyone who discloses or gains access to the record.

(2) Files the statement with the record. If this is not possible, the local system manager maintains it to allow ready retrieval when the disputed portion of the record is used.

(3) Tells previous recipients that the record has been disputed and, if they can be identified, gives them a copy of the statement.

(4) Lets subsequent users know that the record is disputed and gives them a copy of the statement along with the record. The system manager may include a brief summary of the reasons for not amending the record. Summaries are limited to the reasons SAF/AA gave to the individual. The summary is treated as a part of the individual's record, but is not subject to the amendment procedures.

§ 806b.9 Disclosures to third parties and organizations.

The fact that the Air Force tells an individual why the information is collected and how it will be used does not imply consent for release. When deciding to release information as authorized in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section, first consider the consequences of that disclosure. Before releasing any information, make a reasonable effort to ensure that it is accurate.

(a) With consent of the subject. You may disclose information from a system of records if the subject of the record asks you to do so or has given prior written consent. Make sure that no law or directive prohibits release. See AFR 11-24 on release of individual home telephone numbers and home addresses from unit locators.

(b) Without consent of the subject. An individual's records may be disclosed without his or her consent to:

(1) DOD officials and employees who need the record to perform their duties when the use is compatible with the purpose for which the record is maintained.

(2) The public, as required by the FOIA. See part 806 of this chapter.

(i) Some examples of information that may normally be released for individual military personnel where an unwarranted invasion of privacy are:

Name; grade; marital status; number and sex of dependents; date of rank; gross pay (base pay and entitlements); present and past duty assignments and future assignments that are firm (except overseas); office and unit address and phone number; source of commission; professional military education, civilian educational degrees and major areas of study, school, and year of graduation; promotion sequence number; awards and decorations; duty status at any given time; official photograph without the identification frame; and home of record, without street address. Lists of names, home and duty addresses, and telephone numbers of military members must not be provided in any form for solicitation regardless of the intent of the solicitation unless otherwise provided for by law or this part. See Federal Personnel Manual Supplement 900-1, part 294, on release of civilian personnel information.

(ii) A balancing test may be used to decide whether disclosure would be a clearly unwarranted invasion of individual privacy. Weigh the right of the subject to a reasonable expectation of privacy versus the public right to know. Consider the nature of the information to be disclosed. Do individuals usually expect this information to be kept private? Are the identities of the subject and the recipient already in the public eye? What is likely to happen to the individual as a result of the disclosure? How old is the information? Is it still relevant? To what degree is the information already in the public domain?

(iii) Information may be released if the balancing test described above weighs in favor of disclosure. For example, home addresses may be disclosed to a requester who wants to enforce a court order for alimony or child support payments, or to local and state tax authorities to enforce tax laws.

(iv) Individuals must be allowed to decide if they wish their home addresses and phone numbers included in base directories.

(3) Agencies outside DOD for a routine use that has been listed in the notice describing the system of records published in the Federal Register. The routine use must be compatible with the purpose for which the information was collected.

(4) The Bureau of the Census to plan or carry out a census or survey under Title 13, U.S.C.

(5) A recipient for statistical research or reporting. The recipient must give advance written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record. The record must not be used, in whole or part, to make any decisions about the individual's rights, benefits, or entitlements. It must be sent in a form in which the identity of the individual cannot be found out through usual research methods.

(6) The National Archives of the United States as a record with enough value to warrant permanent retention, or for evaluation by the Archivist of the United States to see if the record has such value. However, records sent to Federal Archives and Records Centers for storage stay under Air Force control. These transfers are not disclosures under this section and do not need an accounting.

(7) A Federal, state, or local agency outside DOD for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity authorized by law. The head of the agency or a designee must send a written request to the system manager. The request must specify the record or part needed and the law enforcement purpose for which it is wanted. A record may also be disclosed to a law enforcement agency if a criminal violation is suspected. This disclosure is a routine use for all Air Force systems of records and has been published in the Federal Register.

(8) Another individual or agency under compelling circumstances that affect the health or safety of an individual. The individual whose records are disclosed does not have to be the one in danger. For example, records on several individuals could be disclosed to identify individuals injured in an accident. When an individual record is disclosed in this way, the subject must be sent a notification of disclosure to the last known address.

(9) Either House of Congress (a congressional committee or subcommittee) for matters within their jurisdictions.

(10) A congressional office acting for a constituent who is the record subject.
This disclosure is authorized by a published blanket routine use.

(12) A court of competent jurisdiction that has ordered the disclosure of the record. When a record is disclosed, reasonable efforts must be made to notify the individual to whom the record pertains, if the legal process is a matter of public record.

(13) A consumer credit agency according to the Debt Collection Act. This provision applies to the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center only.

(14) A contractor who is operating a system of records under a contract to perform an Air Force function. In this case, the contractor is considered an employee of the Air Force for Privacy Act purposes, and the system of records is considered an Air Force system. Disclosure of records to the contractor does not need the subject's consent nor does it require an accounting. Records maintained by the contractor for the management of contractor employees are not subject to the Privacy Act.

(c) Medical records of minors. The medical records of minors may be disclosed to the parents or legal guardians of the minor. However, the following conditions apply:

(1) The law of the state in which the records are located may protect certain types of medical records that deal with drug or alcohol abuse treatment, abortion, and birth control advice or devices. Such laws must be observed. Medical records custodians in the United States must be knowledgeable of local laws and coordinate any proposed local policies with their servicing SJA.

(ii) Parents or guardians are not allowed to see the medical records of a minor when all four of the following conditions apply:

(i) The minor was between 15 and 17 years of age at the time he or she sought or consented to the treatment.

(ii) The treatment was sought in a program authorized by regulations or law to offer confidentiality of treatment records as a part of the program.

(iii) The minor specifically requested or indicated that he or she wished his or her treatment record to be handled with confidence and not released to a parent or guardian.

(iv) The parent or guardian seeking access does not have the written authorization of the minor or a valid court order for access.

Subpart E—Privacy Act Exemptions

§ 806b.10 Use of Exemptions.

SAF can exempt systems of records from parts of the Privacy Act. The two kinds of exemption are: General and specific. The general exemption frees systems from most parts of the Privacy Act; the specific from only a few parts.

§ 806b.11 General Exemptions.

(a) SAF has approved a general exemption for investigatory systems used by activities whose principal function is criminal law enforcement. These include the SJA, and investigative and correctional activities. All records in such a system come under the exemption which will be observed and cannot be waived. This exemption is in subparagraph [(I)(2)] of the Privacy Act. It only applies to systems used to:

(1) Identify criminals and alleged criminals, with identity; arrests; type and disposition of charges; sentences, confinement and release records; and parole and probation status.

(2) Support criminal investigations (including efforts to prevent, reduce, or control crime) and reports of informants and investigators that identify an individual.

(3) Reports on an individual, compiled at any stage of the law enforcement process.

(b) The Air Force observes only—

(1) Systems of records, Subsections (b); (c)(1) and (2); (e)(4)(A) through (F); (e)(6); (7); (9); (10); and (11); and (I) of the Privacy Act.

§ 806b.12 Specific exemptions.

(a) SAF has approved specific exemptions for all classified and a few other systems. These exemptions must be observed and cannot be waived. The Privacy Act citation appears in parentheses after each type below.

(1) Classified information in any system of records. Before denying access, make sure that the record is currently and properly classified and cannot be declassified (k)(1).

(2) Law enforcement records (other than those covered by the general exemption). However, the Air Force must allow access to any record which was used to deny someone a right, privilege or benefit, unless doing so would reveal a confidential source (k)(2).

(3) Statistical records required by law. The data must be used only as statistics and not to make decisions on the rights, benefits or entitlements of individuals (k)(4).

(4) Data to determine suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal service or contracts, or access to classified information. The Air Force can withhold this if access would reveal a confidential source (k)(5).

(5) Qualification tests for appointment or promotion in the federal service. The Air Force may withhold these if access would compromise the objectivity of the tests (k)(6).

(6) Information to determine promotability in the Armed Forces. The Air Force may withhold this if access would reveal a confidential source (k)(7).

(b) A specific exemption may free a system from any of the following parts of the Privacy Act: Subsections (c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I); and (f).

§ 806b.13 General and specific exemptions.

(a) General exemption. The following systems of records are exempt under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2):

(1) Counter Intelligence Operations and Collection Records, F124 AF A.

(2) Criminal Records, F124 AF C.

(3) Security Police Automated System (SPAS), F125 AF SP E.

(4) Investigative Support Records, F124 AF D.

(5) System identification and name—F125 AF A, Correction and Rehabilitation Records.

Exemption—Portions of this system that fall within 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are exempt from the following provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a, Sections (c)(3) and (c)(4); (d); (e)(1) through (e)(5); (f); (g); (h); and (i) of the Act.

Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

Reason—The general exemption will protect ongoing investigations and protect from access criminal investigation information contained in this system so as not to jeopardize any subsequent judicial or administrative processes taken as a result of information contained in the files.

(b) Specific exemptions. The following systems of records are subject to the specific exemptions shown:

(1) Classified records.

(i) Exemption. All records in any systems of records that are properly classified according to Executive Orders 11652, 12085 or 12356, are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I); and (f), regardless of whether the entire system is otherwise exempt or not.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

(2) Admissions and Registrar Records (F053 AFA C).

(i) Exemption. Parts of this system of records (Liaison Officer Evaluation and Selection Panel Candidate Evaluation] are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 52a(d), (e)(4)(H), and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To ensure the frankness of information used to determine whether cadets are qualified for graduation and commissioning as officers in the Air Force.

(3) Air Force Personnel Test 851, Test Answer Cards (F035 MPC R).

(i) Exception. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f).

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the objectivity of the promotion testing system by keeping the test questions and answers in confidence.

(4) Cadet Personnel Management System (F035 APA A).

(i) Exception. Parts of this system are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), (e)(4)[H], and (f), but only insofar as disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority.5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(7).

(iii) Reasons. To maintain the candor and integrity of comments needed to evaluate an Air Force Academy cadet for commissioning in the Air Force.

(5) Cadet Records (F045 ATC C).

(i) Exception. Portions of this system (Detachment Professional Officer Course (POC) Selection Rating Sheets; Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) Form 0-24—Disenrollment Review; Memoranda for Record and Staff Papers with Staff Advice, Opinions, or Suggestions) are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the identity of a confidential source who furnishes information necessary to make determinations about the qualifications, eligibility, and suitability of cadets for graduation and commissioning in the Air Force.

(6) Family Advocacy Program Record (F168 AF SG B).

(i) Exception. Parts of this system are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (d), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) (2) and (5).

(iii) Reasons. To encourage those who know of exceptional medical or educational conditions or family maltreatments to come forward by protecting their identities, and the integrity of ongoing and civil law investigations of criminal and civil law violations. Giving subjects access to their files could result in them concealing, altering, or fabricating evidence could hamper the identification of offenders and alleged offenders; and could jeopardize the safety and well-being of the family.

(7) System identification and name—F035 AF MP A, Effectiveness/Performance Reporting System.

(i) Exemptions—Brigadier General Selectee Effectiveness Reports and Colonel and Lieutenant Colonel Promotion Recommendations with close out dates on or before January 31, 1991, may be exempt from subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)[3]; (d); (e)(4)[H]; and (f).

(ii) Authority—5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(7).

(iii) Reasons—Subsection (c)(3) because making the disclosure accounting available to the individual may compromise express promises of confidentiality by revealing details about the report and identify other record sources, which may result in circumvention of the access exemption.

Subsection (d) because individual disclosure compromises express promises of confidentiality conferred to protect the integrity of the promotion rating system.

Subsection (e)(4)[H] because of and to the extent that portions of this record system are exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

Subsection (f) because of and to the extent that portions of this record system are exempt from the individual access provisions of subsection (d).

(11) Historical Airman Promotion Master Test File (F035 MPC L).

(i) Exception. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f).

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the integrity, objectivity, and equity of the promotion testing system by keeping test questions and answers in confidence.

(12) Inspector General Records (F120 AF IG B).

(i) Exception. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f). However, if a person is denied any right, privilege, or benefit, he or she would otherwise be entitled to as a result of keeping this material, it must be released, unless doing so would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

(iii) Reasons. Granting individuals access to information collected while an Inspector General inquiry is in progress could interfere with the just, thorough, and timely resolution of the complaint or inquiry and could possibly enable individuals to conceal wrong doing or mislead the inspecting officer. Disclosure might also subject sources, witnesses, and their families to harassment or intimidation.
(13) Investigative Applicant Processing Records (F124 AFOSI B).

(i) Exemption. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect those who gave information in confidence during Air Force Office of Special Investigations (AFOSI) applicant inquiries. Fear of harassment could cause sources to make frank and open responses about applicant qualifications. This could compromise the integrity of the AFOSI personnel program that relies on selecting only qualified people.

(14) Master Cadet Personnel Record (Active/Historical) (F035 AFB B).

(i) Exemptions. Parts of these systems are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), (e)(4)(H), and (f), but only to the extent that they would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(7).

(iii) Reasons. To maintain the candor and integrity of comments needed to evaluate a cadet for commissioning in the Air Force.

(15) Sensitive Comparted Information Personnel Records (F205 AFSC A).

(i) Exemption. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) and (k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the identity of sources to whom proper promises of confidentiality have been made during investigations. Without these promises, sources will often be unwilling to provide information essential in adjudicating access in a fair and impartial manner.

(16) Security and Related Investigative Records (F124 AFB).

(i) Exemption. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the identity of those who give information in confidence for personnel security and related investigations. Fear of harassment could cause them to refuse to give this information in the frank and open way needed to pinpoint those areas in an investigation that should be expanded to resolve charges of questionable conduct.

(17) Special Security Case Files (F205 AFSCA).

(i) Exemption. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the identity of confidential sources who furnish information necessary to make determinations about the qualifications, eligibility, and suitability of health care professionals who apply for Reserve of the Air Force appointment or interservice transfer to the Air Force.

(18) Special Security Files (F205 AF SP A).

(i) Exemption. This system is exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3); (d); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the identity of those who give information in confidence for personnel security and related investigations. Fear of harassment could cause them to refuse to give this information in the frank and open way needed to pinpoint those areas in an investigation that should be expanded to resolve charges of questionable conduct.

(19) Applications for Appointment and Extended Active Duty Files (F039 AFB MP R).

(i) Exemption. Parts of this system of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), but only to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a confidential source.

(ii) Authority. 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5).

(iii) Reasons. To protect the identity of confidential sources who furnish information necessary to make determinations about the qualifications, eligibility, and suitability of health care professionals who apply for Reserve of the Air Force appointment or interservice transfer to the Air Force.
